'We Are Going to Prevail,' JFK Says in Academy Speech

Top man in the 1963 class was Cadet Sam W. Westbrook III, son of Col. and Mrs. Sam W. Westbrook of Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska.

In addition to being the top graduate, Cadet Westbrook has the distinction of being the first Alaskan to be named a Rhodes Scholar. Cadet wing commander during the spring semester, Westbrook will attend Oxford University this fall. His father is director of operations for the Alaskan Air Command.

During awards ceremonies Monday, Cadet Westbrook was named for the Lt. Gens. Millard F. and Hubert Harmon Award as outstanding cadet in the general order of merit; the Maj. George C. Marshall Award as outstanding cadet in military excellence and the Maj. Gen. George O. Squirer Award as outstanding cadet in physics.

Other distinguished graduates receiving their diplomas from Kennedy were Kent E. Harbauth, Leonard C. Ekman, Frederick Lee Frostic, Allen E. Wolf, John A. Nehring, Thomas M. McCrackin, Douglas H. Butterfield, Leslie G. Denend, Thomas A. Fryer, Robert O. Heavner, Charles D. Ogren, Asa Waterman Jr., Glen A. Rowell, Joseph J. Cox Jr., John E. Elfers, Earl T. Davis, Kenneth D. C. Kopke, Lloyd [illegible] Harmon, William E. Anderson, Michael F. Bradshaw, Leslie B. Anderson III, George D. Graves, Joseph L. Coates and Michael R. Anderberg.

Low man on the totem pole who received his diploma as the anchor man, or class goat, was Michael W. Horner.

At the end of the ceremonies, the cadets tossed their caps into the air in the traditional gesture of freedom.

Among the graduates were 15 from Colorado and three from Colorado Springs. The local graduates were Robert G. Pollock, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pollack, 2 Holly Ave.; Drew L. DeBerry, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. DeBerry, 1570 Happiness Dr.; and Carlton S. Simpson, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curry O. Simpson, 2107 E. Van Buren St.

President John F. Kennedy today told the 493 members of the Air Force Academy graduating class that they were entering into a service career "more varied and more demanding than any that has ever been open to the officers of any nation on earth."

In his commencement address, before an estimated 35,000 persons in Falcon Stadium, the President said that the Air Force is far from being "mortgaged to an obsolete weapons system" as claimed by some critics.

"Some of you will hold in your hands, the most awesome destructive power that man has ever conceived," Mr. Kennedy said.

In his brief 15 minute address, the President traced the job some of the graduates might enter into pointing out that they are entering into a critical period in the history of the world.

"For today you receive not only your degrees but your commissions — and tomorrow you join with all those in the military service, the foreign service, the civil service and elsewhere who have chosen to serve the great republic at a turning point in its history. You will have an opportunity to help make that history history," the President said.

He debunked claims of "skeptics" that the Air Force is saddled with obsolete weapons and had a very limited future.

"They claim that the future of the Air Force is mortgaged to an obsolete weapons system — the manned aircraft — or that the Air Force officers of the future will be nothing more than so-called 'silent silo sitters,'" the President said.

"But nothing could be further from the truth. It is this very on rush of technology which demands an expanding role for this nation's Air Force and Air Force officers."

The President said that some

The cadets marched onto the field at 8:35 a.m. this morning with the class of 1963 leading the way. The graduating class was seated directly in front of the speaking stand.

The remainder of the cadet wing marched onto the field after the graduating class was seated and filed into the stands. Promptly at 9 a.m., Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, began handing out commissions to the largest cadet graduating class in the school's history.

At the same time Brig. Gen. Robert F. McDermott, dean of the faculty, conferred diplomas on the graduates.

The President's helicopter arrived at approximately 9:45 a.m. landing to the north of the stadium. He entered the stadium in a special open top car and circled it twice, stopping in front of the press box and taking his place on the speaker's stand.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren, superintendent of the Academy, introduced a host of dignitaries sitting on the speaker's stand. At approximately 10:40, Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong Jr., commandant of cadets, administered the oath to the newly commissioned Air Force officers. Five minutes later, the President got back into his car and drove out of the stadium for a quick tour of the Academy grounds.

Following the tour, the President and his party, making up a 12-car motorcade and accompanied by two press buses, went to NORAD for a briefing at the Combat Operation Center.

The President was scheduled to stay at NORAD for approximately one hour and then head back to Peterson Field to leave for New Mexico.

Wallace Barred By Judge From Doorway Stand

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A federal judge today barred defiant Gov. George C. Wallace from his avowed doorway stand against enrollment of Negroes at the University of Alabama.

The injunction by U. S. Dist. Judge Seybourn H. Lynne prohibits Wallace or anyone in concert with him from physically interfering with court ordered desegregation of the state institution.

The order does not ban Wallace from the campus.

In clear language, the Alabama-born jurist spelled out federal supremacy and swept away any vestige of validity in the state sovereignty power claimed by Wallace.

"The governor of a sovereign state has no authority to obstruct or prevent the execution of the lawful orders of a court of the United States," Lynne wrote in an

JFK's Arrival Schedule Moves Like Clockwork

By DONNA LOGAN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The big silver Boeing 707 whistled to a stop at precisely 9:45 a.m. As the ramp was moved before the plane door, two Air Force officers ran down the steps to flank the gateway.

Then came Kennedy, wearing a blue suit, light blue silk tie, and carrying a grey hat. He was met immediately by Maj. Gen. Robert Warren, Air Force Academy superintendent, who towered several inches over the President.

Bright sun on this perfect morning picked out the auburn tones of Kennedy's hair, which was streaked with gray at the neckline.

He moved swiftly thru the 20-man Air Force Academy Cadet honor guard. The North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) marching band played "Ruffles and Flourishes," as Kennedy was greeted by Gov. and Mrs. John A. Love, former Sen. and Mrs. John Carroll, congressmen, and military officials.

Stepping off the jet after Kennedy was the White House press corps including only one woman. The entourage was on the ground at the airfield not more than 10 minutes.

"As the President headed toward a Marine helicopter set to carry him to the Air Force Academy, the press corps rushed to another helicopter. In all, three

Supersonic Plane Go-Ahead Given By President

President Kennedy said today that the government would go ahead in development of a supersonic commercial airliner that will travel two to three times the speed of sound and surpass any type that is being built in any other country in the world.

The President chose an appropriate setting for this announcement—the graduation ceremonies of the Air Force Academy, which turns out the future officers for a large segment of the nation's military air power.

The chief executive injected into his commencement address at the academy word that he has approved the supersonic commercial aircraft program. Development of the plane is expected to cost at least a billion dollars.

The President attached an "if" to the announcement. He said that if designers failed to come up with a plane they believe would be commercially feasible, on which fares would be low enough to attract customers and that the carriers can afford, then the project will be called off.

An open competition on design will be announced soon with competition for detailed designs to come later.

Denverite Killed in Scooter Crash

Carpinella was thrown against a tree 80 feet away as the vehicle rolled 39 feet down a hillside.

The death raises Colorado's 1963 highway death toll to 191 compared with 153 by this date last year.

Boy Who Did Not Grow Rated on Genius Level

MACON, Ga. (AP)—For seven years, Flint Hunter did not grow at all.

Since last September, he has grown three inches.

That makes him a three-footer at 10 and he is still growing.

Flint is in the fifth grade but he is about the size of a small first-grader.

His growth halted after serious surgery at 3. A malignant tumor and his pituitary gland had to be removed from the base of his brain.

He surprised his doctors by recovering. With his pituitary gone, his growth was a problem until recent treatment restored it.

Flint, from babyhood on, has been somewhat remarkable. He walked at 7 months. A month later his mother had to get him off the roof of the house where he had climbed.

He never was in the first grade. He started school in the second grade.

Flint is a bug on science, chemistry, biology, and electronics. He takes motors and engines apart and can put them back together.

His teachers say he is a prospect for scholarship attainment at the genius level. Flint says he'd rather quit school and go to work. He wants his dad to finance him in the construction business.

The pint-size pupil has a big boxer dog, Beauregard No. 2, which follows him to school and escorts him home.

The lad's full name is Roger Flint Hunter Jr. but when he was 2 or 3 he got tired of Junior or Little Roger. He said he wanted to be called Flint — and he has been ever since.

Hoth Predicts Ample Water Supply for City

Mayor Harry W. Hoth reminded citizens of Colorado Springs today that the city's annexation policy isn't such that the new land will require great quantities of water and other utilities in the immediate future.

Practically all of the areas brought into the city recently, including those annexations in process, constitute raw land on which supply and demand will determine, to a large degree, the speed of development.

"It doesn't mean there will be a lot of new houses built and occupied right away," the mayor said. "These developments all will take time."

He said the annexations, and there have been a lot of them recently, represent faith in the continued and steady growth of Colorado Springs.

By 1966, the mayor said, the first water from the Homestake project should reach Colorado Springs and Aurora, joint developers in the multi-million dollar program.

The two cities will share an estimated 74,000 acre feet of water annually when the Homestake development is complete. Last year Colorado Springs used 26,000 acre feet of water.

In addition to the Homestake water, Colorado Springs also stands to gain 10,000 acre feet of new water a year from the Frying Pan-Arkansas project.

When these two major sources of new water are flowing into Colorado Springs, there will be enough water under normal precipitation conditions to take care of a quarter of a million persons.

The mayor said he wanted to remind citizens that precipitation conditions on the various city watersheds have not been normal for the 19 months, which is the main reason for the current water restrictions. Some distribution problems are involved, too.

But in looking toward the future, he added, the new water sources plus a return to normal precipitation conditions will insure the city having ample wa-

More Than One Kennedy Seen At Academy

You had to have a program to tell the Kennedy's apart at the Air Force Academy commencement exercises this morning at Falcon Stadium.

Well, almost anyway.

John F. Kennedy was easily distinguished from the others, but when they handed out a diploma and commission to Robert Kennedy, you weren't sure if you were at the Academy or at Hyannisport.

Then came James D. and James F. Kennedy. Robert Kennedy is from New Jersey, James D. is from Iowa and James F. is from Arkansas.

John F. is presently from Washington, D.C.

Canada to Ban Foreign Fishing Within 12 Miles

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada is going to ban foreign fishermen within 12 miles of its coast, apparently to shut out the Russians and the Japanese. Another purpose may be to hamper spying by Soviet trawlers.

American fishermen likely will not be affected. Assurances that special arrangements will be worked out with the United States accompanied Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson's announcement Tuesday that Canada will extend its exclusive fishing zone from three miles next May.

Pearson told the House of Commons that foreign fishing pressure along the Atlantic Coast has increased enormously over the last five years, not only depleting offshore fisheries resources but posing other problems.

Pearson did not elaborate. He may have had in mind fears in some quarters of spying by the huge Soviet fishing fleet that operates regularly in the region.

Kennedy Signs Bill to Melt Down Silver

President Kennedy announced today the signing of a bill permitting the gradual melting down of silver bullion reserve for use in making coins.

The measure was signed Tuesday but the announcement was delayed until Kennedy reached this silver producing state on the first leg of a 5-day, 5-state western trip.

Under the new law, pushed by the administration, the Treasury will be able to retire silver certificates paper money now backed by silver bullion as the bullion is melted down for coinage. The silver certificates would be replaced by federal reserve notes.

At the present time, all one dollar bills are silver certificates backed by silver in treasury vaults.

The new law also would permit eventual melting down of silver dollars for use in coins of smaller denominations.

Former Classmate of JFK On Welcoming Committee

While flying from Peterson Field to the Air Force Academy this morning, John F. Kennedy was greeted with the words "Welcome, Mr. President" inscribed on the earth near Palmer Park.

The three words had a second meaning for a Colorado Springs resident.

Placed there by Raymond F. McPherson, 1001 S. Nevada Ave., they sang of "auld lang syne."

For McPherson had the greeting constructed to honor his nation's leader and his Harvard classmate whom he remembers now, over a quarter of a century later, as a man to reckon with.

"Even then," McPherson said, "you could already see the signs that Jack would become great someday."

"He was real friendly and always showed an interest in the other fellow."

McPherson and the President were freshmen at the Massachusetts college in 1937 when Mr. Kennedy was chairman of the Freshman Smoker Committee. McPherson was chosen to serve on the committee.

"That year we probably had the biggest smoker the freshman class had ever put on," McPherson said, recalling that the headliner was Gertrude Niesen, a popular New York singer of the time who came to Cambridge with 40 entertainers.

To emcee the occasion, Mr. Kennedy acquired a Boston sports writer named Neil O'Hara. Also on hand was Frankie Frisch, McPherson remembered, but said he could not recall why Dizzy Dean's scheduled appearance did not come about.

In the Harvard yearbook depicting the "class of 1940," the President is pictured wearing a three-button lounge suit and pre-Pat Boone white buckskins.

McPherson, who has lived in Colorado Springs for the past eight years, listed his hometown as Chicago. The President's address was 294 Ponfield Rd., Bronxville, N.Y.

After their freshman year, Mr. Kennedy was assigned to Lowell House and McPherson went to Eliot House.

"He was very active in touch football then," McPherson commented, explaining that the houses played intra-mural games of this popular New Frontier sport.

McPherson has seen Mr. Kennedy only once since their college days when the Massachusetts senator was campaigning in the region for the presidency. "It was a large reception," he said, "and didn't afford me time to talk about the old times."

He hopes to have opportunity knock twice this time as the officials at the Academy have appointed McPherson to their welcoming committee.

3 Copters, Auto Flown In for JFK

President John F. Kennedy flew from Peterson Field to the Academy this morning in one of three helicopters specially flown in from Washington, D. C. for today's commencement exercise.

The three Marine helicopters were flown into Colorado Springs in transport planes.

The President's car was also brought to Colorado Springs for the occasion.

One Crewman Is Missing as Ships Collide

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The crew of the Japanese cargo ship Kokoku Maru, damaged Tuesday night off Point Reyes in a collision with an American freighter, abandoned the vessel early today, the Coast Guard said.

One Japanese crewman was reported missing.

The Kokoku Maru collided about 10 p.m. with the Military Sea Transport Service refrigeration ship Asterion in dense fog about 30 miles northwest of San Francisco.

The Asterion, a government-owned vessel operated by civilian personnel, reported she suffered a large hole in the bow above the water line.

Another Earth Shock Noted In Denver

DENVER (AP) — Another in a series of earthquakes that have hit the Denver area the past two years was reported at 5:14 p.m. Tuesday.

Residents of suburban Adams County and the northeastern part of the city reported the light temblor. There was no damage.

Regis College officials said the tremor registered 2.0 on the Richter scale, a device used in recording the intensity of earthquakes.

President Will Extend Western Tour to Hawaii

WASHINGTO N(AP)—President Kennedy has decided to extend his Western tour to include a trip to Hawaii where he will attend a mayors' conference.

White House Asst. press secretary Andrew Hatcher confirmed reports today of the Hawaii trip just as Kennedy was about to take off in his Air Force jet plane for Colorado Springs, the first leg of what was to have been a four-day Western trip.

It was understood that the President, who is pushing a civil rights campaign, is anxious to talk to the mayor of America's cities who are assembling in Hawaii.

Altogether, Kennedy planned stops in Colorado, Texas, New Mexico and California before returning to Washington Sunday morning.

He will visit two campuses and five military bases, watch naval exercises in the Pacific from the bridge of an aircraft carrier and take part in two Democratic party functions in Los Angeles.

There also was a chance he'd drop in at the senior prom of a Burbank, Calif., high school, to make amends for a bad scare given the seniors when Los Angeles Democrats nearly bumped them from a hotel ballroom to make way for one of Kennedy's political appearances.

This was the general outline for the first day of Kennedy's trip:

COLORADO SPRINGS: After his commencement address, Kennedy was to tour the Academy campus and inspect the Air Defense Command headquarters housing the heart of an elaborate system that guards the nation against attack from the skies.

Business Chiefs Urged by JFK to End Race Bars

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has urged 100 business leaders to move faster in breaking down racial barriers in Southern stores, restaurants and theaters.

The business men were described in general as ready to "go home and start" desegregating their firms — many of them chains with branches throughout the South.

But a few of the businessmen who sat down with Kennedy at the White House Tuesday counseled him to go slow on legislation that would compel integration of businesses dealing in goods that move in interstate commerce.

The President, expected to ask Congress next week for just such a measure, was advised by two or three of the executives to give voluntary programs a little more time before resorting to compulsion.

But administration leaders, fearful new Negro demonstrations could erupt into a race riot, stress that the mood of the times is urgent.

Secretary of Labor Willard W. Wirtz, spoke of the need for urgent action as he shook a stick at labor unions who refuse to admit Negroes.

He pledged that he would, under orders of the President, use the full federal authority in cracking down on discrimination within unions.

If there is not some real progress soon, Negro leaders held out the possibility of mass protest demonstrations in the nation's capital similar to those which led to violence recently in Philadelphia.

At the closed White House meeting were business leaders from 25 states and the District of Columbia—most of them executives of chain stores, theaters, motels, and restaurants operating in the South.

With the President were Vice

Moslem Mobs Demand Ousting of Shah of Iran

By PARVIS RAEIN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Police and troops today battled Moslem mobs demanding the overthrow of the shah. At least 1,000 were injured and several killed in Teheran.

Rioters overturned autos and set them afire. Soldiers blocked all routes to the royal palace and other government buildings.

Even so, continuous firing was heard only two blocks from the palace. The shah's whereabouts were not immediately learned.

Security Chief Gen. Hassan Pakrevan told newsmen he made a "mistake" in not being tough enough when religious rioting broke out Tuesday.

He charged that reactionary forces had provoked Moslem religious leaders to challenge the shah's land reform and women's rights proposals. Under them, even land belonging to the dominant Moslem sect would be distributed to landless peasants.

Today's riots began when several thousand militant Moslems marched into the capital shouting for the overthrow of the shah and government.

Large sections of the city's downtown bazaar were set afire.

The fighting died down at noon, then flared up again, raising the possibility martial law would be imposed.

There appeared to be no connection between today's Tehran riots, which were politically inspired, and Tuesday's outbreak in Pakistan where police reported 120 killed when rival Shiite and Sunni Moslem sects battled.

The Tehran rioters were virtually all Shiite Moslems, the official sect in Iran, fighting land reform plans.

Bee colonies in the United States number about 5,450,000.

Lifeguards Slated for Cherry Creek Reservoir

DENVER (UPI)—There will be lifeguards at the Cherry Creek Reservoir southeast of here this summer, Gov. John A. Love said Monday.

Love's statement was contrary to a proposal by Harry Woodward, director of the Colorado Game and Fish Department. Woodward earlier proposed a reduction in staffs at Cherry Creek and other state-owned lakes as an economy and efficiency measure.

The plan, however, brought an outburst of criticism from persons who feared for the safety of swimmers and boaters at the lakes.

Love, following a meeting with Woodward Monday, said "I think it would be inappropriate if we attempted to operate that area (Cherry Creek) without supervision of control."

He said Woodward had agreed to draft a new proposal, changing his earlier plan to use money earmarked for lake workers for creation of four new high-echelon positions in his agency.

Two out of three serious accidents in the United States last year occurred in the home, according to the National Safety Council.

DENVER (AP) — Cnsolidation of Colorado's Parks and Recreation Department with the Game and Fish Department will work to the benefit of the parks program, Gov. John Love says.

He observed that about 100 lakes, instead of only three or four as in the past, will be opened for recreational use under the program.

"I think multiple use will work out to the advantage of the people of Colorado and to the advantage of the recreational program," Love commented at a news conference late Monday.

The legislature passed a bill, recommended by Love, consolidating the two agencies, effective July 1.

The governor's comments followed a conference with Game and Fish Director Harry Woodward, who will become head of the new Department of Game, Fish and Parks when the consolidation takes place formally.

Love indicated that substantial changes are being made in the staffing pattern for parks first proposed by Woodward.

The governor announced that four lifeguards will be stationed at the Cherry Creek recreational area southeast of Denver. Originally, Woodward had none listed for the spot, which draws a heavy crowd on weekends.

Love said Woodward will rework the proposed staffing pattern as it applies to other recreational areas and will submit the revision later for his consideration.

The governor and the director also talked about complaints of the Denver Water Board that recreational areas set up by the state along reservoirs have become debris-littered.

Love, in relating the conversation to reporters, said the state is trying to work out leases for developments at Williams Fork, Antero, Eleven-Mile, Gross, Dillon and Cheesman reservoirs.

He quoted Woodward as saying the former agreement for a Williams Fork recreational area expired Dec. 31 and the state feels it has no valid agreement covering development at Eleven-Mile Reservoir but still has one for Antero Reservoir.

"The department feels that unless it has leases it can't afford to spend money to develop the sites," the governor explained.

Old Pool Hall Rule Removed in Denver

DENVER (AP) — The City Council voted Monday night to remove the law prohibiting children under 18 to enter a pool hall in Denver. The 6-3 vote came on preliminary reading.

Councilman Robert Keating is sponsor of twin bills that would allow children to enter pool halls and shoot pool.

He told his colleagues that shooting pool has become a family pasttime similar to bowling. Once bowling alleys weren't considered respectable, Keating noted.

One of the councilmen who voted against the bills, Paul Hentzell, said he wonders how to tell a "nice" pool hall from the other kind.

Under Keating's bills, a child must be accompanied by one of his parents when he goes into a pool hall. The councilman said this should eliminate any problems.

In the Virgin Islands the year-round temperature averages 78 degrees, with only six degrees variance between winter and summer.

Birmingham Is in 'Eye' Of Racial Hurricane

EDITOR'S NOTE — Associated Press writer Relman Morin, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter who covered racial turbulence in Birmingham last month, returns to assess the Deep South city in the wake of a biracial truce which stopped street marches by Negroes.

By RELMAN MORIN

The city is quiet. But the elemental forces of racial strife still swirl around it. They could move back into the streets, bringing the threat of greater disorder than there was last month during the Negro demonstrations.

So it is an eerie quiet, breathless and uneasy, here in the eye of the storm.

A biracial agreement, worked out between white businessmen and Negro leaders, ended the demonstrations in May. It provided, among other things, for the desegregation of downtown store facilities within 90 days.

Today, the lunch counters in some stores are closed. One is covered with baskets of artificial flowers, and there is a basket in each of the seats.

"There has been much talk against downtown merchants who agreed to integrate their facilities," it says.

"But little has been said about the merchants who refused to go along with this policy. Lest they be harmed, I would like to mention them by name."

Three stores are listed.

On the one hand—

The Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, chief strategist for the nonviolent campaign of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said the issue of dismissing charges against Negroes arrested last month, must be settled.

"If not," he said, "we'll start demonstrating again. We've got 5,000 who would go to jail."

About 2,400 Negroes were jailed between April 3 and May 7.

And on the other —

Attempts are under way to organize the white populace of Birmingham. An estimated 800 persons attended a meeting last Friday night and there was another Saturday, even bigger said a witness.

A newly formed organization claims to have obtained 20,000 signatures on a petition calling for an election to restore the commission form of government in the city.

The former administration was voted out of office last November. One of its top officials was T. Eugene (Bull) Connor, hard-bitten segregationist. The election was contested and the new administration was seated only recently after a ruling by the State Supreme Court.

The new mayor, Albert Boutwell, and his nine-member council have met four times. Two members said the racial problem has not yet been discussed but that they were sure it would be taken up.

The issue of desegregating the schools has complicated the problem.

Last week, U.S. Dist. Judge Seybourn H. Lynne refused to order immediate desegregation. But he said he would order a plan for desegregating to be drawn up unless state pupil placement law are administered without discrimination. Negro attorneys said they will appeal to higher courts for an immediate injunction against school segregation.

Desegregating the schools would be, potentially, a much more explosive action than desegregating the public facilities in some stores.

"The quiet here," said a police officer, "may be because everybody's got his eyes on the university right now." Three Negro students are scheduled to be enrolled in the University of Alabama system next Monday.

The officer added, "After that, who knows?"

Vicious Mink Tranquilized for Cheaper Coats

By FRANK KNOX

EAST LANSING, Mich., (AP)—Dr. Philip J. Schaible is using tranquilizers and Christmas tree lights in his research on an unsociable animal that occupies a top niche in society—the mink.

The Michigan State University professor's study, which is aimed at reducing mink-ranching costs, follows two distinct lines.

Using the tranquilizing drug reserpine, which is extracted from the roots of the snakeroot plant, Schaible has reared minks in colonies rather than in their normal ranch habitat, individual cages.

With artificial lights, he has changed the animals' mating patterns, prompting the birth of litters earlier and later than the usual May 1 whelping date.

The tranquilizers were partially successful in quieting the normally vicious minks, Schaible reports.

He and his associates, Richard Aulerich, Robert Ringer and Gordon Shelts, all of MSU, measured relative friendliness by counting the bite marks in the pelts.

They found significantly fewer bite marks among the drugged animals in comparison to a normally fed control group. But they still were unsatisfied because even a few marks reduce a pelt's value.

Another experiment was tried, using higher dosages of reserpine, but some bite marks still were found and several animals died when fed too much of the drug.

Schaible believes that successful colonization may still be achieved, perhaps by using an optimum amount of reserpine.

The savings for the rancher would be substantial, because he now must buy and keep up individual cages for the animals and must dole out the food cage by cage.

A second benefit discovered during the tranquilizing experiment was that drugged minks require less food to maintain a normal weight because they burn less energy.

The use of reserpine also proved helpful during the mating period, because about 20 per cent of all female minks are snappy with males and can prevent all but the most experienced from mating.

One time - consuming method ranchers use to solve the problem is to tie the mouths of the females. Results with a limited number of animals tested so far indicate that drugs may allow the elimination of the practice.

The drugs were discarded, however, when the research team, joined by Larry Holcomb, also of MSU, went to work on the mating cycle.

The normal breeding time for minks is about March 10. They usually whelp around May 1. The researchers, working on the theory that the length of the day controls hormones that bring the females into heat, began improvising with daylight.

On Dec. 21, 1961, the females were subjected to a Jan. 21 day, with outdoor Christmas tree lights installed on each cage to provide the additional light.

On February 10, one month early, most of the females were ready for mating. They dropped their young around April 1 instead of May 1.

The advantage is that none of the young, which weigh only 8 to 10 grams at birth, died of exposure.

Many times, Schaible explains, a mother mink will leave some of her young outside during a warm May day, only to have them freeze overnight. In April, however, the days usually are cold and the mother keeps her young close by in the nest, thus preventing freezing.

The researchers now are experimenting with shorter days, keeping a group of females in a house where the length of the "daylight" is one month shorter than usual.

Feed costs could be trimmed if the experiment is successful, Schiable says, explaining:

Minks normally mature by Sept. 15, then must be fed and cared for while their coats prime (take on luster) until approximately the first of December, when they are killed.

If the experiment works, however, the minks will prime as they mature, eliminating one month of feeding.

The 56-year-old urist took a dramatic departure from the stiff formality of court procedure to express a prayer that all Alabamians "will join in the resolution that the order will be sustained.

With an air of pathos and concern, Lynne wrote: "I love the people of Alabama.

"I know that many of both races are troubled and, like Jonah of old, are 'angry even unto death' as the result of distortions of affairs within this state, practiced in the name of sensationalism."

Lynne did not elaborate.

The judge said it was clear that unless an injunction was issued, irreparable injury would result "from obstruction to the lawful orders of this court and the consequent impairment of the judicial process of the United States."

Wallace earlier had said he wanted to stand alone to confront the students.

"We don't want anyone at the University of Alabama except those who are authorized to be there," he told an educational fraternity.

Wallace announced he would go on statewide television tonight and Sunday to urge people to keep away from the campus.

The Army moved support units of trucks nd other vehicles into Ft. McClellan, about 60 miles to the northeast, where 2,000 federal troops are on standby for possible use in racial troubles.

There were major developments in the civil rights field Tuesday in the nation's capital and in Mississippi and North Carolina.

President Kennedy met wth 100 business executives and urged them to speed up a quiet, voluntary integratoin program in stores, restaurants and theaters in the South.

The reaction to his proposals was described as generally agreeable, but some Southern spokesmen urged the administration to proceed slowly with legislation to force integration in firms dealing in goods transported in interstate commerce.

Armed with a federal court order, a second Negro said he would join James H. Meredith today as a student at the University of Mississippi. School officials said no trouble was anticipated with the arrival of Cleve McDowell, 21, an honor student. Some federal troops still are on duty at the university, left there since the bloody rioting last fall when Meredith entered.

U.S. Dist. Judge Sidney Mize said McDowell is qualified for the university's law school and issued an order directing school officials to enroll him.

Mize refused, however, a request by Meredith that the university be forced to house him in quarters for married students so his wife and small son could live with him on campus. University officials said such facilities already are filled, and the judge ruled that no racial discrimination was involved.

Also in Mississippi, a Negro mass meeting rejected last night a proposal from Major Allen Thompson of Jackson that they end antisegregation demonstrations in return for the city's agreement to hire Negroes as policemen and school crossing guards. During the day young Negroes staged numerous small demonstrations and more than 30 were arrested.

A biracial committee in Durham, N.C., announced that all of that city's hotels and motels, most of its restaurants and many of its retail establishmens had agreed voluntarily to end segregation. Mayor Wense Grabarek called it a major step forward, and city officials agreed to drop charges against more than 1,000 Negroes arrested during racial demonstrations in late May. Durham is the home of Duke University.

Alabama's governor reiterated as late as Sunday his no-integration stand — without saying defintely that he would disobey a court order. He said it remains to be seen whether federal troops will be needed to enforce desegregation at the university — where rioting erupted about seven years ago when a Negro woman, Autherine Lucy, attended classes briefly.

Vivian J. Malone, Mobile coed, and James A. Hood of East Gadsden, Ala., both 20, are to enroll at the main campus in Tuscaloosa.

Seeking to enter the extension center at Huntsville is David M. McGlathery, 20, a scientist employed at the Redstone Arsenal Space Agency.

U.S. Dist. Judge H. Hobart Grooms refused May 21 to delay desegregation despite arguments by university officials that violence might result.

The 503-member graduating class sat on the field and the lower classmen took reserved seats in the grandstand.

It was the first graduation in the newly finished stadium, in the shadow of Pike's Peak and the Rampart Range.

The graduating class was the largest in the academy's history. Even so, a third of the original 750 members of the class dropped out during the rigorous four-year course.

Well over 30,000 spectators were in the stands as the ceremony began. The weather was fair and the temperature near 70.

Of the graduates, 493 won commissions as second lieutenants in the Air Force. One was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army, five became second Lieutenants in the Marine Corps and three were commissioned ensigns in the Navy. One cadet who was graduated was not commissioned for physical reasons.

It was announced that the crowd was larger than all those which had witnessed previous academy graduations combined.

Promptly at 9 a.m., Gen. Curtis Lemay, Air Force chief of staff, began presenting the commissions.

Presenting the Bachelor of Science degrees won by each graduate was Brig. Gen. Robert .F McDermott, dean of the faculty.

In the President's party, it was announced, were Sens. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga, and Ralph Yarbrough of Texas as well as Congressmen Byron G. Rogers, D-Colo, and Thomas Morris and Joseph Montoya, both New Mexico Democrats, and Assistant Deputy Attorney General Joseph F. Dolan of Denver.

'We Are Going To Prevail,' JFK Says at Academy of the graduates will travel where no man has ever traveled before. He said some would fly the fastest planes, reach the highest altitudes and lift the heaviest payloads of any aviator in history.

"In short, the future of the Air Force is no more tied to any particular kind of weapons system than the future of the Navy was tied to the battleship several decades ago," he said.

The President warned that despite the fact that the greatest value of nuclear weapons for massive retaliation "lies in their ability to deter the very war which would require their use does not diminish their importance."

"Nor will national security in the year ahead," Mr. Kennedy said, "be achieved simply by piling up bigger stocks of bombs or burying our missiles under bigger piles of concrete."

He said the surest way to bring on the war that cannot happen is to sit back and assure ourselves that it cannot happen.

"Our national security in a perior of rapid change will depend on constant reappraisal of cacepted doctrine on alertness to new developments on imagination and resourcefulness of new ideals."

Mr. Kennedy said he was impressed by the "unusually fine scholastic achievements of the students and graduates of this Academy."

He said this was demonstrated in successful competition with the nation's best colleges for Rhodes and other selected scholarships.

The President said he was also impressed by the fact that more than one out of five of the all military faculty members has a doctor's degree and the remainder have master's degrees.

"This is good. For the Air Force officer of today and tomorrow requires this kind of scholarship. He requires a breadth of learning which was rarely required in earlier days."

He pointed out that many of the graduates will have an opportunity to represent the U.S. in some part of the world or some part of an international organization.

"Your major responsibilities, of course, will relate to the obligations of military command," he said. "Yet, as last October's crisis in the Caribbean so aptly demonstrated, military policy and power cannot and must not be separated from political and diplomatic decisions.

"Whatever the military motive and implications of that reckless attempt to place offensive missiles on the island of Cuba may have been, the political and psychological motives and implications were equally important."

The President said that the U.S. will need in the future "military commanders who are conscious of the enormous stakes involved in every move they make."

Mr. Kennedy said that the primary role of our military power today is to free ourselves and our allies "to pursue the goals of freedom without fear of enemy attack."

The President said that the United States does not separate its military, diplomatic, disarmament and foreign aid policies.

"They are all bound up together," he said. "Our goal in the coherent over-all national security policy — one that truly serves the best interest of this country and the interests of all free men and the interest of all who aspire to be free."

The President told the graduating class, "All of you can take pride in the knowledge that what you do in the next few years and decades will affect the success and the survival of free systems and societies for centuries or more to come."

His comment that the U. S. was proud of the Air Force Academy and the accomplishments of its students and graduates brought a wild burst of applause from those in the stadium.

In welcoming the graduates to the service of their country Mr. Kennedy outlined what he termed the "common purpose and common dedication" of those who serve this nation.

"We believe in the ability of man to triumph over the terrible forces he has created. We believe in the dignity of man and his eternal right to be free. And, we believe, finally, that we are going to prevail," the President said.

The President was greeted with a standing ovation as he circled the field on entering and at the end of his speech.

Even French Need Advice To Lovelorn

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI)—Foreigners may think that French lovers are wise and all-seeing. But the popularity of advice to the lovelorn columns in newspapers and magazines here shows the French have their share of the problems of "amour."

One French "Dorothy Dix" is Marcelle Segal who gives out advice in the women's magazine "Elle" with a unique Gallic flavor.

A 60-year-old grandmother, for example, wrote that her husband, 63, had acquired a mistress. Although the couple quarrelled over the other woman, the husband continued to have his household of three, or "menage a trois," as they call it in this country.

The wife asked columnist Segal, "Should I divorce him?"

The husband is "without strength" so "you must have strength," Mme. Segal replied.

"Decide which you prefer: an amiable husband, a comfortable life, an appearance of happiness. Or a divorce, solitude, a broken family, the rupture of 35 years of cherished habits.

"Which is the least worse? You are too realistic not to see that in divorcing him, you punish yourself. Let the poor fool go his way—he can't go far."

A letter from a 24-year-old wife said she suspected her husband of being unfaithful.

"Your husband is perhaps faithful, your friend probably loyal," the advice was. "Do not search to make your suspicions a certainty by playing detective. You will be happier. Furthermore, it's a good practice, whether they are faithful or not."

Then there was a letter from a young man who had been in love with a beautiful girl in Paris for six months.

"This was a shock for me . . ." the anguished man wrote.

Mme. Segal replied to "go to see the cabaret show to see if it is she."

"If it isn't, the incident is closed," she wrote. "If it is she, I will say to you only that foolish jobs are done often by brave people. I remember one nude dancer who, when dressed, was a modest girl, a good wife and mother. She wore her costume of Eve with seriousness. It was her work outfit!"

Teen-agers with love and parent problems unburden their hearts to "Elle" and other publications more often than other age groups. One girl, 17, wrote "Elle" that she was in love with a 19-year-old "gadabout" and "conceited fellow" and wondered how to win "this rare pearl."

Mme. Segal snapped he was no rare pearl.

"Show him a pin but don't stick him with it," she advised. "If he is a gaadbout, follow his 'race' with interest but don't take part in it. Observe the starters, make your bets but never be in the race.

"Be a girl apart, a girl who never begs for a date . . . be a girl who is visibly interested in him, but also visibly isn't in a state of suffering over him . . .

"This," concluded the Paris lovelorn expert, "will cause him to be respectful and considerate."

Oldfield, on Way to Europe For Litton, Visits Springs

"Litton uses airplanes like buses" says a recent article in Fortune magazine, and ex-Col. Barney Oldfield, now retired from the USAF and passing thru Colorado Springs, proves it's true.

He is enroute to Europe for five weeks.

Attend the Paris Air Show.

Write the European operations portion of the Litton Industries annual stockholders' report (which necessitates turning in in Rome, Zurich, Freiberg, Heidelberg, Wiesbaden, Bonn, Hamburg, Amsterdam, London and Copenhagen).

Attend a get-together with old European hands, foreign, and Anglio-American Press Club in ex-war correspondents at the Anglo-American Press Club in Paris.

And for good measure, on the way over after leaving Colorado Springs, he delivers a commencement address in Michigan.

"I'm out to prove that that cat who only had nine lives is a piker," he said. "I've had more than that already."

This was in reference to his having been a 19-job man getting thru the University of Nebraska, followed by being a newspaperman, radio commentator, a magazine writer, book author, a Hollywood press agent (he worked for Errol Flynn when he was getting older and slower, and Elizabeth Taylor when she was so young she was only interested in horses), and he acquired 30 years, 3 months, and 25 days from date of ROTC commission as an Army second lieutenant and later an Air Force officer.

And starting 1963 off with a switch and change of pace, he joined the corporate staff of Litton Industries in Beverly Hills, Calif., in a special public relations capacity.

Since Litton has more than 80 operations in 17 states and another in nine foreign countries, the "special" means that the bags should be packed at all times and readiness high to depart in any direction on any kind of chore.

He left a kind of mark on Colorado Springs, however, where he was the longest straight-timer in aerospace defense of them all—eight year and eight months—serving first as the USAF Air Defense Command chief of information, then in the same role in the Continental Air Defense Command, and lastly with NORAD.

This had some startling residue qualities, as Oldfield found when he came in from California and walked on he Ent premises again.

A white-uniformed nurse from the Flight Surgeon's office collared him and insisted that he take the sugar-lump oral polio No. 2 treatment. He took it rather than protest.

The nurse didn't know he had ever left the service or Colorado Springs, as it just seemed natural to see him there.

ter for the present citizenry as well as taking care of new developments.

Meanwhile, he said, the city must continue planning for future growth.

Just recently an open house was held by the Department of Public Utilities for a 44,000 kilowatt addition to its Martin Drake Power Plant, which will provide power for new developments. Improvements to the city's sewage disposal plant will start this summer.

President Will Extend Western Tour to Hawaii

Little John, Sergeant, Hawk, Talos, and Nike-Zeus.

EL PASO, Tex. — Kennedy will spend the night here, with nothing on his official schedule. He might, however, take the opportunity to discuss with local leaders a forthcoming settlement of a 50-year-old border dispute with Mexico over the city's El Chamizal area a 450-acre tract claimed as U.S. soil since the boundary-marking Rio Grande long ago changed course.

Kennedy will fly to San Diego, Calif., Thursday to address the graduating class of San Diego State College before touring a nearby Marine Corps boot camp. Then he will fly by helicopter to the attack carrier Kitty Hawk to watch antisubmarine, antiaircraft and frogmen maneuvers off the California coast.

On Friday, Kennedy will make a 25-minute stop at Point Mugu, Calif., another military installation, before seeing the Navy's latest defensive weapons in action at the China Lake Testing Station.

Most of the military demonstrations planned for the President's trip will involve defensive weapons and systems.

By Friday night Kennedy will be in Los Angeles for a gala dinner sponsored by the President's Club of that city, an organization limited to those who have contributed at least $1,000 this year to the Democratic party.

It was this club that once arranged to take over a hotel ballroom from the seniors of John Burroughs High School in Burbank. But after Kennedy had heard about this, he got the local Democrats to change their own party and move to two other rooms in the same hotel.

The final event on Kennedy's official schedule is a Saturday morning appearance at a Los Angeles breakfast sponsored by a group of Democratic women. He plans to spend the balance of Saturday relaxing at the oceanfront home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lawford, at Santa Monica.

MORE COLOR

NEW YORK (UPI) — It seems that white no longer is the fashion in appliances.

According to National Furniture Review magazine, some manufacturers are selling about 33 per cent of their refrigerators and 20 per cent of their ranges, washers and dryers in color. The most popular are yellow and copper.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

Showers and thundershowers were scattered across the eastern two-thirds of the country this morning being most numerous from the upper half of the Plains to the western Great Lakes.

Other activity developed from western Kansas to western Texas with some showers scattered from the eastern Ohio Valley into the mid-Atlantic states.

In the east, a few showers broke out in northern Maine, while showers and towering clouds were visible along the Florida coast. Heavy showers in portions of Ohio early last night have resulted in numerous flash floods.

Motorists and truckers were forced to take to the hoods of their vehicles to escape the water. In the cooler west, a disturbance in the upper atmosphere was contributing to the scattered rain and showers over portions of western Montana, Idaho and Nevada.

An occasional shower in Colorado and northern California just about completes the precipitation pattern in the west.

Warm and rather humid air occupied most regions from the Plains to the Atlantic.

Temperatures were again in or near the 60s; warmer over the southern half of the Plains and a bit cooler over the northern border areas.

In contrast, the west remained cool with readings in the 40s and 50s; cooler at higher mountain localities and warmer over the desert southwest region.

Manitou Plans Project to Ease Water Shortage

Present and future water supply problems seem destined to ease somewhat in Manitou Springs as Mother Nature provided rain recently and city fathers endorsed an application Tuesday for a $25,000 non-interest bearing loan for dam engineering costs.

Plagued by a diminishing water supply in the city's reservoir, city council took a major step Tuesday to increase the size of the 60 million gallon reservoir by authorizing the loan application.

The resolution passed by the council states that the city needs additional water storage to insure against drouth conditions and to continue anticipated population expansion.

Blakemore McCarty, city attorney, will prepare the application for the loan and send it to the Regional Director of Community Facilities of the U. S.

Following approval of the $25,000 loan by the federal government, it appears that the council will employ R. W. Beck and Associates for the engineering survey.

After the preliminary survey reveals estimates of cost to increase reservoir, plans will be made by the council for a bond issue which will be voted upon by Manitou Spring's citizens. Council members tentatively hope that the dam bond issue can be put to vote next fall.

Another step toward insuring an adequate water supply was taken by Mayor Earl Pitcock last week by applying to the Southeastern Colorado Water Conservancy District for Manitou Springs to receive water from the proposed Pan-Ark water development project. Pitcock said this will not be forthcoming for several years, perhaps as many as 10, but he applied so that Manitou Springs will be in line for the water when the project is complete.

In addition to abating water problems, council members heard the request of many citizens Tuesday night for funds for a summer baseball program for the youth of the city.

The city was asked to match $350 which School District 14 "contributed" to the summer program. Tho the money had not been appropriated for the current general budget, council members adjusted their departmental budgets and authorized the requested $350.

In addition, several of the citizens attending the meeting said they would donate to the needed project for which approximately 80 boys are already registered.

The money from the city and the school district will be used to employ a full-time manager for the program and contributions from individuals will help toward team supplies.

Tentative plans call for daily practice and game sessions with evening games scheduled thruout the summer at Memorial and Monument Parks.

Building Program At Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE (AP) — A $165,000 building program was approved Tuesday by directors of Churchill Downs Race Track.

Wathen R. Knebelkamp, Downs president, told stockholders the money would be used to build more mutuel windows and rest rooms in the infield, two barns, a grandstand restaurant and for general repairs.

With the President in Helicopter No. 1 were Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.), Sen. Clinton Anderson (D-N.M.), Sen. Ralph Yarborough, (D-Tex.), Gen. Warren Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert and Sir Hugh Frazer of Great Britain.

In Helicoper No. 1-A were Colorado Congressmen Wayne Aspinall, Bryon Rogers, and press secretary Pierre Salinger, among others.

In Helicopter No. 2 were members of the Washington press corps, including Merriman Smith, United Press International reporter; Sander Vanocur, NBC news, and Frank Cormier, plus three photographers.

Officials and accredited reporters plus Air Force guards, Secret Service men, and scores of cameramen encircled the security area near the plane. Behind the fence at the east side of the runway were hundreds more spectators — all armed with cameras.

As the President boarded the helicopter, the NORAD band struck up the official Air Force song: "Off we go—" and the three birds took off northward to the AFA.

Many of the businessmen had attended another recent session at which the attorney general urged voluntary integration of public accommodations.

Milton Elsberg, president of Drug Fair Stores, Alexandria, Va., said most of the businessmen who commented on Kennedy's appeal voiced the general view that they would get started in the next few days at integrating their firms.

Repeatedly, according to the participants, the suggestion was made that business integrate without fanfare to avoid arousing strong local opposition.

One Virginia executive said Southern businessmen are "between the devil and the deep blue sea." Asked if the President understood this, he replied, "Yes he does."

The government whipped out figures indicating that racial troubles mean trouble for business. The Federal Reserve Board said that retail sales in Birmingham, Ala., dropped sharply in May—a time of demonstrations and racial strife.

For the week which ended May 25, retail sales were off 11 per cent compared to the corresponding week in 1962. For the preceding three weeks the figures were also on the minus side: 17, 19 and 14 per cent. Almost every other metropolitan area in the Atlanta Federal Reserve District reported increased retail sales for the four weeks.

On Capitol Hill both sides were rallying their forces for a possible showdown on civil rights legislation — and the House got an advance look at the battle that may be in store for it.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., urged Senate Republicans to "go down the line for civil rights legislation."

In advance of a conference of GOP senators, he said he hopes a majority of them will agree the time has come for Congress to act toward guaranteeing the rights of Negroes and other minority groups.

"I think President Kennedy is handing the ball to Congress," Javits said in an interview. "The administration is unwilling to accept the responsibility for acting and wants Congress to take on the load."

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said that "this session of Congress is the session of reckoning" on civil rights.

"It is time to have it out in the Senate rather than in the streets and alleys of America," he told his colleagues.

In the House a small group of Southern representatives led by Rep. John Bell Williams, D-Miss., staged the closest thing permitted by House rules to a filibuster Tuesday night.

Their target was a series of speeches by Republicans who have introduced their own version of civil rights legislation, still far from House consideration.

Using repeated parliamentary maneuvers, especially by forcing the roll of 433 House members to be called eight times, Williams and his supporters stretched out what had been planned as a compact, formal set of prearranged speeches into a wrangle of more than five hours.

From Albany, N.Y., Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller fired a barb at Kennedy, telling a new conference that the President is a "victim of his own lack of action" in the racial turmoil.

Rockefeller, who disclosed he considers himself a potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination next year, said Kennedy failed to carry out the Democratic party's 1960 platform promises on civil rights and that this is coming back to haunt him.

Housing Administrator Robert C. Weaver said today "the racial turmoils we have witnessed in this country in recent weeks are the symptoms" of tremendous pressures and tensions within the Negro ghetto and the surrounding city.

"And what we have seen, I fear, may be only the beginning of turmoil that is yet to come," he added in a speech prepared for the Harlem Neighborhoods Association at the Men's Faculty Club of Columbia University.

Public Hearing On Discrimination Slated Friday

The Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission will conduct a public hearing at 9 a.m. Friday in the auditorium of the County Offices Building, 27 East Vermijo Street.

The Commission will examine charges filed by Sgt. Bernard E. Jones, of the Air Defense Command, against the Pla-Mor Mobile Village located at 3100 Wood Avenue. The village is operated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weatherly.

Sgt. Jones has contended that he was refused space for his trailer because he is a Negro. Jones came to Colorado Springs from a tour of duty in Viet Nam.

He said that he tried "15 or 20" other trailer courts without finding one that would rent him space.

He was forced to move into a basement apartment and later to quarters at Peterson Field.

Rapid Growth Of Atomic Plants Forecast

DENVER (AP) — Rapid development of commercial atomic power plants in the years ahead was predicted Tuesday to 2,000 delegates to the 31st annual Edison Electric Institute convention.

The development initially "will be used where and when it makes economic sense to do so," said President Sherman R. Knapp of the Connecticut Light & Power Co.

Considering the current trend of progress, he added:

"We can anticipate at first a steady and later a quite rapid buildup in the rate of commercial atomic power plant construction."

Knapp forecast that the United States will be ahead of Russia and Western Europe in demonstrating competitive A-power, despite this country's abundant supply of fossil fuels and what he termed the most sophisticated power technology in the world.

"Less than 10 years ago," he said, "when we talked about a 'full-scale' atomic power plant, we meant 100,000 kilowatts.

"Today, several 500,000 kilowatt atomic plants are on order and an application has been filed to build a one million kilowatt unit."

Investor-owned utilities already have invested or committed about one billion dollars in the atomic power field, he said.

Baby Hippo Newest Zoo Member

NEW YORK (AP) — A blessed event for Mr. and Mrs. Hippo, quarantine for a bridegroom-to-be bongo and four unwanted agoutis —sex unknown — that's today's news of the zoo's who.

It was the third offspring for Hugo and Henrietta, pygmy hippopotamuses at the Bronx Zoo. The addition to the family weighed in at 15 pounds Tuesday.

A bongo antelope from Africa arrives here by air today on his way to meet his intended in a Cleveland, Ohio, zoo. Matchmakers may have to wait as long as two years for the romance to blossom. The bongo is only six months old. He'll have to spend a month here in quarantine.

The four agoutis go to the highest bidder at a New York City auction. They are tropical American rodents, something like hamsters. All have been declared surplus by the city Department of Parks.

New York Students Ride Horse to School

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York has a reputation as being one of the nation's most progressive states in the field of public education, but 44 pupils still ride to school on horseback, State Education Department says.

The students live in remote areas, on narrow, crudely-fashioned roads where it is impossible to drive a school bus, the department says.

But the percentage of pupils transported by horses is small. The department says 905,862 children, exclusive of New York City were transported to New York State schools last year.

Pope John Began Career As Tenant Farmer's Son

EDITOR'S NOTE — Bennet M. Bolton, an AP Vatican correspondent for two years, has followed closely the reign of Pope John XXIII. In the following story, Bolton tells the moving story of the tenant farmer's boy who rose to the most exalted position in the Roman Catholic world. This is the first of three articles.

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In the Bergamo region of northern Italy, they will never forget Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli.

He was the boy who walked 12 miles a day to and from school. He was the tenant farmer's son who went out into the world.

He became Pope John XXIII.

Now his name is part of history.

Between Bergamo and the Alps in the village of Sotto il Monte (Under the Mountain)—his name will live forever.

It will live in a seminary built on farmland that once belonged to his family. It will live in the house where he grew up, which will be transformed into a museum as a memorial to him.

His name will live in the hearts of the thousands of Bergamaschi who met Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli on his pilgrimages home before he became Pope, and on their own pilgrimages to Rome after he became Pope.

They never forgot him—and he never forgot them.

A priest with a country pastor's heart who suddenly found himself Pope, Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli all his life the attributes of his Bergamo upbringing.

It seasoned his personality and marked him before the world as a man of humility and simplicity. The northern farms and green fields were vivid and constant in his thoughts.

Pope Pius XII used to stand still before acclaiming crowds, his arms extended low and motionless in aristocratic pose. Pope John's typical gesture was the gentle motion of upraised palms—the warm greeting of the Bergamo peasant.

The molding of the "Pope of unity and peace" began in rustic surroundings among deeply religious people 30 miles northeast of Milan where the lower Alps begin their climb into skyscrapers of icy rock.

Upon Angelo Roncalli's birth on Nov. 25, 1881, his uncle Zaverio carried him from the baptismal font to the Madonna's statue in the Solto il Monte parish church.

The story in the Roncalli family is that the old man held out the newly christened infant in his arms and said: "This child will become a priest."

Years later, upon the proclamation that Cardinal Roncalli had been chosen supreme pontiff, his brother Alfredo exclaimed: "With all the priests they get from this area it had to happen sometime."

In the 1500s Martino Roncalli had brought his family down from the high mountains to the edge of Sotto il Monte—present population 1,800. He drained a bog below the hill, built a small home and tilled the reclaimed fields as a tenant of a wealthy landowner.

His descendants did the same. Angelo Roncalli was the third of 13 children born to peasant farmer Giovanni Battista Roncalli. Ten of them lived to maturity. Angelo was the quiet one in the big family. He was happy despite his seriousness, and he never was one to lose his temper. His manner was open and cordial. He was robust, and before his final illness his brothers recalled that they had never known him to be sick.

Uncle Zaverio was a well-read man with a collection of good books. He influenced young Angelo greatly.

Angelo at 6 was serving Mass as an altar boy. He spent three years in the Sotto il Monte elementary school, then began to study under Don Bolis, pastor at the village of Carvico close by.

Father Bolis sent the Roncalli boy to the diocesan school at Célana, near Bergamo.

Angelo Roncalli walked 6 miles twice a day, to and from the school. An enthusiastic student, he narrated his day's adventures to his mother, Maria Anna, each evening.

He began a habit he was to continue for years. He would read aloud to parents or relatives the day's events from newspapers and periodicals, whenever he was home on vacation.

He was always hungry for news of home when his three living brothers would make their annual visit to the Vatican. He would question them: How were things going at the farm? How were the crops and the soil? How was this aged widow or that woman's nephew who had just entered a seminary?

This trait revealed not only strong familial ties but fondness for the journalist's life. Newsmen at one of the Pope's early audiences heard him say: "If I had not become a priest I would have been a journalist like you."

His brother Zaverio, 18 months younger, has said that Pope John's memory for the names and faces of home was remarkable. The Pope once began a litany of surnames and family relationships, many of them from 40 years in the past, at an audience for a group of his townspeople.

When he was 80, he could recall for his brother the exact shelf positions of favorite books he had placed in his library during his young priesthood in the north.

When he was 11, he entered the diocesan seminary at Bergamo. He was a model seminarian. But nothing pleased him more on his visits home than to play cards with his brothers or go with them for a day's picnic in the cool shade of the woods.

In 1900, after eight years at the Bergamo Seminary, Angelo Roncalli was sent on a scholarship to Rome to the Cerasoli College, the pontifical Roman seminary.

To avoid losing three years to military conscription in his preparation for the priesthood, the seminarian from Bergamo volunteered in 1901 for a year in the Italian army. He was an infantry sergeant—with a flowing dark mustache — when he left the service.

The church of Santa Maria in Monte Santo, a twin temple facing Rome's Piazza del Popolo, was the scne of his ordination on Aug. 10, 1904.

Father Roncalli went back to Bergamo. He left forever his seminary room, overlooking an ancient little square, in the Eternal City that would one day know him as its bishop and as supreme pontiff of the world's half billion Roman Catholics.

Teacher Colleges Are Blasted in Colorado Report

DENVER (AP) — Criticism of teachers' colleges and teacher certification in Colorado is contained in an incomplete report under study by an interim legislative committee.

The report was prepared by a subcommittee of the Committee on Educational Endeavor, created by the legislature several years ago.

The subcommittee chairman, Charles Conklin of Delta, former speaker of the State House of Representatives, said the report has not been approved by the full committee and undoubtedly will be rewritten before going to the committee.

It was written by a subcommittee member, Mrs. Janet Lecompte of Colorado Springs.

The report charges that persons responsible for teacher education have become so preoccupied with methods that they neglect general education and overemphasize teaching skills at the expense of knowledge.

The report also said in the 1962-63 school years "there were more than 700 teachers in Colorado who were not teaching what they were trained to teach."

It said of 1,848 teachers trained in Colorado institutions in 1960, only 5.8 per cent could teach mathematics and none could teach physics.

In referring to the six-hour credit required for renewal of a teacher's certificate, the report said:

"The education departments (of state colleges and universities) have risen to the challenge by providing hundreds of courses which cost the taxpayers dearly and leave the teacher poorer in purse and hardly wiser for the content of the courses."

The report adds:

"With her highly educated populace and her habit of spending money freely for education, Colorado should have a public school system second to none and the best teachers in the country.

"If she does not, one reason . . is her faulty certification law; another is the fact that she does not pay her teachers very well and consequently loses many of them."

The report is critical of courses at Colorado State College at Greeley, Adams State College at Alamosa and Western State College at Gunnison, as well as the program for school administrators and physical education majors at Colorado State University. It gives a higher rating to education training at the University of Colorado and private colleges.

INCREASE ILLEGAL

DENVER (UPI)—A 25 per cent increase in assessed valuations of grain storage elevators in Baca County was ruled illegal Monday by the Colorado Supreme Court. The court threw out valuations made by former County Assessor Jimmy Patterson at the direction of the State Tax Commission. Justice Frank H. Hall, who wrote the opinion, said the duty of listing and valuing property "devolves upon the assessor and him alone."

NEW YORK (UPI)—Spooky, a cat that braved the coyotes and cacti of the Arizona desert, was back in more civilized surroundings of a Manhattan apartment today.

Spooky bolted into the desert from her master, James Haney, 33, April 1 when he stopped at Organ Pipe Cactus National Park in Ajo, Ariz.

Haney reluctantly headed on to New York and wrote park officials to look out for Spooky. The cat was found by a camper and arrived here Sunday night by plane. Haney took Spooky home for a lion's share of tuna fish.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Practical Idealism

A gentleman of piquant humor once confided to us his definition of the difference between an optimist and a pessimist. Said he: "An optimist believes that we live in the best of all possible worlds. The pessimist is afraid the optimist may be correct."

This delightfully strident bit of irony reminds us on occasion of the criticism sometimes leveled at our philosophy of liberty and individualism. We are told that our system is "idealistic" and in consequence that it is "impractical."

But we find in such a phrase a dichotomy similar to the optimistic-pessimistic impasse. If a philosophy is, in fact, idealistic, then surely a part of its character would be its practicability, for if it were otherwise it could scarcely be ideal. Similarly, it seems to us that for any philosophy to be practical it must be geared in some way to the nature of man which, in spite of manifold shortcomings is still idealistic in hope and expectation.

Consider, for example, the advice a wise parent must give to his child. Will such a parent say to his offspring, "Banish all ideals from your mind and concentrate exclusively on the mundane. Life is a matter of bread, alone, and he who obtains it succeeds, regardless of the methods employed by means of which it is found?"

Surely, no one could contend that this advice, within the framework of our critic's contention, would be other than practical. But we wonder. Why, if practical matters are so important to the exclusion of any ideal, do we not have thousands of important serious works forwarding this contention? Do we not, on the contrary, have thousands of serious studies which show that such a philosophy is wholly impractical? For tho it might conceivably lead to a steady diet of bread, it would also tend to destroy those values by means of which any diet can be endured.

We believe we are on firm ground and that our position is both ideal and realistic when we contend that man must have an ideal for without it he will not take the necessary mundane steps to keep body and soul together. Further, that he must understand the mundane steps he must take and place them within a framework consonant to his own deepest desires and convictions, or whatever philosophy he has will, in the end, leave him destitute either of purpose or of method.

In short, idealism is a practical aspect of the real. Realism, when firmly understood, is capable of sustaining a most profound idealism. The virtue of liberalistic idealism is that it combines the two aspects of life and is able at once to stimulate an acceptance of the highest possible goals together with entirely workable methods whereby these goals may at least be approached.

We would further contend that the acceptance of a philosophy which was nothing more than airy "pie in the sky" is precisely what is wrong about all socialist theory. It takes the view that life would be wonderful "if poverty could be eliminated"; if pain could be banished; if justice came to rule without effort; in short if all needs were banished instantly by some type of benign overlord.

This type of philosophy, while it may sound "ideal" to many, contains the demerit of non-practicality with a vengeance. It simply cannot be made to work. The forces which must be invoked to approximate such a condition are always found to be the very forces of tyranny and oppression which socialist theorists say they want to abolish.

This is one more of the reasons why the philosophy of individualism and liberty is attractive to us. Admittedly ideal, it contains the science of means whereby, thru understanding and education, the ideal may be practically attained. It permits of no violence or coercion. It does not seek to invoke force to compel others to accept it. It simply establishes the potency of an ideal goal and explains a suitable methodology which is consonant with natural law, making possible its ultimate attainment.

Admission

Ignorance is no asset. But if you are brave enough to admit your ignorance, THAT is an asset.

'The Anarchists'

When governments grow large and oppressions increase, talk of anarchy is bound to flourish. There will be those who are attracted to the idea simply as a reaction to tyranny often observed in governmental edicts. Others will find the anarchistic tenets attractive not for political but for economic reasons.

It is also probably true that some will oppose anarchy openly but in the quiet of their own minds will rejoice that others of greater courage or less complacency are willing to carry again that dread red banner of opposition to the state.

Barbara W. Tuchman, author of "The Guns of August" among other published volumes, has written an item appearing in the May "Atlantic" which is worthy of study in this connection. She titles it simply, "The Anarchists."

Her approach to the subject emphasizes the European anarchists and virtually ignores American leaders in both anarchistic thought and action. However, this omission does not detract from her work in general which is well written and bright with human insight, tho it could not be considered as definitive.

Another characteristic of this particular piece is its emphasis upon the violence of the anarchists during the days when Bakunin dominated the scene and men such as Ravachol, Maltesta and even Vaillant and Czolgosz were tossing bombs, wielding daggers and scaring the daylights out of politicians and capitalists alike thruout Western Europe and the United States.

Whatever defects her study may have in these particulars, we are indebted to her for her clear and incisive statements concerning the economic motivation of the anarchists. This is a point that today is almost obliterated in the shallowness of study recommended in our schools and the tendency of so many to presume they have acquired an education if they look up a definition in Webster's or read a dozen paragraphs in the Britannica.

She begins by saying: "So enchanting was the vision of a stateless society, without government, without law, without ownership of property, in which corrupt institutions having been swept away, man would be free to be as good as God intended him. . .".etc. etc.

Later on she reveals the true motive of the anarchists: "The anarchists believed that with Property, the monarch of all evil, eliminated, no man could again live off the labor of another. . ."etc., etc.

What she does not expound upon is the fact that Karl Marx, who began his career as an anarchist, and who later devised a new system of anarchy called by some, "communism," and by others, "modern socialism," actually was able to popularize the anarchistic view of property and to have it largely accepted by virtually every shading of socialist philosophy.

However, people generally tended to reject the anarchist political view, both from the standpoint of its oft-incurred violence and from its emphasis upon abolition of the state.

Marx was able to do this by becoming a true socialist. He advised a program which would destroy private ownership of productive property thru the expedient of transferring it into the hands of the state. Thus, in modern socialism, the communist and the anarchist are opposed; the former relying wholly on the state and seeking to make it grow, the latter still opposing the state and seeking to have it abolished so that property ownership would cease to be.

The editors of "Atlantic" are possibly responsible for the omissions of Miss Tuchman in that they explain the article as a "shortened version" of a chapter in a new book she is writing.

Even so, we'll recommend it for those who wish to learn some of the hard facts respecting anarchy and why anarchy is opposed by those who believe in private ownership of property and consider this as a right with which all men are endowed.

No Comment

— By G. BOARDMAN, Ph.D

Listening to a Kennedy press conference yesterday reminded me to make a few comments about the fact.

I rarely comment about anything the President says. Letter writers ask what I think about what Mr. Kennedy had to say about this or that. The truth of the matter is that I think about Mr. Kennedy as infrequently as possible. We have no common ground, there is no meeting of minds. I would not want JFK as a friend or as an acquaintance, and I'd go out of my way to avoid associating with him in every sense of the word. He's the President of the government of the United States but thru no fault of mine. I do not have him on my conscience and this reminds me of another line of questioning.

During the past couple of weeks I've received at least seven or eight letters from people who wanted to know when I'd begin making some kindly comments about Sen. Goldwater. The answer is, never! I do not have Sen. Goldwater on my conscience, either.

Prior to 1959 I was inclined to believe Sen. Goldwater might be an anomaly, politically. When he accepted the chore of heading the Senate Republican Finance Committee, I knew I had been mistaken. When he announced his enthusiastic support for Nixon, I had already withdrawn my support of Sen. Goldwater.

From 1958 to the early part of 1960, I continued to examine the possibility of something being accomplished thru political action. I examined and inspected and rationalized and dreamed up images, faced all of the facts of my own observations and experiences and came up with the belief that nothing of value could be accomplished by political means. I am unable to even imagine a miracle which might change my perspective.

But since you asked, listening to Mr. Kennedy or any of his cohorts or any contemporary political figures in Washington reminds me of nothing so much as an out-of-tune babbling brook. Once you've read the Fabian-Keynesian line, you're read all of the answers to everything which has been discussed by politicians for thirty years. Such things as gross national product become a club which can be utilized for or against any type or degree of governmental stupidity. Just in case you haven't thought much about the gross national product lately, let me assure you there's nothing in the gross national product figures which indicates whether or not any business in the country has made a profit. A totalitarian state could show a gross national product ten times as great as the present GNP while everybody in a country starved to death, and don't ever forget it.

A succession of administrations combined to so confuse the national economic picture, in a fashion which defies description, as to make it almost impossible to make sense of it. The basic factors of profit and loss and debts and taxes, however, remain unchanged and no amount of political double talk ever changes a fact or the figures.

I do not believe anything which emanates from the administration, nor do I disbelieve. A certain set of figures is used to support something the administration wants to support. Six months later, the same figures may be used to bolster support for a different piece of legislation. I concern myself with the aims of the slanted and too frequently managed news, not with the arguments, pro or con. There is no such thing as an objective point of view, in politics. There is only an object: to gain more and more power. It is not a pretty picture but you can't make a pretty picture of a dirty game.

Speaking of dirty games, I wonder if you know that voting is obligatory in Italy? Here is another example which indicates that tyrants demand the support of those they tyrannize. If the people become so disgusted they refuse to consent to more and more thievery, rulers enact laws to force the consent of the governed. Italians make a choice between different brands of thievery or the same brand of theft committed by different sets of thieves. It may also happen here, after taxes are levied to finance political campaigns.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Why are laws regulating the issue and sale of certain securities called "blue sky laws?"

A—The term is supposed to have come from a remark of a Kansas bank commissioner who said that some companies were trying to make a profit even on the blue sky.

These Days

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Said Topsy to Turvy, "I don't get the hang of things these days. Here's our President, who presumably studied logic at Harvard. The other day in his press conference he said that we had done pretty much all we could to demonstrate our hostility to the concept of a Soviet satellite in the Caribbean.' When I went to school a concept was something that was in your mind. Is Fidel Castro that? Is it just a concept that flew the other day from Havana to Murmansk and Moscow?"

"My dear Topsy," said Turvy, "you don't get the idea. Everything today goes by opposites. It's the age of the switcheroo. It goes way beyond politics. Why, when I was growing up, there were a lot of articles of faith. Spinach was good for children. Too much calcium in the body caused arthritis. Lizzy Borden was guilty of chopping up her mother and father. Sacco and Vanzetti were innocent. Sam Insull, the big electrical utilities tycoon of Chicago who went broke in the depression from over-inflating his assets, was a benighted representative of the 'old order.'

"But now the doctors tell the mothers that spinach contains too much acid for young bodies and that a quart of milk a day is just the thing for old people with rheumatism. The book writers are now proving that the original juries were right in declaring Lizzy Borden innocent and Sacco and Vanzetti guilty. And a professor at Brown University has just made Sam Insull the hero of a biography. Who knows, maybe the switcheroo verdicts are right."

POLITICS

"You're going too fast for me," said Topsy. "Let's stick to politics for a while. There's this business in Laos, for instance. A couple of years ago old Ave Harriman advised that we set up a coalition government in Laos, with a communist left, a neutralist center and pro-western right. Well, we did it. The left's territory in Laos is, of course, continguous to Red China and Red North Vietnam — and in these parts of the world it is China's Mao Tse-tung who calls the tune.

"Now everyone knows that the Red Chinese do what they please these days without asking a by-your-leave from Khrushchev. So what do we do to preserve the peace in Laos? We send Ave Harriman to Moscow to ask Khrushchev to call off Mao Tse-tung's dogs in that drive toward southeast Asia's rice bowl. Isn't this like asking the manager of the Houston Colts to win a couple of games for Casey Stengel's Mets?"

"Well, what would you have our State Department do," asked Turvy, "send Averell Harriman to Albania?"

"Why not?" said Topsy. "He might be able to get thru to Mao from there. There's evidently a hot wire between Albania and Peiping."

"It's what is said over the wire that counts," said Turvy pontifically.

"Well, it's pretty clear that I'm not going to get anywhere trying to apply logic to foreign affairs," said Topsy. "But what about Congress? Here we send our representatives to Washington to legislate, and they respond by passing just two new laws in three months time. Shouldn't we do something about our lazy congressmen?"

PLACE THE BLAME

"You shouldn't blame Congress," said Turvy. "You should blame the switcheroo. Haven't you heard that in this day and age it's the duty of the White House to do the legislating? Instead of Henry Clay and Daniel Webster proposing our laws today, we have Dr. Heller and Professor Schlesinger. They have decided that the people want tax reform and federal aid to education and a lot of things like that."

"I hadn't heard that the people elected Heller and Schlesinger," said Topsy.

"Precisely," said Turvy. "It's only some very small minorities that really want the laws that the legislators in the White House propose. So what does Congress do? It simply invokes the switcheroo and sets itself up as the governing body that exercises the veto. This used to be the President's prerogative, but, as I said at the beginning, everything goes by opposites these days."

"If you aren't careful," said Topsy, "you'll have me carrying Goldwater on both shoulders. It's enough to Rock a feller."

"Don't try to be funny," said Turvy, "things are funny enough already."

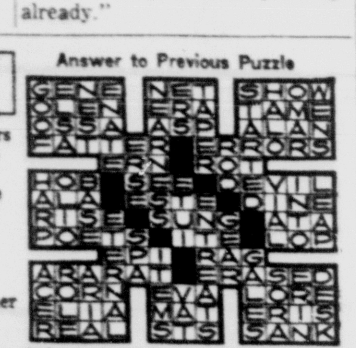
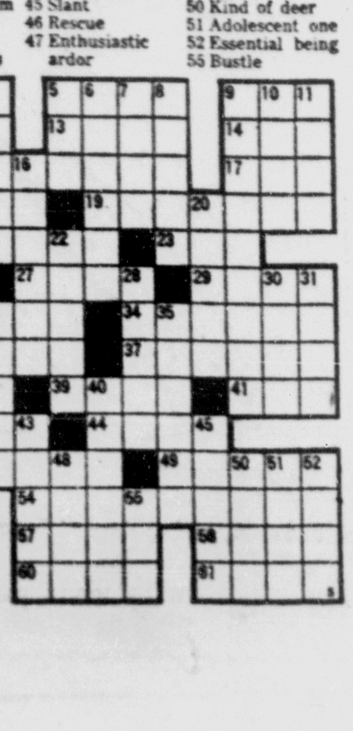
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Question Box

Question No. 241: "Isn't the following definition of a socialist for a practicing Godly man of any religion logical and absolute according to your oft-repeated declaration that there are absolutes: socialism is applied Christianity? And for anarchy, isn't the logical definition, every person for himself and the devil takes the hindmost; your absolute creed as expressed in the thousands of words you argue with every day?

"By the way, why don't you have proof read that God-awful small type you use?

"One who is, yes, afraid of signing his name because of your 'managed' news editorial policy."

Answer: This unsigned message appears to be by the same individual who has sent in other questions and criticized us because we refuse to publish letters without name and address.

The answer to the first part of the question is an emphatic "no." State socialism advocates the use of compulsion to force others to conform to the socialists' ideas of what is "good." Christianity relies on attempting to persuade others to be good because it will be to their own benefit, either in the present or in the future.

Anarchy would use force to eliminate government. We do not advocate forcing anyone to adopt our ideas. We do not advocate elimination of government. We do advocate that our readers attempt in every way to avoid use of government services, and that if government services are used that the user pay all of the costs. We object to persons like the writer of this question having the right to try to force us to pay for what he thinks is good. We would not seek to force him to pay for what we think is good.

And when we suggest that charity can be voluntary, as were the acts of the Good Samaritan, we are not saying, "Every person for himself and the devil take the hindmost." The Good Samaritan provided his own substance to take care of the injured man; he did not say, "Let the welfare department or the county take care of this poor man, so I can force others to help me with my charity."

We do have proof readers, who catch many errors. We have more errors in our paper than we would prefer, and we are constantly striving to improve the product for our readers. We have not yet solved the problem, but will continue to try to improve. We would not say this critic had done a perfect job on the letter he mailed to us.

We do not know what he means by "'managed' news editorial policy." Because we are responsible for what we publish, we must have control of what we publish. We do not control the news, and frequently are criticized by our friends because the news accounts are not slanted to our editorial policy. Opinions are published on the editorial page, and to the best of our ability we will keep them there and try to have straight news accounts in our news page. As a result of this many believe news accounts are "slanted" contrary to our editorial policy. It is mechanically impossible to remove the slant which is given to news accounts by wire service reporters, whose writing necessarily reflects their own training and backgrounds.

We will continue to insist that writers of opinion letters to our Open Parliament give us a name and address; otherwise we must conclude they are like this writer who admits he is "afraid."

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

Allen-Scott Report

US and USSR Near Agreement

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON. — President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev are much closer to a nuclear test ban agreement than their public statements indicate.

In fact, they probably could reach an understanding without undue difficulty but for one towering obstacle — the certainty that such a treaty would encounter prolonged and bitter opposition in the Senate.

At present it is extremely doubtful whether the President could muster the two-thirds majority necessary to ratify a treaty along the lines of the draft under consideration in the White House for submission to the Soviet at the Geneva conference, that is now in recess.

A bipartisan bloc of powerful senators is prepared to wage a strenuous battle against this backstage plan.

Prominent in this critical group are Senator Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee; Senator Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Senator Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Interior Affairs Committee and a member of the Armed Services Committee and Joint Atomic Committee.

It is the understanding of members of the bloc that the latest draft treaty contains provisions advocated by the Russians.

Whether this record will be put up to the Soviet is still undecided.

In a recent exchange of letters, the President indicated willingness to meet Khrushchev this summer on condition that a nuclear test ban agreement would be concluded.

While Khrushchev's reply left the door open for a summit conference, he raised the question of whether any pact that could be reached could gain the acquiescence of "your Congress." The Kremlin ruler made it clear he had strong misgivings on that.

This challenge explains the speeches that lately have suddenly erupted in the Senate vigorously urging a test agreement with the Soviet, and defending the administration's efforts and proposals to reach one.

Latest of these oratorical flurries was the carefully-prepared address of Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis., in which Senators Paul Douglas, D-Ill., Joseph Clark, D-Pa., and others participated. The occasion had all the earmarks of a staged demonstration.

The White House is heartily encouraging such favorable presentations for both home and foreign consumption. They are definitely designed to bolster the administration's hand in both spheres.

DETAILS OF THE PLAN — President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev have conducted an extended correspondence on the test ban issue.

This and other highly revealing details are contained in a memorandum prepared by Ambassador Charles Steele, chief U. S. negotiator at the Geneva conference. This backstage paper is circulating among senators favoring an accord with Russia, and has been used by them as a basis for their speech-making.

Clear-cut evidence of the influence of this memorandum is to be found thruout Proxmire's prepared talk.

Among the most significant disclosures in Ambassador Steele's memorandum is the assertion that as a result of the exchange of letters between the President and Khrushchev, "There now exists a new basis for agreement."

The memorandum gives no hint as to the contents of these letters — none of which has been made public.

But Steele spells out in some detail the complicated inspection formulas the U. S. is prepared to offer the Soviet, and which undoubtedly were broached by the President in his correspondence with Khrushchev. That is clearly indicated by Steele's memorandum as follows:

"There now exists a new basis for agreement on a nuclear weapons test ban arising from the exchange of letters between President Kennedy and Chairman Khrushchev. Under this basis for agreement each nuclear side would place reliance on its national detection station for the collection of seismic data, supplemented by the use of automatic seismic stations (black-boxes).

"The United Kingdom and the U. S. have indicated that, under certain conditions related to the conduct of inspection, we would accept an annual quota (the number to be negotiated) of on-site inspections in the territory of each nuclear power.

"The present position of the U. S. is strongly influenced by the concept of reciprocal inspection, in accordance with which each nuclear side plays a primary role in the arrangements concerning on-site inspection in the territory of the other."

As outlined by the memorandum, arrangements for on-site inspection would include the following:

A country would have up to 60 days from the time a seismic event occurred to designate it as an event "which it may later wish to inspect." The country whose territory would be inspected would have a week to volunteer any data on the suspected seismic event.

The government asking for the inspection could, during the same week, receive and examine data collected in the sealed boxes of automatic seismic stations on the territory of the country to be inspected. The U. S. wants eight such automatic seismic stations; Russia so far has held adamantly to not more than three.

The country seeking the inspection would have an additional week to analyze the collected data and indicate whether it wished to continue the on-site inspection. Unless such notice is given, the suspected event would no longer be eligible for inspection.

Also within the two-week period, the country demanding an on-site inspection would have to specify the area to be examined.

"The area may be an ellipse with a semi-major axis of no more than 15 kilometers, with a maximum area of 500 square kilometers," explains Steele's memorandum. (Five hundred fifty square kilometers is slightly less than 200 square miles.) "The receiving state would have five days in which to reply to the inspecting state's proposal for time and place of the entry of the on-site inspection team.

"The state to be inspected would also have the right to indicate the presence in the inspection area of a sensitive defense installation, consisting of buildings or similar facilities. The state requesting the inspection would then decide whether to continue with the inspection, excluding the defense installation from the area to be inspected, or to cancel the inspection. If, in its judgment, a party felt this procedure was being abused, it could evoke the withdrawal procedure of the treaty."

The country to be inspected would be responsible for transporting the inspectors and their equipment.

However, "It would be permitted to institute all safeguards it considered necessary to assure the security of military and other sensitive defense installations, subject only to the condition that the inspection team arrive promptly at the inspection area.

"The inspection team would consist partly of persons from the side requesting the inspection and partly from the international staff. The team leader would be from the side requesting the inspection. At least 14 technical experts from the side requesting the inspection would be included in the team. The country to be inspected could add observers of its own on the team.

"Inspection teams would have a maximum of six weeks to complete their work, a period which could be extended by mutual agreement. The team leaders would report findings to the commission not later than 30 days after completion of the inspection.

"Inspectors from the opposite nuclear sides, accompanied by members of the international staff, would have the right to visit each automatic seismic station a maximum of eight times per year."

YE POTTE AND KETTLE!

To the Editor:

I'm getting pretty blame tired of seeing in print, hearing on TV and radio, and learning thru various other media that the U.S.A. is losing what little "face" it has left, because of the racial strife in our midst. This is the pot calling the kettle black, with a vengeance!

Going back over recorded history, we see, in so-critical Europe, the aristocracy oppressing the serf, the Catholic persecuting the Protestant and vice versa, the Roman conquering the province and making slaves of the vanquished, the Vikings overrunning Britain, non-Christians torturing Christians, and so on, world without end. And, today, millions of the inhabitants of Soviet-conquered lands are leading a far from ideal existence under communist rule. Yet they dare to criticize us for resisting forcible integration! How about it, Pot and Kettle?

We have the same thing here at home; politicians howl for racial equality (one eye on the ballot box) totally ignoring the fact that, while they yawp for "rights" for the colored race, they dextrously rob all Americans of as many "rights" as they can lay their hands on. What about the "rights" of our Indians, who have been cheated systematically for generations? What about the "rights" of the property owner who must turn his home over to the pushers of a renewal program, whether he wishes to or not? What about the manufacturer at the mercy of a union? What about the schoolteacher, the victim of a roomful of untrained youth, with no "right" to punish them? What about our rising criminal rate and increasingly slack methods of handling unemployment and welfare funds?

Why should our well paid legislators pass up these problems and concentrate all their attention on the various angles of integration? Not one of them would fraternize with the lower-class Negro, would live in the same neighborhood, or send his chil-

New Legislation For Wheat Is Introduced

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., a former secretary of agriculture, said Monday "nothing is sillier than to say that farmers should stew in their own juice."

Anderson, seeking remedial action after defeat of the wheat referendum May 21, has introduced new wheat legislation together with three other senators.

"We are trying to correct bad programs, not simply bail out the wheat farmers," Anderson said in a statement issued by his office. The senator himself was in Bethesda Naval Hospital suffering from pleursy.

"Although farm groups have helped make farm laws," Anderson said, "the government is ultimately responsible for agriculture policy. And it is not just the farmers who are affected by declining income: The communities in which they buy goods and services, and the factories that build plows and combines are involved.

"We cannot stand by and watch a large slice of the national economy slide downhill."

Anderson served as secretary of agriculture for three years in the Truman administration. He also operates a farm in New Mexico.

Love Plans Bidding System for Colorado

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John Love announced Monday the state plans to set up a bidding system for at least 200 items purchased by state institutions. The plan reportedly will save up to $1 million a year.

Love's aides said a central buying program would begin July 1, and gradually spread throughout the entire purchasing system.

Under the plan, all the commodities for state agencies and institutions would be purchased by specialists in each department. Bids good for 12 months would be asked of prospective sellers.

FARM PROGRAM

To the Editor:

May we concern you with our views on the farm program?

We are farmers but to do justice to everyone concerned we have various reasons to believe the program, including most state and local offices, should be investigated.

The recent grain storage exposure does not stand alone in the field of corruption. For example, the 1958 rice acreage scandal, the worthless, springy marsh allowed in the soil bank under the corn program and many more similar cases have never been investigated. Irregularities seem to be gaining momentum.

From Ft. Lauderdale (Fla.) News

One might say that we are experiencing an era of the government versus the people.

Unions with government encouragement and governmental exemption from anti-trust laws, have become so big that they can close up entire segments of the economy thru strikes.

These strikes are no longer confined to single areas, but extend across state boundary lines and encompass every kind of industry, even those that would protect our very lives thru production of defense products.

The same unions in their latest proposal made by Douglas Fraser of the United Auto Workers International Executive board, are calling for a U.S. government-planned economy.

This scheme would put compulsory controls over American corporations, such as International Business Machines, American Telephone and Telegraph, Standard Oil, Ford Motor Co. and thousands of other corporations.

The program calls for national planning to be "accomplished by statute, not by executive order." The proposed legislation would provide for enforcement.

This would create an army of federal spies who would infest every community and business.

As Alice Widener in her national publication, "U.S.A." points out, the scheme, which is similar to that proposed by W. H. Ferry of the Walter P. Reuther sponsored Fund for the Republic Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, would in one instance set up a program of "planned" automobile production in America. This "plan" would provide for "an industry-wide agreement that a new model would be brought on the market only when it could be demonstrated to the satisfaction of the voluntary planning group that the new model differed significantly from the models then in production."

Extend this type of "planning" into every field of manufacture and where would our economy and growth wind up?

If you think that there isn't strong support for this scheme, note that "U.S.A." reports that at the fund's 1963 convocation in New York City, one of its officials boasted privately "that the fund is influencing and directing policies of the Kennedy administration, and in the second term we will see the realization of our policies."

"It would be a bad mistake to dismiss this boast as sheer nonsense," "U.S.A." notes, as "several aficionados of the Fund for the Republic are in top U.S. government posts and all were appointed by the present administration.

"The fund's subsidized intellectuals allege that we need a new civilization run by a new American state. It should be unilaterally disarmed, advised by a national planning committee, and empowered to control all U.S. corporations by coercion under 'law' — but not the law as we know it.

"In this new state, we Americans would not be permitted to lead 'the private life.' Instead we would be ruled by a minority of planners, presumed to be wholly good in their own private lives."

Isn't the picture getting clearer now as the union bosses advocate a clear-cut presidential race the next time around with a strong conservative pitched against John F. Kennedy? They are a cocky, self-assured lot and they let you into some of the background that is in their minds as they proceed with their "mission" to do over our way of life.

Many businessmen, chambers of commerce, patriotic groups and others who believe in our free enterprise system try in vain to awaken the apathy of the people generally on this subject. In the minds of millions "it couldn't happen here." But, again, as Al Smith said: "Look at the record." It can happen.

In another field the "government versus the people" is showing up in the current House Banking Committee's investigation of the Federal Reserve System. Chairman Wright Pattman, D-Tex., has called for a two-day visit to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the first such move ever made by this committee. The purpose? Pattman has taken issue with the monetary policies of the system. He plans a "full-scale" committee investigation. The aim? More government control and dictation.

Government versus the people also arises in the fields of urban transportation, education, medical care, insurance, well practically anything that you can name. The liberals are out to have the government take over all mass transportation systems in urbanized regions. The "medicare" program could put our doctors and hospitals under government supervision. Goals in the educational field could remove all local supervision.

Government against the people raises its head in the so-called "truth-in-packaging" bill. This current measure before Congress would standardize all consumer products regulating the package sizes, shapes, volumes, and eventually, it is believed, the nature of the product itself which manufacturers may offer the customer. The bill sets up a series of new civil and criminal offenses against anything a seller may do in packaging his product which in the mind of the regulating official will "confuse" the buyer of that product.

We ask you, is this America we are building, or Russia?

CHOIC EOF COLORS

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky chose its school colors in an unusual fashion.

One day back in the 1890's a group of football enthusiasts met to choose them. Someone suggested blue and white—"blue like Dick Stoll's necktie"—and those colors were immediately adopted.

Richard C. (Dick) Stoll was to become Judge R. C. Stoll, for more than 50 years a member of the university's board of trustees.

STUDY SET

DENVER (UPI)— William M. Williams, state planning director, said Monday a committee has considered use of the old Camp George West at Golden for a state police academy. Williams said the committee, headed by special investigator Tony Reeder, brought forth plans to use the site for training of police, state patrolmen, game and fish wardens, rangers, sheriffs, etc. "We figure it would be in use all year around," he said.

PLAN FALL BOWLING — Discussing preliminary plans for the fall season are these recently elected officers of the Ent Officers' Wives Club bowling league. From the left, Mrs. Robert R. Rainbow Hues Sparkle in Leisure Wear

One of the best ways to feel like a new man is to look like one. An aid, rainbow colors in casual shirtings, takes such delectable departures as banana, a favored high-fashion hue. A putty-paste is extremely flattering to male complexions.

The sky's the limit, too, as far as the blue family is concerned, with navy taking top honors. Even olive has branched out with a new gray cast that's willow-soft and subtle.

Not to break with tradition, ivy-like gingham checks, small or large; stripes, wide and narrow, are still very popular. So are flattering madras and Paisley prints.

Vastly improved dacron and cotton blends such as Vangard, pure finish cottons, and even luxurious silks, that maintain a fresh, clean appearance are the cucumber-cool materials that dominate the sporty set.

The continental collar, also known as the Capri, continues neck-in-neck as another important style. One version is called the Giovanni.

Style-conscious males also are taking their shirts "neat" with special attention being paid to careful detailing on sleeves, buttons and pockets. Contrasting stitching is still another fashion fillip.

An attractive angle in the casual shirt picture is the appearance of knit shirts with raglan-like sleeves to give a complete freedom of arm action. The sleeve is especially helpful for active participating in sports with no uncomfortable pulling. Many are being offered in waist-length styles to give the shirt a trim look. Yellow is the happy hue favored in this category with lighter, muted pastels following the fashion lead.

The ever-popular sweatshirt shows up with a new look which takes it out of the gymnasium. High-fashion coloring and tailoring has done the trick. Favorite devices such as Italian collars, contrasting collars and cuffs, and stripe treatments make this comfortable, easy-to-wear shirt a masculine must.

Sweater-shirts also are extremely wearable this season thanks to lightweight synthetic and blend developments. Watch for orlon, dacron and nylon, textured nylon and antron in this group.

Swim's the Thing With Female Managing Team

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — The manager of the University of Oklahoma swimming team has managed to capture both the admiring glances of team members as well as their respect and admiration.

The admiring glances stem from the fact that the manager is Dorothy "Dee" Albrecht, 18. She is the first of her sex to manage an O-U athletic team in the school's 70-year history.

Dee applied for the job on a dare from a member of the squad. Coach Jay Markley offered her the post and she decided to accept.

Her chores: keeping the team's workout records, charts of opponents' best times, issuance of sweat shirts on the day of a meet winding stopwatches, and checking the starting pistol.

Dee — a freshman from Des eres, Mo., says she gets a lot of enjoyment out of her job because she likes being around boys and swimming is her favorite sport.

There are a few drawbacks, of course. But both sides have managed to adjust. Tradition was shattered when the Sooner swimmers stopped shedding their clothes as they burst through the front door of the spacious pool building on their way to the dressing room.

Right Size, Good Fit

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Buy a right size pattern for you and change it as little as possible. But do find where your measurements differ from the pattern and, with a muslin guide pattern, be able to extend or decrease a pattern to have it conform to your measurements.

The correct pattern size can make a great difference in the alternations needed for correct fit. Half-size patterns require fewer alterations for the fuller, shorter figure.

Dear Mrs. Picken: My skirts bulge right below the belt. My waist is very small, which causes this.—Mrs. M. S.

Dear Mrs. M. S.: First, buy a skirt pattern right for your hip measure. See how much you must remove in the waistline. Divide this amount into four parts — one on each side half-way between center and side seams. Pin clusters of tiny darts — from the waistline down — say, groups of three, about 3 inches from the center, each side, front and back. They need be only ⅛ to ¼-inch deep and 1½ to 2½ inches long. Put darts in on the wrong side. When they are pressed they will scarcely show, and your skirt should fit ever so nicely. Let's hope you always keep that 24-inch waistline.

Dear Mrs. Picken: All my blouses and some dresses, even a silk suit, ride up in the back. — Mrs. C. F.

Dear Mrs. C. F.: There are several things that could cause your trouble. For example: (1) rounded back; (2) sloping shoulders; (3) back long for the front measurement. Buy a basic pattern, check it with your measurements, lay the pattern on unbleached muslin and alter the pattern to have it conform to your measurements—slashing, spreading, folding where necessary to insure a good fit. When your muslin foundation fits you correctly, open the shoulder and underarm seams and use this as a guide when cutting a new garment.

Dear Mrs. Picken: I want to cut a dress on the bias, using a pattern that has a layout for straight of the material. How do I manage it? — Mrs. R. J.

Dear Mrs. R. J.: Tear or cut on a crosswise or drawn thread line one end of your fabric. Fold this end over, pin one selvage and straightened edge together. Pin center front line of your pattern on the true bias fold. This will necessitate your piecing both on the shoulder and at bottom. Try to arrange this so piecing comes left side of your dress. Do the back in the same way, making sure center back line is on a true bias fold. When stitching two straight edges together for piecing stretch the fabric as you stitch, so stitching line cannot tighten. Clip the seam every 2 inches and press it open.

Dear Mrs. Picken: Will you please ask some fabric houses in New York City to send me some samples from which to choose fabrics? — J. M. P.

Dear J. M. P.: Fabric wholesale houses do not do a retail business and therefore will not send out samples. Department stores must know exactly the kind of fabric you want; even then they are reluctant to send samples.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

You're the greatest thing to happen to women since the 19th Amendment (Women's Suffrage) and I want to thank you for your wonderful Hints From Heloise.

As I did my housework this morning I have been constantly reminded of your idea of using an old sugar bowl with the goopy soap pad . . . the nylon stockings to catch lint from the drain holes in my washing machine . . . the oven which was so easy to clean because of the ammonia-soaked bath towel left over night . . . my wonderful bath towel blouses that are now my every day costume around the house, etc., etc., etc.

Last night one of your reader's suggestions saved my life.

I discovered that I had no dry diapers for Susie about half an hour before her bedtime. I hung the wet diaper on a skirt hanger, and slipped a plastic cleaner's bag over the hanger and hung the whole works on the shower rod in my bathroom. I then set my hair-dryer on a little stool under the bag and inserted the end of the nozzle inside the plastic bag and tied the loose ends all around the nozzle. I turned on the dryer and in twenty minutes my diapers were dry!

May I suggest that anyone trying to do this, be sure and leave that small hole at the top of the plastic bag so the hot air has a place to escape! —Sue R.

Dear Heloise:

Please tell our coffee friends this hint. Take some kitchen floor wax and coat your dust pan. Let dry thirty minutes or so, and everything you sweep into the pan will slide off easily! —Helen G.

It works beautifully. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

You can water your house plants and cover them with a plastic bag. The moisture which seeps up from the plant itself will re-water the plants for a short period. This is really good when going on a short vacation.

I find that the bags from our dry cleaning are excellent for this. —T.S.

Dear Heloise:

Don't throw away lemon halves after the juice has been extracted.

They may be dipped in salt and rubbed on the bottom of your copper-bottomed pots for a few minutes and they will gleam like new. Then pick up a soap-filled pad and scour the bottom of the pot lightly. This will leave a film of jeweler's rouge on the pot, which will help prevent further accumulation.

Lemons also work on a cutting board. After rubbing, allow to stand for about one hour. Then wash the board under your hot water faucet with some good detergent and put in the sun to dry. You will find that your dough board will be bleached to a whiteness as never before! —Nellie

Dear Heloise:

If you have some fitted sheets which are just a little too tight to fit on your bed, rip the contour seam open and insert the leg part of an old white ribbed sox and stretch it back again. This "gives" just enough to allow you to slip the sheet over the mattress easily.

Sometimes more than one corner will have to be done.

I find it best to put these insertions in diagonally opposite corners. Usually two insertions is all it takes. This keeps your sheet from splitting, too. —Mrs. John Fey

---

Some cooks like to use a kitchen scissors for snipping water cress to be added to soup. If you enjoy only a slightly pungent flavor, don't add the cress to the soup until about five minutes before serving.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇

Overconfidence led to declarer's defeat in today's hand. The four spade contract appeared to be such a sound undertaking that he never stopped to consider what pitfalls might lie in store for him.

West opened the king of diamonds and East signaled encouragingly with the nine. The suit was continued and South ruffed the third round. He was on the verge of claiming the rest of the tricks at this point and, more or less as an after thought, he decided to draw the trumps first. The ace of spades was cashed, followed by a small spade to the queen. When West showed out on the second lead declarer thought better of his original impulse.

In point of fact, South's prospects had dimmed considerably. If he drew one more trump and proceeded to run the clubs, the odds were that East would be able to ruff in before declarer could get rid of his losing hearts.

A better chance seemed to be to try the heart finesse, so South played a small heart from dummy and put in the queen from his hand. When West turned up with the king, the contract was automatically set.

Instead of being so confident of success, South would have been better advised to ask himself what could go wrong. An obvious answer is that only a bad trump break could threaten his prospects. It is relatively simple to take out insurance against this possibility.

At trick four, declarer should lead a small spade from his hand and, when West follows, the ten is played from the dummy. If the ten holds the trick and East follows suit, South is in position to draw the remaining trumps and now make his claim. If then ten of spades loses to the jack, declarer merely wins East's return, pulls trumps and discards his three losing hearts on the dummy's clubs.

PICK YOUR MILK COLOR

TOKYO (AP) — Milk in all the colors of a Japanese lantern now is being marketed in Japan. Red, green, yellow, and blue powdered milk is made by incorporating additives during the drying process. The green powder contains vegetable vitamins; the yellow, egg yolks and honey; the red, carrots and oranges; and the blue, sugar.

The word honeymoon came from the term "honey mouth." In ancient Europe, the bride and groom were required to drink mead — a kind of wine made from honey. The prescription: drink it for 30 days to assure fertility.

June still is the marryin'est month. Some 12.8 per cent of the weddings annually occur during that month. August has 10 per cent; September, 9.8 per cent.

Succulent Fish Cooked in Foil Backyard Delight

Outdoor cooking this year has its own place on the calendar. The entire month of June has been named National Barbecue Month and families from coast to coast will observe the occasion by firing up the charcoal.

Though steaks and hamburgers are standard grill fare, skilled chefs are branching out into other areas. Fish takes beautifully to grilling, and a barbecued fish is splendid tribute to the family fisherman.

For National Barbecue Month, the makers of Kitchen Bouquet offer this recipe for barbecued whole fish in foil, with mushroom barbecue sauce:

All-Purpose Barbecue Sauce

Combine 2 tablespoons salad oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 tablespoon Kitchen Bouquet, ½ cup ketchup, ¼ cup water, ½ cup finely diced onion, 1 minced garlic clove, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 2 drops Tabasco, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon chili powder, 1 can (6 ounces) broiled-in-butter (sliced) mushrooms to boil in saucepan. Now add mushrooms, and stir. (Makes about 1½ cups.)

Now, select a large fish, such as a sea bass, weighing 4 to 5 pounds. Remove head when fish is cleaned. Brush all surfaces of fish with Kitchen Bouquet. Place on large double sheet of heavy duty aluminum foil. Pull foil up around fish, pour hot sauce over fish. Fold foil securely over fish so sauce cannot escape. Grill 25 to 30 minutes, 3 to 4 inches from coals.

To test for doneness, open foil. Fish flakes easily with work when done. Makes 6 servings.

Opera Star, Wife Enjoy Cooking Bees at Home

The old adage "too many cooks spoil the broth" may be true, but Mrs. Jerome Hines, wife of the opera star, believes a communal cooking session is a very special treat. The Hines family is separated often by his travel schedule so they enjoy getting together for a cooking bee. Furthermore, she says, every time Hines sings in a new country, they bring back new ideas and recipes to introduce to their three growing boys.

Their favorite five-course menu for five cooks, she says, is a happy combination with a multicontinental flair. It's a meal, taste-tuned to outdoor, as well as indoor, living.

The entree is her favorite barbecue chicken with corn on the cob. Hines contributes a dandelion salad or insalata dicicoria. David, 9, prefers deviled eggs, which he serves with chilled borscht and a dab of sour cream. Andrew, 7, has two specialties — fresh fruit cup ambrosia, and garlic bread — John, 6, tops off everything with a rich ice cream sundae. Here are three of the Hines' favorites:

FRESH FRUIT CUP AMBROSIA

With a small scoop, cut out melon balls; use two or three kinds of melon for color and taste variety. Add strawberry halves, a fruit glassful of fresh oragne juice. Top with salted coconut chips.

DEVILED EGGS, BORSCHT

Hard boil 10 eggs, shell and split in half. Scoop yolk into mixing bowl. Mash yolks with fork and add 2 teaspoons horse-radish mustard, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, salt and fresh pepper. When mixture is of desired consistency, add 1 small can mushrooms thinly sliced and ½ finely chopped small onion. Then scoop mixture back into each egg half and top with thin strip of pimento. Serve with chilled borscht topped with dab of sour cream.

DANDELION SALAD

Mash and dry 1 pound tender young dandelion greens picked from plants that have not yet bloomed. Place in salad bowl. Add 1 clove minced garlic salt, pepper, ¼ cup wine vinegar and ¼ cup olive oil. Toss. Serves 5.

More than 800 languages and dialects are spoken in India. About 40 per cent of the population speak Urdu or Hindi.

Shorter Women Have More Stillbirths

CHICAGO (UPI) — Shorter American women are more prone to stillbirths than their taller sisters, according to a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Jack B. Bressler of Boston University reported he studied 272 women during a three-year period at Providence, R. I., Lying-in Hospital. Of the group, 12 gave birth to stillborn infants and all 12 were less than five feet, six inches tall. The study was based on similar findings reported from Scotland. There it was found that inability to deliver a child normally was about four times greater for women under five feet one inch than for those over five feet four inches.

The association of silver with marriage was a natural outgrowth of the change in the manner of acquiring a bride. When men began to buy wives rather than capture them, the price of the wife, was often measured in silver coin.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

He's Jealous of Violet

DEAR ABBY: I am 45 years old and have been married almost 15 years. My wife is a good cook, a good housekeeper and a good woman. She has one bad fault. She will spend lots of time watering her African violets, her one passion in life, but she never asks me if I want a drink of water. I am well able to get myself a drink of water, but it would be nice if she would offer it to me once in a while. Am I wrong? —MR. R. T. K.

DEAR MR. K: You are the first man I have ever heard from who is jealous of an African violet! Don't suppress your anger. Emulate the competition. Turn purple and say, "I'm thirsty, Darling . . . will you water me, too?" And don't be surprised if she tells you you are already all wet . . . or simply to dry up!

DEAR ABBY: I like to work in my shop some evenings after supper. I do so almost every evening. My problem is this: A neighbor girl, 16, keeps coming into my shop to watch me work. I enjoy her company, but my wife is afraid the neighbors will get the wrong idea. What can I do to keep everybody happy? —MAN WITH A HOBBY

DEAR MAN: No one can keep "everybody happy". But for a start, tell Sweet 16 (sweetly) that she should spend more time on her homework and less on your shop work. P.S. tell "wifey" to grow up, too.

DEAR ABBY: Is it correct for a wedding to be held in the groom's church? The bride's church is a small one in a rural section, and has no place for the reception. The groom's church is very large and has a huge basement where receptions are held. Please print your answer because about 300 people are directly involved. —EDNA

DEAR EDNA: The wedding setting is the bride's choice. Traditionally, the bride is married in her own church, but if she prefers to be married in the groom's church, it is proper to have it there.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ELEANOR: He doesn't need to be told that he is burning the candle at both ends. He is only interested in where he can get more wax.

For a personal, unpublished answer to your letter, write to "Abby," Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Freedom From Hunger Pledged By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said here no nation or citizen can feel satisfied or secure as long as "half of humanity is still undernourished or hungry."

In an address at the opening of the World Food Congress, Kenne said the United States pledges full support to a multination campaign to achieve freedom from hunger.

"We have it within our power to win this battle," he told 1,200 delegates nrom more than 100 nations. "It is a more important, more glorious battle than any other in the history of man—for it involves the power to build, rather than destroy."

The President's words are to be rebroadcast via the Relay satellite to seven European countries.

Kennedy said the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, sponsor of the congress, "has embarked on a vigorous and imaginative program which is now at the half way mark."

During the past decade, Kennedy said, the United States, through its food-for-peace program, has contributed more than $12 billion of food and fiber to less fortunate peoples. He said the program now brings food to 100 million persons in 100 countries.

The program, he said, can take care of emergency needs stemming from famine, floods and other catastrophies, "but it is not a permanent solution."

The real goal, Kennedy said, "must be to produce more food in the nations which need it most."

Discrimination in Apprenticeship Hit

Kennedy got out a special statement saying denial of the right to work is unfair, regardless of its victim.

He said it is doubly unfair to throw the burden most heavily on someone because of race or color.

Accordingly, the President said he is:

1. Directing the secretary of labor, under the federal apprenticeship laws, to requir that admission to apprenticeship programs of the government be on a completely nondiscriminatory basis.

2. Asking for a review of all federal construction programs to prevent any racial discrimination hiring practices.

3. Issuing an executive order shortly to broaden the authority of the Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity to include construction of buildings and other facilities wholly or partly undertaken as a result of federal financial grants.

Kennedy's statement was issued prior to a late afternoon meeting with 100 businessmen who have outlets in the South.

Can you name the 6 reasons Martini devotees prefer the glorious Gordon's Martini?

1 To this day, the ancient pot still method is used in distilling Gordon's Gin. 2 Only gin from the heart of the run is bottled for Gordon's. 3 Gordon's uses only juniper berries and other choice botanicals aged to the peak of maturity. 4 Gordon's is extraordinarily dry. 5 Gordon's has a distinctively delicate flavour. 6 Gordon's maintains its exceptional quality because it still harks back to Alexander Gordon's original formula created in England in 1769. Reasons enough for enjoying a Glorious Gordon's Martini soon, wouldn't you say?

SO THEY SAY

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Dr. Irving H. Goldstein of Atlanta, Ga., says every effort should be made "to erase the public image of the dentist as one who inflicts pain."

Those days are gone, he said at a dental convention here. With modern preventative dental health and the advancement of techniques, "little or no pain is involved in modern dentistry," Goldstein said.

Strict Control Of Pesticides Urged by Carson

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Author-biologist Rachel Carson called today for strict control of aerial pesticide spraying as a first step toward dealing with "contamination of the environment."

She sad it was "one of the major problems of modern life."

Miss Carson, author of the best-seller "Silent Spring," also urged a "strong and unremitting effort" to reduce and ultimately eliminate "pesticides that leave long-lasting residues."

She told a Senate government operations subcommittee studying pesticides that she could "see no other way to control the rapidly spreading contamination" of air, water and soil which she said threatened all human and other animal life.

Miss Carson gave the subcommittee, headed by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., former secretary of health, education and welfare (HEW), a rundown on evidence that poisonous pesticides could travel great distances in the atmosphere.

She said they had been found in "the oil of fish that live far at sea," and that some detergents found in drinking water might affect the human digestive tract "so that it more readily absorbs cancer-causing chemicals."

In prepared testimony Miss Carson declared that the problem "is one that must be solved in our time," and "a beginning must be made on it now—in this session of Congress."

Increased Oil Drill Activity Is Reported

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON,—At this point in the Kennedy Administration's consideration of new and tough civil rights legislation it pays to be skeptical. If, for example, the President does ask Congress for unprecedented legislation barring segregation in any business establishment — store, hotel or restaurant in the country—this would be the biggest switcheroo in Kennedy's operating procedure since he took office.

It would mean that suddenly in his third year in the White House he has abandoned his wheeling and dealing policy with Congress; that he is determined for the first time to make an all-out fight on a matter of principle; and that he is prepared as the nation's leader to seek popular support to force his will on the legislative branch.

Such an abrupt switch would certainly be dramatic. While it may come because of Kennedy's immense disturbance over the threat of a whirlwind of racial clashes, there is today no clear sign of his going that far. There has only been the floating of trial balloons designed to gauge public reaction in case the President does do so and se on civil rights.

It is true as reported that the President and his brother, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, are "considering" asking Congress to bar racial discrimination in any store, restaurant etc., selling goods shipped in interstate commerce. This would also cover theatres and hotels. But the fact that this proposal is being considered does not mean that a decision has been reached. And in the best informed quarters around town there is great skepticism that such a far-reaching crackdown will be in the package the President sends to Congress.

In the first place this Congress, it can almost be assured, never would put its approval stamp on sweeping legislation of that nature. It tramples on the states' rights toes of Northern as well as Southern senators and representatives.

Secondly, this question as to whether the owner of private property running a business establishment anywhere in the country can choose his customers on the basis of race is before the Supreme Court. So it is argued that, before Congress acts, the high court should decide. And the court has already served notice that it will not make a decision on cases in this civil rights category until its next session—which starts in October.

For these and many other reasons, as the White House well knows, any drastic civil rights legislation of this type is doomed from the start. If it is asked, it will be watered down. About all that could be hoped for from congress would be a gesture in that direction—perhaps a federal ban on discrimination in theatres, hotels or restaurants which do business of more than $1 million a year.

The manner in which the President and his brother Bobby are now using the art of persuasion to convince businessmen at meetings here to open their doors to all, suggests that the Administration is most reluctant to seek a stiff crackdown by statute.

There is no question, however, the Administration was caught flatfooted by the wave of demonstrations kicked off in Birmingham, Ala. The Kennedy policy up until that time had been considered most effective. It was based on trying to cool off hot heads whenever an incident flared up or began to develop—with the Attorney General personally using his political skills to temper passions and prejudice.

This policy of executive action and personal appeal, as opposed to new legislation, has now failed, it is agreed. As Kennedy told a private session of business executives, the chief worry now is that demonstrations in Northern cities like detroit and Chicago will create more violence than those in the South.

It is clear that the White House feels that it must now ask Congress for legislation. If by chance those are wrong who believe it will be more moderate than Negro leaders like Martin Luther King are demanding, there will be no doubt that a "new Kennedy" has appeared.

It would be a Kennedy championing desegregation and civil rights, leading the cause, even if he knows in advance that he will be defeated in Congress and probably lose most of the South in the 1964 election.

This would be the Kennedy around whom the liberal fingers in his party could rally again, the Kennedy of the 1960 campaign who promised to act fast on a civil rights program. As President he pigeonholed it in order to soothe Southern legislators and get support for his general legislative programs.

The question is whether Kennedy could now rise and shine in this way. It would be an abnegation of all his past tactics and strategy as President. It would be a reversal, for example, of Kennedy's own expressed view that there is no value in making a fight for something unless you can win.

It would make all previous "sound observations" about how the Kennedy Administration functions as defunct as a poll of Rockefeller for President sentiment before he remarried.

The pat defense of the Kennedy operation, has been expressed most recently by his aid, Ted Sorensen. If the President has been cautious, if he has not seized opportunities of leadership, if he has dealt gently with Congress, it is because he received no popular mandate in the close 1960 election for forceful action.

Personally we will string along with Sorensen. We just can't believe that all of a sudden the President will defy Congress, and try to rally the country around him in support of drastic, politically dangerous civil rights legislation aimed at curbing the traditional rights of private property. •

Oklahoma Approves Depletion Allowance

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—The Oklahoma Senate gave final approval Monday to a bill to increase the oil and gas depletion allowance from 20 to 27.5 per cent, the same as the federal rate.

The vote was 25-12.

The bill now goes to Republican Gov. Henry Bellmon, whose campaign platform called for the change. The new rate would take effect Jan. 1, 1965.

Opponents, led by State Sen. Ray Fine charged that the resulting income tax reduction for oil companies would cost the state general revenue fund $750,000 per year.

Oil industry supporters estimated the revenue loss at only $553,000. But they argued the net effect would be more oil and gas production and more tax revenue.

Through the Alliance for Progress, Guatemala has received $19.3 million in U. S. assistance since the joint program began.

At one time Haiti was the most productive of New World colonies, upplying Europe with all its sugar and France with half its revenue.

City, County Officials Visit Animal Shelter

City and county officials got a first hand look at the Humane Society animal shelter Monday when a special open house was held for those with whom the Society works under contract.

The members of the Humane Society Board of Directors, headed by Charles B. Abbot, guided visiting dignitaries through the facilities in which lost, strayed and unwanted pets are sheltered and fed.

The major portion of the Society's operating expense are financed through contracts with the city, county and outlying communities. In addition to sheltering unwanted animals the society investigates complaints of cruelty, enforces the leash law and assists the City of Coldrado Springs in its licensing program.

The Humane Society is also financed through donations from persons adopting pets and in special gifts in connection with a fund drive held each June.

83-Year-Old Man Takes 10-Mile Hike

On the eve of John F. Kennedy's visit here, an 83-year old Colorado Springs man took a 10-mile walk to show the Eastern President that the Westerners are still a hardy lot.

Veteran of the Spanish-American War, Charles Banks of 314 W. Willamette, hiked from his home to Ft. Carson. The trip took him three hours.

Banks, who retired three years ago as custodian with the First National Bank, attributes his fine health to walking. He subscribes to the President's physical fitness program and tests his own strength by keeping spry by walking.

A member of the 24th Infantry in 1898, Banks was discharged in 1904. He served two years in the Philippines under the father of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The Army, Banks recalled, was primarily a foot soldiers kingdom then and the military moved by shanks mare. He remembers a 575-mile overland trek from Helena, Mont., and return thru Yellowstone National Park.

Banks' short walk Tuesday was his way of proving that an infantryman of 60 years ago is still going strong.

Standard Oil Executive Wants Gas Prices Told

Petroleum marketers ought to jump at the chance to tell the public all about the price of their products, Colorado oil men were told Tuesday.

James M. Patterson of Chicago, public relations director for the American Oil Company, said public discussion of gasoline pricing gives the marketer "a great chance to talk about what a bargain gasoline is."

As an example, Patterson said in an address before the Colorado Petroleum Council, "a customer can drive up to a pump nearly anywhere in the United States today and buy gasoline for only a nickel a pound."

"Do you know of any other vital commodity that retails so cheaply?" he asked.

Patterson said the industry's reluctance to speak out about gasoline prices is practically an invitation to "attack if you please; we won't fight back."

"Silence isn't always caution," Patterson continued. "Silence communicates. Often, a 'no comment,' or 'unavailable for comment' stand on price questions can be taken as an indication that something is wrong."

Patterson said that much of the reluctance to talk about product prices stems from the idea that such talk could lead to government anti-trust action. With this in mind, he said, "our people have been cautioned to weigh their words doubly well whenever they talk about prices."

"But it is monumentally unfortunate," he added, "that some people have decided the best way to be cautious in talking about prices is to be totally silent on the subject."

Oil men can talk price and pricing policy "freely, frankly and openly without running afoul of the law," Patterson said. Among the points that can be made, he added, are:

—The three elements that make up the price of gasoline at the pump — taxes, dealer's margin, wholesale price.

—The fact that one of these elements, taxes, is determined by law and that the other two are determined by local competitive and economic conditions.

—The price record in any given community, which should go far toward proving how competition has consistently made gasoline a bargain.

—Some of the peculiarities of gasoline marketing such as storage limitation, relative inelasticity of demand, and intensity of competition, all of which go to make gasoline especially susceptible to price fluctuations.

"We ought to talk about these things," he said. "If we can't see our way clear to seek out opportunities to talk, at least we ought not duck those opportunities that are thrust upon us."

Con Game Complaint Filed Here

A complaint alleging confidence game and conspiracy was signed Monday against Douglas Miles Connor, 19, of 2004 E. Jackson St. the sheriff's office reported.

Count one of the complaint which was filed in Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane's court Tuesday, states the defendant obtained $85 from the Broadmoor Hotel, May 14, by means of the confidence game. The second count alleges he conspired with James M. Dillon to commit the felony.

In a companion case two counts, confidence game and conspiracy containing identical information as in the charge against Connor, was filed against James M. Dillon, 21, a Ft. Carson soldier, who is currently being held by the military.

A sheriff's report says Earl Shoel, security officer at the Broadmoor Hotel came to the sheriff's office Monday with the $85 check. It was signed by Dillon and endorsed by Connor. Shoel explained that he had been in touch with Dillon regarding the check but nothing had been done.

The report continues saying Connor was interviewed and said "he knew about the checks but that he was not in any trouble as he had not written them and all he had done was cash them."

Sheriff's Detective Woodrow Littrell stated further investigation showed Connor cashed the check and had been told by Dillon there was no money in the bank to cover them.

Connor told the detective, the report states, "that if Dillon wanted to write him checks he would cash them and know he would not be involved." Connor, Littrell reported, admitted cashing other checks at Kaufaman's, Denver, Safeway's and Furrs. He admitted he knew it was wrong but is alleged to have said he needed the money to pay bills and "to drink on and make the night spots in town."

Connor also added that Dillon received none of the money from the check cashed at the Broadmoor. Littrell said Connor told Dillon "he had been rolled at the Wagon Wheel."

After interrogation Connor was placed in county jail. Bond on the two men was set at $2,000 each by Judge McShane.

Three-Pronged Fray Winds Up in City Court Tuesday

A bow and arrow, a shovel and a hoe were the instruments used in a melee May 26 which resulted in a confused hearing Tuesday in Municipal Court.

The defendants were John Honeycutt, 19, and his mother, Mrs. Ora Honeycutt, 51, of 321 N. Franklin, and their neighbor James Pilant, 72, 1329 N. Franklin.

The youth and his mother had been charged with breach of peace.

The three-pronged fray, as told by Pilant, began when John started shooting arrows into a cardboard box near Pilant's back yard fence. Pilant said he was working in his garden and one of the arrows landed near him.

He said when John started to come across his fence to retrive the arrow, he had ordered the youth to "go back on your own property."

"He kept on coming," Pilant said, "and demanded his arrow." Pilant said he broke the arrow, then doubled it and broke it again, as John began to "swing at me with his bow."

"I had a hoe in my hand and began to strike at him when his mother came at me with a shovel," the defendant said.

Pilant said the three of them went "down in a pile" but the fracus was broken up by a neighbor and another man.

Mrs. Honeycutt and her son agreed with the man's story in point of fact, but she made a series of accusations against Pilant not involving the stated charge.

Judge Allan Asher dismissed the charge against Pilant. He told Mrs. Honeycutt that he felt she and her son were in need of medical help and advised them to seek treatment.

He found both guilty of breach of peace and gave them each 20-day jail sentences which he suspended for a one-year period the condition that they not again appear in court on similar complaints.

The judge dismissed a charge of taking the right of way against Alfred Coxe, 48, 512 Argus Dr., on the failure of the complaining witness to appear. At the request of Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac, he dismissed a charge of improper backing against Gerald Erickson, 18, 620 Pinon Dr. Charges of disorderly conduct and breach of the peace were also dismissed against Joe Gordon, 34, 2921 E. Highway 24, on the request of the complaing witness.

Three men had their bonds $25 each ordered forfeited when they failed to appear in court on drunk charges. They were Gary Elliott, 29, 702 Mono Place; Herschal Mallett, 42, 806 W. Bijou St., and Gene LaCoure, 21, 533 E. Moreno.

Judge Asher found Mrs. Lois Roney, 23, 2806 W. Boulder, not guilty of a signal light violation. John Collins, 19, 31 N. Walnut, pled guilty to a speeding charge and received a $20 fine.

Timothy Denius, 19, 1606 W. Kiowa, pled not guilty to a charge of injury to private property but guilty to a drunk charge. His hearing was set for June 10 and he was ordered to post a $25 bond.

Floris Hoogeboom, 20, of Cheyenne, Wyo., who is charged with drag racing, has his hearing continued until July 2.

Raymond Miles, 24, 2800 Boulder, pled guilty to a drunk charge and was fined $25, with $10 suspended on condition that he not appear in court in the future on a similar charge.

Swift and Nickelson were among the first three Navy frogmen to reach the astronaut after his space flight May 15-16.

A letter which was sent with the memento, said in part, "As the governor of Colorado, we would like you to accept this plaque since Colorado had a large interest in the history making flight of Major Cooper."

CC Librarian Serves on Journal Board

Dr. Ellsworth Mason, librarian at Colorado College, is serving on the editorial board for a new journal designed to assist college and university libraries select books.

The books will be reviewed by subject experts involved in undergraduate college instruction. It is estimated that from 10,000 to 15,000 books per year will be considered and reports will be published on 2,000 to 3,000 of these current titles.

The journal will limit itself initially to books in English, wherever published, of potential desirability on all college campuses. Representative publications needed for understanding of the world will be reviewed in addition to the "best" books. Coverage of books in other languages will be considered at a later date.

7,773 Visit Museum This Year

There have been 7,773 visitors through the city's Pioneers Museum so far this year, according to Miss Dorothy Smith, curator.

The May total of 1,460 persons included 1,084 adults and 376 children.

This year's number of visitors is running about the same as last year in spite of the fact that more than 600 attended an open house Jan. 1, 1962, for the new two story addition.

An all-time attendance record of 18,278 persons was established in 1962. An average of 10,000 to 12,000 persons visited the museum in previous years.

There is no charge to go through the museum, 25 W. Kiowa St., which is just west of the Colorado Springs Public Library and across the street from St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Inspector Head Nixes Telephone Permit Changes

No code variances can be granted via telephone for contractors, engineers, and architects, Perry C. Tyree, superintendent, City Inspectors Department, said Tuesday.

All variances must be reviewed and passed on by the proper board governing the ordinance involved, Tyree said. He added that no one in the department has the power to grant a variance from the ordinance.

Tyree's department now goes under the head of Inspections Department rather than Building Department, as it has been known for some time.

Tyree said he wanted to clarify the matter "on the basis of alleged granting of variances from the code via telephone conversations with various members of the department."

"Make sure that any variance from the ordinance is backed up by written approval from the proper board, and that a department interpretation made by phone is confirmed in writing," he informed contractors, enginers and architects.

Later this summer the department will move from the Utilities Building to the lower floor of City Hall, in an area formerly occupied by the Police Department ID Bureau.

The plumbing inspectors, now located at the City-County Health Department, will also move to City Hall when the current remodeling is done.

Operation Budgeting for El Paso County Schools Is Big Annual Task

Editors note: This is fourth in a series of articles on schools.

By GLENN URBAN

Budgeting for a year of public school operation is a big task altho both anticipated income and expenditures can be pretty well calculated.

Take the case of Dist. 11, Colorado Springs, for an example as it is by far the largest district in the county and also has the preponderance of students.

The following figures come come from the 1962-63 budget based on a total expenditure of $10,218,253. Other districts work with similar percentages, regardless of the size of the student body and income.

1. Instruction. This is budgeted at $6,929,568, which is about 69 per cent of the total.

This includes salaries of teachers, principals, and office assistants, library books, textbooks, other teaching materials, the operation of the departments of Audio-Visual Services, and Pupil Accounting and Testing Services.

2. Fixed charges. Budgeted at $912,291, about 9 per cent.

This includes insurance premiums, the district's contribution to the Public Employees Retirement Association, fees to the county treasurer, and pension payments for a small group of retired employees not covered by the Public Employees Retirement Association.

3. Operation of plant and equipment — $776,039, about 7 per cent.

This includes custodians' salaries, custodial supplies and utilities.

4. Debt service — $734,656, about 7 per cent. This includes principal and interest payments on bond issues.

5. Maintenance of plant and equipment — $307,841, about 3 per cent.

This includes upkeep of grounds, repair of buildings and vehicles, repair and replacement of heating, lighting, plumbing, electrical equipment, and school furniture.

6. Administration — 204,481, about 2 per cent.

This includes salaries and expenses of the superintendent's and business services offices, the accounting and purchasing departments, school election and census expenses, legal and audit fees.

7. Capital building reserve — $156,276, less than 2 per cent.

This provides funds for needed construction to be financed on a "Pay-as-you-go" basis.

8. Visiting counselor service—$62,377, less than one per cent. This includes salaries and expenses incurred in the operation of the service.

9. Health, food, and community services and student activities—$54,455.

Health service includes nurses' supplies, and contributions to the dental clinic and the Child Guidance Clinic.

The lunchroom supervisor's salary and other school lunch expenses are paid from food service funds.

Community service covers the district's contribution to the summer recreation program.

10. Pupil transportation service — $43,017, less than one per cent.

This includes most of the cost of transporting pupils in the district's vehicles.

11. Capital outlay — $37,252, less than one per cent.

This includes acquisition and improvements of school sites, building additions and remodeling, and equipment purchases.

The budget planners also have to consider the unexpected and the expected. In this budget they entered $207,357 marked "Allowances for uncollectible taxes and contingency." This item was not included in the $10,218,253 mentioned above.

To meet the scheduled expenses, the district anticipated $9,418,435 in collections, which added to the beginning working balance of $1,007,175 would give it the near $10.5 million it would need for operations.

The collections would come from these sources:

District No. 11 property taxes — $4,269,025, about 42 per cent.

State sources — $2,486,466, about 24 per cent.

County sources (the flat county mill levy plus specific ownership taxes) — $1,834,694, about 18 per cent.

Federal sources — $750,000, about 7 per cent.

Miscellaneous local sources (tuition, food sales and such) — $78,000, less than one per cent.

This budget was set up to finance the education for one year of more than 22,000 children.

The district announced last September an enrollment of 22,231 — an increase of 2,077 over September, 1961.

Lee Bartholomew Wins School Scholarship

Lee Bartholomew has won a scholarship to be day boy for the 1963-64 year at the Fountain Valley School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bartholomew of 2000 Mesa Ave.

Drugstores Resent New OAP Billing Procedure

(Editor's note: This is the third in a series of four articles on the problems facing Colorado's private nursing homes.)

By PETER BLAKE

The Colorado Welfare Department recently announced that an investigation of private nursing homes and drugstores in the state had turned up evidence of fraud in the dispensing of drugs to old age pensioners in the homes.

The state is concerned because the drugs are paid for out of the medical care program, and their cost represents about five per cent of the $10 million annual limit.

The investigating committee reported instances of drug fee splitting, excessive refills of prescriptions, kickbacks to nursing homes from the stores, unauthorized prescriptions, and the substitution of cheaper drugs for those ordered by the doctor.

Six drugstores and one nursing home were involved, said Dennis Stump, assistant director of medical services in the Welfare Department.

Would he care to name those involved, asked leaders of organizations representing the nursing homes and the drugstores?

Interest Rates On Short-Term Loans Rising

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates are rising on short-term loans. The increases stretch all along the line from the U.S. Treasury to lenders to business.

The question is whether this is a passing phase caused by special situations or a definite move by the money managers to tighten up on credit.

They could be acting to brake any incipient speculative flurry that some see starting in the stock markets. Or they could be bolstering the American dollar against foreign pressures stronger than Washington has officially admitted.

Also doubtlessly affecting money management thinking is the switch of late from fears of a recession to belief that business activity is due to expand at a faster rate.

The Treasury this week is paying more on its 91-day bills than it has in three years. The latest rate of 3.028 per cent thus swings higher than the Federal Reserve discount rate of 3 per cent charged on loans to its member banks. This is the basic rate on which banks scale their own charges to borrowers.

If the Treasury rate stays higher, pressure for an increase in the discount rate will be strong. This in turn would affect bank charges, in spite of the ample funds most of them have available for lending to business, to home builders, to seekers of consumer credit.

At the same time the Treasury was finding it must pay more for 91-day loans, private borrowers were finding they must pay more, too. Several sales finance companies raised by one-eighth percentage point the rates on promissory notes they issue and sell to investors. They use the borrowed money for loans to consumers.

Similar increases were made by commercial paper dealers. They sell four- to six-month notes for various industrial concerns and some finance companies.

Bankers acceptances also went up by the same amount. These are drafts guaranteed by a bank. Usually they are issued to finance international trade.

As a sideline to all these increases perhaps, prices of bank stocks generally advanced. Higher interest rates aid them to increase their earnings.

The Treasury probably wasn't too upset at having to pay a bit more on its weekly offerings of 91-day bills. The money managers have been striving for several years to keep yields on short-term loans high enough to discourage the outflow of hot money to foreign shores.

This highly volatile money is the sum idle at any given time and in search of quick in-and-out investment opportunities at the highest return. The flow of hot money to Europe in the past when yields there were much more attractive than here was one on the biggest items in the U.S. deficit of international payments.

The deficit, lasting now for five years, has put pressure on the value of the dollar in world markets, and has from time to time caused sizable loss of the U.S. Treasury's gold reserves.

The rise in short-term rates here could be temporary. And it could be confined to that market without affecting the long-term market where funds available for investment are still reported ample.

But if the interest rate climb reflects a change in policy by the money managers toward tighter credit, the effect could spread in time to the general economy—to borrowing for speculation, for business expansion, for home or commercial building, for building and carrying inventories.

Most Wall Street observers are betting today that moderately tighter credit is the new goal.

Motors Steels Pace Recovery in Stock Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—Motors and steels paced a stock market recovery in active trading early this afternoon.

The ticker tape ran as much as four minutes behind transactions as stocks rallied after an irregular start.

Most of the motor stocks advanced, Chrysler gaining more than a point following news that new car sales in May were a record for the month.

Steels followed along, posting a string of moderate gains.

Aluminums, chemicals, farm implements and coppers also were mostly higher.

Tobaccos and drugs declined.

Some of the electronics were active and higher while others sagged.

Failing to reflect the overall advance early this afternoon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .3 at 275.0 with industrials off .1, rails off .1, and utilities off .3.

Chrysler, which touched another new high, was also boosted by short covering, brokers said. Ford gained a fraction. American Motors and Sudebaker edged to the upside. General Motors, said to be reflecting disappointment Chevrolet sales, was off a fraction.

U. S. Steel climbed nearly a point while Bethlehem, Republic Steel and Jones & Laughlin added fractions.

Polaroid fell off a point and Xerox about 3 as profits were taken on their recent strength.

Litton Industries and Raytheon gained about a point and Dynamics Corp. of America nearly that. Sperry Rand continued very active and fractionally higher.

Heyden Newport Chemical and Tennessee Gas Transmission were unchanged as Heyden Newport's directors reportedly gave preliminary approval to an acquisition offer made last week by Tennessee Gas.

Bendix Corp. bought the assets of Motorola's aviation products business and both stocks added fractions.

Amp Inc. and Addressograph rose more than a point each. Canadian Pacific was active and a shade higher.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.44 at 728.93.

The American Stock Exchange prices were mixed in moderate trading. Gains of a point or so were made by Airport Parking "A," Kawecki Chemical, Mead Johnson, and O'Okiep Copper. Down about a point were Gulton Industries, Masco Corp., Rayette, and Technical Operations. Great Basins Petroleum eased in heavy turnover. Russeks Fifth Avenue, Victoreen Instrument and Hydrometals were fractional gainers. Down fractionally were Utah Idaho Sugar, Ohio Brass, and Canadian Javelin.

Corporate bonds were irregularly higher, with rails and industrials edging to the upside. U. S. Government bonds were unchanged to a shade higher.

Hewlett-Packard Net Earnings Up 2 Per Cent

Hewlett-Packard Company Tuesday reported net earnings of $3,522,000 for the six-month period ended April 30. This represented a 2 per cent increase over the $3,446,000 earned during the first six months of the company's 1962 fiscal year.

Earnings allocated to common stock, after provision for payment of preferred dividends, totaled $3,320,000. This was equivalent to 29.7 cents a share on 11,162,314 shares outstanding, compared with 29.5 cents a share on 10,992,267 shares for the corresponding period in 1962.

Total sales, including all divisions and subsidiaries, amounted to $54,777,000, an increase of 4 per cent over sales of $52,884,000 for the first six months of 1962.

David Packard, president, noted that the 1962 figures have been adjusted upwards to reflect the acquisition of five field sales organizations by Hewlett-Packard on Nov. 1, 1962, the beginning of the company's current fiscal year.

In commenting on the company's performance for the first six fiscal months of 1963, Packard said that orders were slow during the early part of the period but had picked up considerably over the past three months.

"We expect this momentum to continue," he said, "and anticipate that we will complete our fiscal year with satisfactory increases in both sales and profits over 1962."

Hewlett-Packard has a $2 million plant in Loveland, and an oscilloscope manufacturing facility here at 637 Winters Dr.

Hewlett-Packard, with headquarters in Palo Alto, Calif., announced plans in April to construct a $2 million plant in Pikes Peak Industrial Park, northwest of Colorado Springs.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Colby & Co. notes that nearly all reliable technical indicators are following a bullish trend.

The firm feels that the two most important stock groups, from a technical standpoint, the industrials and the rails, have been confirming the action of each other consistently, and it considers this a good indication that market performance will be excellent.

Lawrence Bleiberg of Bache & Co. believes selectivity is the keynote to profitable investing at this state of the market.

Thomson & McKinnon says investor confidence is being supported by "increasing proof that supply can be readily absorbed" despite skepticism over the market being near its all-time high only a year after the collapse.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute feels that periods of profit-taking and consolidation following the market's seven-month advance appear normal, particularly with prices of top grade securities close to or above their levels of last year.

HYDROGEN COSTS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — As much as $1 million may be cut from the cost of typical large plants producing hydrogen gas, the lightest and one of the commonest and most necessary of chemical elements.

A new catalyst converts carbon monoxide so efficiently, that costly multiple purification stages can be eliminated from hyrdogen facilities that usually cost about $4 million for an annual capacity of eight to nine billion cubic feet, say Chemetron Corp. specialists.

Peace Corpsmen Are Taught Cricket

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York woman, Gertrude Jacobs, who manages an organization known as School Film Service, recently was commissioned to produce films that would train Peace Corps members in the ancient British art of cricket.

After months of research, Miss Jacobs produced film strips comprising some 240 diagrams, early cricketing prints, and humorous cartoons to aid in lecturing on the game. A trial set was sent to the British Embassy in Washington, where it was termed "excellent" with one reservation: "The term 'batsman' should be substituted in place of 'batter'."

The Peace Corps decided to teach cricket after members in former British possessions complained they had trouble establishing close contact with their pupils because they couldn't join in their sports.

Rhodesian Railroad Runs Into Elephants

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesia railways, currently struggling through a financial crisis, ran into more big trouble recently—elephants.

One freight train collided with an elephant at night at a siding. A signal pole and railway telephone box were knocked down and the injured elephant had to be shot.

Next night another freight train hit two small elephants near the scene of the earlier accident. The 225-ton locomotive was slightly damaged. One elephant was killed outright and the other animal was shot.

WHALES VANISHING

NANAIMO, B.C. Canada (AP — Gordon Pike, a member of the scientific committee of the International Whale Commission, says whales will be extinct in the Antarctic in the next five to 15 years unless whaling methods change. If they continue to be caught at the present rate — particularly by the Russians and Japanese—there will be none for commercial use, he says.

AMERICAN SAUNA?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now there's an American version of the famed Scandinavian Sauna bath. Just relax for five minutes in a hot tub (to open the pores), then massage with copious applications of common table salt—until the skin tingles. Follow with a quick rinse in cold water.

You can skip the birch branch whipping, traditional in Sauna baths. The salt is supposed to provide a comparable sensation.

Home-Boat Show to Open Thursday at Southgate

Why some 35,000 Coloradoans live in mobile homes and thousands of others own travel trailers and boats will be evident at the 1963 Colorado prings trailer-boat show opening Thursday and continuing thru Sunday at Southgate Shopping Center.

A hundred units, 40 of them mobile homes, will be on exhibit, and are expected to attract 10,000 viewers daily, Jim Dyer, show manager, said.

The Colorado Springs Mobile Home, Travel Trailer - Camper and Boat Show will be open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily, and admission will be free.

Edward Greenband, producer of the show, says one out of eight housing starts in 1962 were mobile home, and estimated that more than 35,000 Coloradoans live in mobile houses. Colorado, he said, has more than 9,000 mobile home spaces.

Mobile homes, he said, provide Coorado with a $25 million industry yearly. Included in the figure are trailer sales, supplies and other costs in connection with mobile homes.

"Mobile home housing today is on a par with conventional housing," he said.

Greenband said mobile homes have decor, spaciousness and livability and have the advantage of being furnished units when purchased. The average tenancy in mobile home parks is 38 months, he said.

Sears Southgate Store will exhibit Ted Williams travel equipment and boats in connection with the show, and other dealers of the region will have displays ranging from small fishing boats to high-powered ski boats and other pleasure craft. There will be a variety of displays of equipment for camping and patio living.

The show is sponsored by Southgate Merchants Assn. The Greenband Enterprises have produced similar shows for many years in Arizona.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is the function of the "fill-in man" to hold a situation intact until a better man can be found to take his place.

Usually he takes the place of a departed predecessor who has left shoes behind which most people feel are too big to fit anyone left on the scene.

Thus arises the need of "the fill-in man," the temporary occupant of greatness. You find him in every area of human activity.

..Nobody expects the "fill-in man" to reach the heights of his predecessor. But now and then, to the surprise of the world, it happens.

He carves his own niche in fame with certain bold and illustrious actions.

Such a man would seem to be Pope John XXIII.

It may seem presumptuous in the hour of his loss to speak of him as a "fill-in man." But no disrespect is intended. He was so regarded by many at the time of his election to the papacy.

Largely, perhaps, it was a matter of his age. How could the College of Cardinals elect a man nearly 77, after many ballots, to such an exalted post? Particularly after the long reign of scholarly Pius XII, who had won renown as "The Pope of Peace"?

But though many in the chancelleries of power might have regarded him as an interim Pope, John XXIII did not behave like one. He moved swiftly to meet the challenges of change.

With a mind poised toward heaven, he spoke of himself as "a servant of the servants of God," and in memorable human ways did all he could to make man more humane to himself.

He struck offensive mentions of other faiths—Jewish and Moslem—from his Church's rituals.

He recalled men's duties to each other across the boundaries of human greed, saying, "All riches which come from the earth should be put at the disposal of all, according to God and justice. Earthly goods must be better distributed."

He caught the yearnings of all mankind—regardless of creed—as probably did no other Pope in modern times. In less than five short years he became a great bridge to religious tolerance—and potentialy unity.

As he lay dying with his elderly sister mopping his feverish brow, a group of 10 persons here—only one of whom was Catholic—listened to news broadcasts.

"He was a truly good man," said one of the group, and it wasn't a Catholic. That feeling was typical.

The "fill-in man" had done a superb job. Humanity has lost a great champion, and the problem of the Catholic Church now is—to find such another.

'Dr. Kildare' Banned From Operating Car

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television's Dr. Kildare was banned Tuesday from operating his car on the city's freeways.

Municipal Judge Raymond R. Roberts leveled the penalty on actor Richard Chamberlain for receiving two speeding tickets in a month.

Chamberlain, 27, who plays the young intern on the series, was the first traffic offender affected by Judge Roberts' crack down on speeders. The freeways speed limit is 65 miles per hour.

The judge ordered the actor to stick to slower streets until Aug. 4.

Four other speed violators were given the same penalty.

EXCHANGE PROJECT

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — In 1962, 122 U.S. delegates were exchanged for 126 foreign exchanges from 41 countries under the International Farm Youth Exchange. Since 1948 nearly 3,000 two-way exchanges have taken place, says the University of Illinois.

Pilot Farm Program Conducted in Asia

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) A pilot program of cooperative agriculture and rural development is setting new patterns for Southeast Asia. The Government of Pakistan, the Ford Foundation and Michigan State University have teamed up to develop the program.

Focal point is the East Pakistan Academy for Rural Development at Comilla, to which MSU sends resident advisers. Among features of the program are development of local leaders and research studies on rural development.

'Slice of Life' Dramas Seen In Commercials

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the most fascinating developments of television is the minute—or even 30-second—drama.

They've been around for years, but these wildly abbreviated little dramas are becoming more popular than ever in the commercial areas these days.

There's the cigarette girl who gets her man—or at least an engagement ring — by selling the lonely night club patron the right brand of cigars.

There's the neglected wife whose husband never takes her dancing, or brings her flowers, until she dyes away those dreadful gray hairs. Then, wowie! — it's nothing but the supper clubs and the bossa nova.

These speedy little dramas—complete with conflict and happy endings—are commercials of the Madison Avenue genus called "slice-of-life." Other categories include "demonstration" — which simply show how the product works — and "testimonial," in which somebody stands up and informs us how his headache was cured, his health improved or how white was her wash.

At the moment, "slice-of-life" is vying with candid camera type "testimonial" commercials for top popularity. A possible sleeper is the "magic" commercials — the giant fist smashing out of a washing machine, the tornado whirling over a bottle of cleaning liquid.

But the commercials which are a combination "slice-of-life" and "magic," currently set my mind to dancing. These are the ones where the kids dash out of the house. Suddenly, a disembodied voice, apparently coming from a loudspeaker mounted on the ceiling, accuses the harried housewife of letting the family depart without brushing. Is our housewife frightened or even surprised that Big Brother is monitoring the family scene? Is she startled by the accusing voice? Not at all. She just explains plaintively and patiently that you can't always get them to brush.

Personally, I don't know which would scare me more: Finding a stranger monitoring my toothbrushing habits or a giant living in my washing machine, occasionally thrusting a box of soap into the air.

VICTIMS OF TUBERCULOSIS

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Tuberculosis claims the lives of over 90,000 people each year in East Pakistan, and there are at least 500,000 victims of the disease. These figures were disclosed by Tamizuddin Khan, speaker of Pakistan's National Assembly, while inaugurating an anti-tuberculosis campaign in the province.

Dodgers Swinging Again As Maury Sparks Win

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

It was Dragsville for the Dodgers without Maury Wills. But the fast cat has made the scene again and things are beginning to swing.

Wills, the National League's Most Valuable Player last season with his record 104 stolen bases, rejoined the Dodgers Tuesday night after his latest bout with a bad foot and promptly sparked them out of a losing skid.

He scored both Los Angeles runs, the deciding one after swiping his 12th base of the year in a 2-1 squeaker over the Houston Colts.

During Maury's recent absence, the Dodgers had managed only three victories and had stumbled to seven losses—including five in a row before he got back into the line-up.

By winning, the Dodgers maintained their third-place tie with Chicago's charging Cubs, who knocked off the front-running San Francisco Giants 6-1. Bob Buhl pitched the Cubs to their eighth victory in the last 10 games with a five-hitter, while eight-game winner Billy O'Dell took his first loss.

The Dodgers and Cubs now are three games behind the Giants and 1½ back of the St. Louis Cardinals.

In the only other NL game played, the Milwaukee Braves netted three runs in the ninth inning with the help of reliever Galen Cisco's wildness and beat the New York Mets 3-2. Cincinnati-at-Pittsburgh was rained out, while St. Louis and Philadelphia were not scheduled.

Wills has been plagued this season by injury. On opening day he jammed his left ankle sliding home and was idled a week. Then calcium deposits on a toe of his left foot sent him to the sidelines May 22 and he was out until Tuesday night.

Maury got the Dodgers on the scoreboard early when he led off against Houston's Dick Drott with a walk, raced to third on Jim Gilliam's double, and scampered home on a wild pitch. In the third, Wills singled with one out, stole second and came in on Ron Fairly's single.

Bob Miller blanekd the Colts on four hits through eight innings but couldn't get through the ninth. Carl Warwick chased Miller with a triple and scored on a one-out single by Howie Goss off Ron Perranoski before the relief ace nailed it down.

The Cubs rapped the previously unbeaten O'Dell for nine of their 10 hits and chased the southpaw in the sixth inning. Ernie Banks and Ron Santo each had three hits and two runs batted in for the Cubs, who were aided by Orlando Cepeda's two errors.

Cisco walked across Milwaukee's tying run in the ninth inning and then forced in the winner by hitting pinch batter Mack Jones with a pitch. Prior to their last-inning scramble, the Braves had been stifled on two singles by ex-teammate Carl Willey and were trailing the Mets 2-0.

Hank Aaron got it started with a one-out single, then stole second and scored on Don Dillar's single. Another single by Tommie Aaron and a walk to Joe Torre filled the bases—setting the stage for Willey's departure and Cisco's entrance.

Comets Move To Denver

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Spokane's Western Hockey League franchise moved to Denver Tuesday night, the Spokesman-Review said in a story by sports editor Harry Missildine.

"The National Hockey League's Toronto Maple Leafs brought the Spokane Comets, players, franchise, the works—from principal owner Mel Smith," Missildine said.

"They will operate the Comets as a Denver farm club in the season starting next October."

The newspaper quoted Spokane Comet general manager Roy McBride as saying, "It became awfully clear that the WHL wanted us to move to Denver or sell the franchise and close up in Spokane."

Smith was quoted as saying McBride would not move to Denver with the franchise.

"I understand," said smith, "that Rudy Pilous, recent coach of the Chicago Black Hawks, has the job."

Spokane fielded a professional hockey team in the 1958-59 season anter winning seven Western International Hockey League titles in 12 seasons. The Comets finished in last place in their division of the WHL last season.

The Houston Colts won 11 of 18 games from the Chicago Cubs in 1962 and finished six games ahead of the Cubs in the National League.

Boog Powell Helps Birds Into Lead

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Strongboy John (Boog) Powell, a Paul Bunyan with freckles, hasn't chopped down any trees but he's chopping up many a pitcher while keeping the Baltimore Orioles in the thick of the American League pennant scramble.

Providing Baltimore with a consistent home run threat, the 6-foot-3, 235-pound outfielder slammed a decisive two-run homer as the Orioles cut down the New York Yankees 3-1 Tuesday night and regained first place.

Powell, a 22-year-old left-handed hitter who has learned to harness his Bunyanesque strength, drove his two-run shot off 23-game winner Ralph Terry in the fifth inning. It was his ninth homer of the season and 27th run batted in to go with a respectable .292 batting average.

That's a large step ahead for Powell, who hit only .243 while collecting 15 homers and 53 RBI in his rookie year last season after coming out of the minors with a can't miss label.

Powell's homer gave the Orioles a 1½-game edge over New York. The Chicago White Sox dropped into third place, one game back of Baltimore, by losing to the Los Angeles Angels 1-0 as Dan Osinski pitched a three-hitter.

Elsewhere, home runs by Earl Battey and Bob Allison powered Minnesota to a 5-0 decision over Kansas City behind Jim Perry's four-hitter, Washington's Tom Cheney shut out Boston 1-0 on five hits and Cleveland whipped Detroit 6-4.

Steve Barber started for the Orioles and lasted until the ninth inning when he needed Dick Hall's relief help to become the winningest pitcher in the AL with a 9-4 record. Mickey Mantle accounted for the Yankees' run with his 11th homer as Terry lost is fifth against six victories.

Osinski brought his record to 4-1 and lowered his earned average ot 2.42 by pitching his first shutout in the majors for the Angels fourth triumph in the last five games. The only run off White Sox starter Gary Peters, 3-3, came in the second inning when Felix Torres singled and moved around on a hit batter and Lee Thomas' single.

Battey hit his 11th homer, with the bases empty, off loser Ed Rakow, 6-3, in the second inning and Allison connected for No. 14, with two men on in the third. That was more than enough for Perry, posting his first shutout of the season and bringing his record to 4-3.

The Senators got their lone run off Red Sox starter Earl Wilson, 4-5, when Don Lock connected for his fourth homer in his last four games in the sixth inning. Cheney posted his third shutout with his first victory since May 1.

The Indians got the job done against the Tigers with a five-run outburst in the seventh inning. The key hits were a two-run pinch hit homer by Mike delaHoz and Al Luplow's two-run single.

Rodriguez, Griffith Have Verbal Blows Before Bout

By MURRAY ROSE

Associated Press Sports Writer

GREENFIELD PARK, N.Y., (AP) — "I'm going to get out in front and win all the way. Then everyone will know that I am the rightful champion."

Having gotten that off his chest, welterweight champion Luis Rodriguez went to work today in his final boxing drill for his return title fight with ex-champ Emile Griffith of New York at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

The fun-loving fighter from Miami by way of Cuba won the 147-pound division crown from Griffith on a close but unanimous 15-round decision at Los Angeles last March 21.

That was the night featherweight champion Davey Moore was fatally injured in his losing title bout with Sugar Ramos, another Cuban exile and Rodriguez' stablemate.

Luis' title victory went virtually unnoticed in the hubbub over Moore's hospitalization, and, later, his death.

"The fight wasn't on television, either, and many people still don't know I'm the champion," said Rodriguez at his Tamarack Lodge training camp. "And that Griffith keeps on saying that he got a bum decision. "I'm going to show the people on television that I am the better man. I'm going to get out in front and I'm going to win big—maybe by a knockout."

Luis likes to do his road work in the evening, like many European fighters. The ill-fated Marcel Cerdan, who once held the middleweight title, preferred to train at night, too.

"There are at least two reasons why I like to run at night," said Luis. "Like Cerdan I figure I fight at night so why not train in the same hours you fight."

"Then I don't like to get up in the morning. When I was a boy I had to get up very early. Now I like to sleep late, sometimes to 11 or 12 o'clock in the morning. This, I think, makes me very strong at night. I want to be very strong for Griffith because I am going to show him who's boss."

"He talks big," said Griffith, who winds up his training today at nearby Kiamesha Lake. "I'm going to knock him out and take back what's mine."

By HENRY W. THORNBERRY

UPI Sports Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) — Downing Gray, 24-year-old Walker Cup golf star from Pensacola, Fla., joined the American parade to the sidelines of the British Amateur tournament today when he was eliminated on the 20th hole by Morrison Zuill of Scotland.

Gray's second-round defeat left only 13 survivors from a 39-man contingent that had been regarded one of the strongest ever entered by the United States in this 78-year-old tournament. Of eight U.S. Walker Cup players that began play on Monday, only four were left to contest the third round.

Gray was one of seven Yanks scheduled to play morning second-round matches .The winners were due to play third - round matches in the afternoon along with seven Yanks who won Tuesday.

William Castleman Jr. of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., quickly joined Gray on the sidelines when he was eliminated 2 and 1 by Mike Burgess of England.

Mike Bonallack of England, the leading British favorite for the title, advanced to the third round with a 4 and 3 victory over Gregory Young of Ireland.

Nine Yanks failed to survive their opening tests Monday and 16 were chased to the sidelines Tuesday, including U.S. champion Labron Harris of Stillwater, Okla., and fellow Walker Cuppers Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., and Bob Gardner of Essex Fells, N.Y.

Seven of the U.S. survivors were scheduled to play second round matches this morning. The lucky ones will join the seven other Yank contenders in third round play this afternoon.

Harris fell behind early in his second round match with England's Lionel Smith and never caught up as he bowed, 2 and 1.

Patton was carried to the 18th green by Jim Pirie, a 25-year-old dairy farmer from Scotland. Pirie won the opening round match when Patton three-putted, the last time from four feet.

Gardner became the third U.S. Walker Cupper to bite the dust when he dropped a 2 and 1 decision to Scotland's Dick Smith.

Davies advanced into the third round with a 4 and 3 victory over England's Peter Davidson, Updegraff needed an extra hole before downing Richard Gardner-Hill of England, and Sikes won his second rounder against Scotland's Gordon Cosh, 3 and 2. Smith posted a 4 and 2 opening victory over Scotland's Marshall Douglas.

1,000 Youngsters Active In Young America Baseball

Baseball uniforms took the place of report cards for some 1,000 Colorado Springs youngsters this week as the Young America Baseball program takes shape for the summer season.

All this week Park and Recreation Department officials were busy assigning youngsters to their respective teams and handing out baseball uniforms. Tentatively, the Young America Baseball teams should take to the five ball parks in division competition by late next week.

Sponsored jointly by the Young American Commission and the Colorado Springs Recreation Department, the Young America Baseball program is divided into five divisions: Rookie, third grade or eight-year-old youngsters; Lightweight, fourth and fifth grades; Middleweight, sixth and seventh grades; Heavyweight eighth and ninth grades; and Junior Men's Division, 10th and 11th grades.

Altho Young America League officials have announced that the maximum quota is filled and the registration period is over, youngsters that desire to be placed on the waiting list should contact the department at 634-4881. It is expected that some registered players won't be able to play and will have to be replaced.

The Junior Men's Division, composed of teams from Wasson, Palmer, Manitou Springs, and possibly Cheyenne Mountain High, will play at Memorial Park Field No. 1. (Sky Sox Park) and the Heavyweight teams' games are slated for Monument Valley Park. Both parks are equipped with lights. The other parks that will be utilized include Bonny Park, Vermijo Park, Audubon Park, and North Junior Park.

Missouri Whips Billikens; Moves on to World Series

OMAHA (AP) — Missouri filled out the NCAA College World Series field Tuesday by winning the District 5 berth from St. Louis University and now has the chance to erase what Coach John Simmons has tabbed the embarrassment of 1962.

The Missouri club was on the verge of losing out on a chance to return to the series for a second straight year when St. Louis won the opener of a Tuesday twin-bill, 2-1, but the Tigers came back with a 7-1 victory for a 2-1 edge in the best-of-three playoff at Columbia, Mo.

Simmons earlier had said he and his players were hungry for a return trip to Omaha because of the fate that befell the Tigers last year.

Missouri was sent to the sidelines then on two straight defeats.

How much that rankled the Tigers can be seen from their previous record in three appearances in the series. In those outings the Tigers never had failed to reach the finals. Once they won the championship.

Play opens Monday with Penn State meeting Arizona and Florida State playing Western Michigan in afternoon games. Texas will play Southern California in the opening night game with Missouri and Holy Cross closing out the opening round.

Battle of Bigots

The Amateur Athletic Union and the United States Track Federation, obviously impressed by the expert sabotage job done on recent U.S. entries in world competition, are currently plotting an even more ambitious adventure in humiliation for this nation's sports representatives.

Their task is difficult. To surpass the ridiculous scene of a U. S. baseball team getting clobbered in the Pan American Games and our basketball squad finishing fourth in the World Tournament will take some doing. But officials of these organizations have long since won their gold medals for blundering. It's safe to suppose their latest venture in ineptitude will succeed.

This, of course, refers to the return to the firing line by the two factions early this week with the tremendous series of track and field meets between the U. S. and Russia as the target. Before the AAU and the college group have completed this latest round of bickering, it appears safe to surmise that the historic series of dual meets will have met its untimely end.

The blame this time around apparently belongs with the collegians who initiated a move in the East to pull college runners out of AAU meets. This would include the National AAU Championships in St. Louis later this month, the competition designated as a qualifier for the U. S. team which is scheduled to go to Russia.

Figuring that around 75 per cent of our top track and field stars are still campus residents, it doesn't take much immagination to conjure up a preview of what sort of a U. S. representative will emerge if the collegians are forced to miss the National AAU. The U. S. men's team, which has never previously lost to the Russians, would have a difficult time whipping the Soviet women.

The eventual result will probably be the cancellation of the meet. The Russians have little stomach for running against a squad of second-rate athletes, even tho our officials would apparently not be bothered by sending such a team. Humiliation has been a by-product of most of their recent business and they cannot be expected to change the format at this late date.

Taking sides with one group or the other is nothing more than a misadventure. Both are equally guilty in creating the chaos that has plagued our amateur program for months. What must be especially disgusting to the average sports fan is the fact that there are not any real issues. The problems have all been manufactured in a climate of unreasonable attitudes.

One of the failings of amateur sports in this country is that the controlling organizations invariably are a breeding place for bigots. This is not only true of the groups involved in this contraversy altho they certainly share the lead at present. But there are always enough of these self-important, irresponsible individuals to go around. Locally, those who have had dealings with the pompous representatives of the U. S. Golf Association during national tournaments at the Broadmoor will have some idea of what types are involved in the track warfare.

This, then, is the primary problem. It is not alone the AAU, nor is it only the NCAA (which covers a multitude of sins in addition to the Track Federation). There is room for both of these groups in fostering an excellent track and field program in this country and there is no reason why there should be such a conflict of interest as our citizens are being led to suppose.

The actual conflict is one of personalities. The AAU had a monopoly in track and field plus the heavy hand in selection of our international teams for years. The NCAA, which was supplying the majority of the athletes, suddenly decided that it deserved the control and the battle was on. The AAU has been determined not to relinquish any of its power; the NCAA wants it all, anyhow. Thus, with this type of attitude, any realistic compromise is ineffectual.

In reality, a very workable system could easily come out of this arrangement. With the two groups working in harmony, our athletes would be provided more and better competition and the rewards would be quickly noticeable on overseas trips.

Competition to qualify U. S. stars for international events is not an insoluable problem either. The two groups could co-sponsor such competitions, ideally, and the result would undoubtedly be the strongest possible amateur teams to represent the U. S.

This, of course, is all a pipedream. With the present administrators intact neither organization is going to budge. Instead, due to the whims of a few, the nation's overall program in international athletics is rapidly deteriorating to the point that it will soon be an embarassment even to those who have little inerest in sports.

With athletics considered as such a valuable force in the present-day propaganda warfare, there's little doubt that eventually the government is going to step in. This will provide a way out, but it will be an unfortunate ending to the entire sordid mess.

Meanwhile, as an alternate plan, we might gather officials from the AAU and NCAA and send them to Moscow. Most wouldn't know starting blocks from a stop watch. But it would serve them properly to find out what it's like to represent the United States — and lose.

West Merchants, Bernardo's Take Lead in Softball

The Westside Merchants and Benardo's took over the initial lead in the City Softball League by winning the openers Tuesday night at Memorial Park. The Merchants thumped Budweiser, 10-2, and Benardo's blanked Jolly Plumbing, 10-0.

In other action, the Telephone Co. won the only Industrial League game of the evening with a 10-3 decision over Clifton Precision and Alfred's Mobile Homes grabbed a 17-6 win over the Stealers in the Women's League.

Tuesday, the Merchants were held to a 2-2 tie into the bottom of the fourth but brought in eight runs on five hits, three Budweiser errors and four stolen bases to win the game. Renne Ballinger pitched a no-hitter and struck out 11 batters in leading Benardo's shutout.

Hobie Johnson hit a grand slam home run in the first inning to highlight the Telephone Co. win. Herm Jackson pitched one-hit ball for the winners. Errors played a big role in the Women's League win by Alfred's as Pat Pratt paced her team's victory with two hits. This game was over in three innings, Benardo's took five frames and the other two only four innings.

New Eruption Rekindles NCAA-AAU Hostilities

By GARY KALE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, and champion miler Jim Beatty joined Gen. Douglas MacArthur today in deploring the latest outbreak of hostilities between the NCAA and the AAU.

Wilson urged that MacArthur call the opposing sides together "in the very near future" to forestall another track "war" that would weaken the U. S. team for its dual meet against Russia in Moscow next month.

The Olympic leader said in Chicago that the current dispute "apparently has come out of a difference of interpretation of Gen. MacArthur's March 12 ruling" when the five-star general first mediated the AAU-NCAA squabble over control of track meets.

Beatty asked the warring factions to discontinue their feud because "it would be a shame if this summer in Moscow the men's track and field team of Russia defeated the U. S. men's team for the first time."

SPARKS NEW FEUD

The latest eruption was caused by the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference ECAC announcement Monday that member schools should not participate in AAU-sanctioned track meets unless sponsors of these events obtained sanctions from the U. S. Track and Field Federation, a wing of the NCAA.

This immediately produced an outburst from MacArthur, since a new war could prevent NCAA athletes from competing in the AAU championships at St. Louis June 21-22. Without USTFF sanction, many of the nation's outstanding college track stars would shun the event that selects members for the meeting against Russia in Moscow.

"I am reluctant to believe that either of these groups, directly or indirectly, intend to abbrogate their given word to the detriment of their country and the athletes whose activities they control," MacArthur said in a statement that urged a halt to the new flare-up.

HIT NCAA STAND

Angry AAU officials charged the NCAA with reneging on the agreement that MacArthur hammered out early this year.

The AAU maintained that MacArthur's ruling under this agreement gave it sole sanctioning power in the United States for open track and field competition.

Some NCAA officials, however, never accepted that edict because it failed to grant the USTFF's proposal for dual track meet sanctions.

Eastern League Hurlers Almost Get No-Hitters

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Right-handers Gary Modrell of the Reading Red Sox and Bob Bishop of the Springfield Indians entered the ninth inning of an Eastern League game Tuesday night — both working on no-hitters.

Both lost them in the ninth and Reading won 1-0 on a single by Gene Giannian and Tom Williams' triple off Bishop.

Modrell had lost the season's opener here when Bishop beat him —on a no-hitter. He gave up one hit this time.

Breakup of Ice Dynasty Continues in Montreal

By DICK BACON
United Press International

MONTREAL (UPI) — the once awesome Montreal Canadiens hockey dynasty is only a hollow shell today following the passing of four more Habs from the scene through trades and waivers.

The Canadiens, who built what was once one of the best hockey machines ever to grace a National Hockey League rink, Tuesday traded away Jacques Plante, a 34-year-old goaltender considered by many the best netminder the league has ever seen, and smooth-skating forwards Donnie Marshall, 31, and Phil Goyette, 30, to the New York Rangers.

In exchange, the Canadiens received another 34-year-old goalie, Lorne Gump Worlsey, and three nondescript forwards, Dave Balon, Leon Rochefort and Len Ronson.

The fourth Canadien to leave was Tom Johnson, a 35-year-old defenseman who was picked up for the $20,000 waiver price by the Boston Bruins. Johnson, named the best defenseman in the league two years ago and a 14-year veteran in the NHL, was out the last half of the 1962-63 season with an eye injury that still hasn't healed.

The Rangers, who until a few years ago wouldn't get "the right time" from Montreal, now have five men in their lineup who were members of the Candiens' great Cup teams. In addition to the latest trio, the blueshirts also have defensemen Doug Harvey and Al Junior Langlois.

The latest deal left the Canadiens with only four members from their championship heyday of the late 1950s — Bernie Boom Boom Geoffrion, Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard and Claude Provost.

While the Montreal —New York trade eclipsed everything else during the second day of the NHL annual meeting, there were these other developments:

—Onetime Montreal center Billy Reay accepted an offer to succeed Rudy Pilous as coach of the Chicago Black Hawks.

—The Detroit Red Wings spent $80,000 drafting four players from the minor leagues: Montreal drafted two and Chicago, Boston and New York drafted one each.

—Detroit and Chicago made a minor player deal in which the Wings received minor league goalie Roger Crozier and defenseman Ron Ingram in return for a player to be named later.

—Three former NHL players, Ebbie Goodfello, Joe Primeau and Earl Seibert, and onetime referee Bobby Hewitson were elected to the Hall of Fame.

The NHL executives were scheduled to complete their annual meeting today with the intraleague draft and the final decisions by the six club owners. All clubs were required to submit their lists of 18 protected players, plus two goalies, Tuesday night.

Players not protecetd are subject to today's draft at the same $20,000 price.

Tigers Land Five Players On District Nine

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Missouri's College World Series-bound Tigers landed five players on the all-NCAA District 5 team selected today by baseball coaches of the Big Eight and Missouri Valley conferences.

Big Eight players swept all 10 places on the mythical team announced by Colorado's Frank Prentup, chairman of the District 5 baseball committee.

Of the all-stars, only three are seniors and none is a repeater from last year's team. The upper classmen are first baseman Gene McArtor, Missouri; rightfielder Eddie Peach, Oklahoma; and pitcher Carl Nelson of Kansas.

The team's top hitter is Missouri catcher John Sevcik, with a .387 average. Colorado's Leon Mavity, the leftfielder, is the leading slugger. He hit six homers and had 46 total bases during the campaign.

Other selections are:

Second baseman Bob Price, Missouri; shortstop John Wilkins, Oklahoma State; third baseman Dave Harvey, Missouri; centerfielder Ernie Recob, Kansas State and pitcher Jack Stroud of Missouri.

Stroud had a 3-0 record during the season. Nelson's record was 5-5.

Wilkins, Recob and Stroud are sophomores.

Jack Nicklaus leads the standings with $57,615. Tony Lema, who finished third in the festival tourney, ranks second with $47,696.

Each division will have 24 bowlers competing each Thursday for 12 weeks at Ute Lanes. Bowlers will pair off in a head-to-head three game match and each kegler will bowl against everyone in his division during the 12-week period.

Ney Leads Spokane Past Denver, 4-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Nen has the good sense to finish what he starts.

The Spokane first baseman opened his team's scoring Tuesday night when he tripled and came home on a single in the fourth inning and closed it with a single in the ninth that drove in the winning run in a 4-3 decision over Denver.

In other Pacific Coast League action, the Dallas-Fort Worth Rangers got a better hold on the Southern Division leadership when Lee Stange pitched them to a 4-0 shutout victory over second-place San Diego and Hawaii downed Oklahoma City 6-1.

Nen wasn't Spokane's only hero. Relief pitcher Ken Rowe, the winner, proved he was as capable with the bat as against it by opening the ninth inning rally with a single. Right fielder Al Ferrara caught a ball high on the fence in the first and then knocked a homer with one on in the fifth.

Stange fanned 15 San Deigo batters and allowed only three hits, as he pitched his second shutout in a row and his fifth win of the season against one defeat. Sammy Ellis, the loser, struck out 10 before retiring in the eighth, and the total of 25 strikeouts set a league record.

Dick Simpson paced Hawaii's attack with a three-run homer in the sixth inning. Oklahoma's Al Heist spoiled winner Dick Sovde's shutout when he belted a homer in the fifth.

Ring Magazine Names Pastrano Fighter of Month

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Pastrano, who pulled one of boxing's most startling upsets last Saturday night when he took the world light heavyweight title from Harold Johnson, is Ring Magazine's Fighter-of-the-Month.

The 27-year-old Pastrano scored a split 15-round decision over Johnson at Las Vegas after entering the ring a prohibitive underdog. Johnson was dropped to the familiar spot as No. 1 contender—a position he held for some time during Archie Moore's long reign as light-heavy king.

Former champion Ingemar Johnsson's retirement brought about a slight change in Ring's heavyweight rankings. Wayne Bethea of New York made the ratings in the 10th spot.

Germany's Erich Schoppner also retured, leaving a place in the light heavyweight listings. Allen Thomas of Chicago moved in, at No. 10.

Ring still recognizes no junior welterweight champion, but says that title will go to the winner of the june 18th bout between Eddie Perkins of Gary, Indiana, and Roberto Cruz of the Philippines.

Rocky Expected To Take Public Plunge Into Race

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Associates said today that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has marked October on his calendar for an expected public plunge into the 1964 GOP presidential nomination contest.

Rockefeller's performance at an Albany news conference Tuesday strengthened the conviction of Republican leaders that the governor has every intention of fighting for the nomination. One of them said he had been informed this would be confirmed by an October announcement.

Rockefeller himself brought up the matter of his political future. When reporters popped questions at him, he replied that he still consideres himself a potential candidate for the nomination and does not believe his remarriage will damage his chances of getting it.

The governor may have struck a key note in his campaign to overcome any political liability connected with his marriage to Margaretta Fitler Murphy, divorced mother of four children, when he told reporters: "One has to see life and the problems of life to understand it. Love and understanding are the two greatest forces in life."

Nobody yet has been able to gauge accurately the political effect of Rockefeller's remarriage after a divorce from his wife of 31 years.

New York Republican State Chairman Fred A. Young said in Watertown that the governor's popularity had diminished "but not as much as I initially thought it would."

Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucy, who gets about the country as chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, said in a Washington interview that party officials generally are adopting a "wait and see" attitude.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a Rockefeller rooter, thought that time might blunt the criticism of the governor's actions. He seemed convinced that Rockefeller had explored all the political implications before the marriage and decided that he could surmount the difficulties it might impose. ..

Javits said he expects Rockefeller to seek the nomination "in an active way" while remaining for the time being an officially announced candidate.

The New York senator indicated he has no doubt Rockefeller is prepared to battle for the prize. He said such a course would be "characteristic of the governor."

This probably will mean, Javits said, that Rockefeller will put his chances for the nomination on the line in a selected number of next year's primaries.

Landing Misjudged By Airline Pilot

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., (AP)—An Eastern Air Lines DC7 with 17 passengers aboard landed safely at Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport Tuesday night, five miles shy of its intended landing site, Broward International Airport.

The Broward tower said the pilot apparently misjudged his landing. EAL officials said the runway at the small airport posed a takeoff problem.

Actor Arlen Booked For Drunken Driving

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Veteran actor Richard Arlen was booked on suspicion of drunken driving Tuesday night after officers spotted him moving slowly among the whizzing cars on the Hollywood Freeway.

Arlen 62, was released on $276 bail and ordered to appear in municipal court Thursday.

Two motorcycle officers said Arlen was driving between 25 and 30 miles an hour on the freeway. The speed limit is 65 m.p.h.

How to Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

THE ASTHMATIC CHILD

A Texas mother from San Angelo has a real problem. She writes: "I have a 13-year-old son who has had bronchial asthma since he was 19 months old. We are worried about his health and his school work and want your opinion. I must admit his asthma is not as severe as it has been but recently, his sinuses have been giving him trouble, causing severe headache."

The adage that tots outgrow asthma is true occasionally but this child demonstrates the more frequent situation. It is senseless to wait for spontaneous recovery because other problems crop up to complicate the picture.

There is no substitute for finding and eliminating the cause. Pollen is suspected when asthma recurs at the same time each year. Housedust, molds, animal dander, and feathers are possibilities if the child is plagued by wheezing all year 'round. Other clews are obtained when the attack follows eating certain foods, a respiratory infection, or an upsetting emotional situation.

When the origin cannot be found, there is nothing to do but give medicines that offer temporary relief. These include epinephrine, isoproterenol, an antihistaminic agent, potassium iodide, or—finally—one of the corticosteroids.

But this is only part of the story. This woman is concerned about her youngster's health and his school work. Most children with a chronic ailment develop anxieties and emotional difficulties at school and in the home. These factors often aggravate existing asthma.

Change of climate is one of the oldest approaches to the problems of the asthmatic. I am not familiar with the climate in San Angelo, Texas, but Arizona and New Mexico often are called ideal. Colorado and Florida also are mentioned.

But moving has its drawbacks and may not be successful unless the cause of the asthma is known and a trial period has established the fact that the new location is helpful. When the wheezing youngster benefits, authorities may give credit to the separation of the child from the family rather than to the warm dry air. Here again, the emotional aspects of chronic astham enter the picture.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on bronchial asthma if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Sugar After Candy

H. J. writes: Will sugar show in the blood of a nondiabetic after she has eaten a lot of candy?

Reply

Yes. When candy is eaten by anyone, the sugar level in the blood will go up within an hour and then return to normal. The same happens in the diabetic except that the level remains elevated for two or more hours thereafter.

Measles Vaccine

Mrs. W. writes: Is the measles vaccine now given to all infants like the other protective shots?

Reply

No, in that the exact prophylactic program has not been worked out on a national basis. But public health authoritiies are watching the results carefully.

Prostate and Fertility

W. T. writes: Could a man become a father after his prostate is removed?

Reply

Yes, theoretically. The prostate does not manufacture the sperm. It forms some of the fluid in which these germ cells are carried to the outside.

Exercise and Veins

W. D. writes: Can a person with varicose veins of the knee safely dance, skate, and bowl?

Reply

Yes, provided there are no complications such as swollen ankles or varicose ulcers.

Today's Health Hint

Not all breat lumps are malignant but all should be investigated.

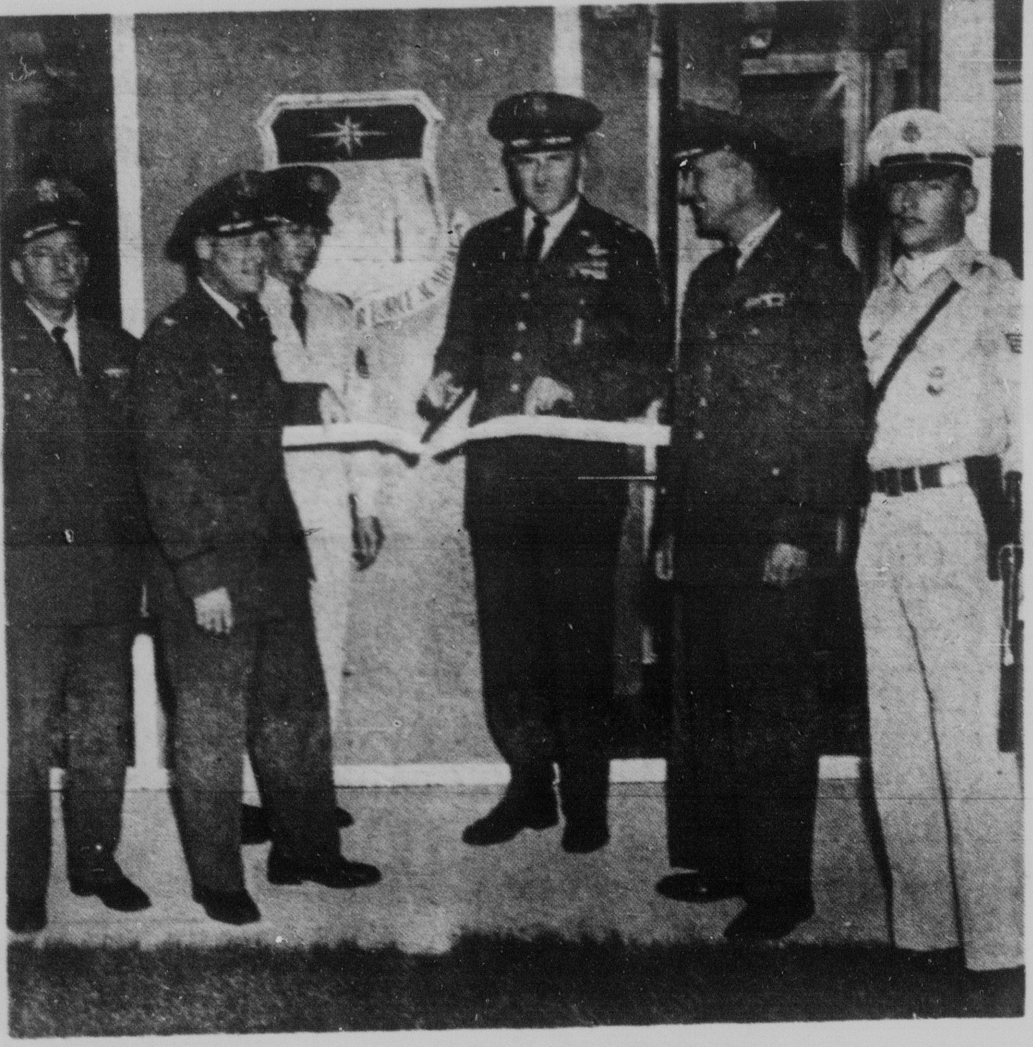
PLEA

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (UPI) — Auto parts dealer Mannie Loeb, robbed 19 times in as many months, offered to feed any hungry robbers "if they'll just leave me alone."

Yerba mate, used to make a tea-like drink in South America, is an export of Paraguay.

BUSY SHEARS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The most used kitchen utensil is neither the coffee pot nor the bread knife. It's the kitchen shears, reports the National Notion Association.



NEW LOOK—June Week visitors to the Air Force Academy were greeted by a new look at both north and south gates. Construction of new gate houses at both entrances was completed just in time for graduation. Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren (center) snips ribbon to officially place new structures in operation. Also present for the ceremony were (left to right) Lt. Col. R. S. Warden, DCS/engineering; Col. Edward J. Stealy, deputy base commander; M. Sgt. Stanley Kus, Air Police superintendent; Col. Howard J. Withycombe, chief of staff; and Airman 1.C. Stanley Tomkiewicz, air policeman on duty at the north gate.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I hear everyone talk of being a Christian. Just what does it mean to be a Christian? Can you tell me without using a lot of theological language? —H. G.

ANSWER: Your question reminds me of Nicodemus, who, when told by Christ of the new birth, said: "How can these things be?" I have read hundreds of books about Christianity, and yet there remains an element of mystery which cannot be neatly rationalized. The Bible says, "The carnal mind conceiveth not the things of the Spirit."

The word "Christian" means "Christlike." The question then naturally arises, "How can we earthbound creatures become like Christ?"

It is obvious that a miraculous change must take place. The Bible calls this, "The New Birth." Physical birth is involuntary, but spiritual birth is voluntary. When a person finds his life empty, purposeless, and inadequate, renounces the old life, and embraces the Life which Christ offers, he experiences spiritual birth. His life will transcend this physical existence and take on tributes of Christ. Hatred is replaced by an overpowering love; anxiety is replaced by a serene faith; self-centeredness is supplanted by concern for others and love for God.

To be a Christian is not just an idle dream or empty theory. Millions can say, "I live by the faith of the Son of God who loved me and gave Himself for me."

Damage Suit Filed Over Auto Accident

BOULDER (UPI)— A $95,000 damage suit stemming from an automobile collision in January 1962 was filed in Boulder District Court Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Dougherty filed the suit against Charles P. LaGrossa and Donald D. Webb. The Doughertys said they were involved in a two-car accident with a car driven by LaGrossa, and accused Webb, a passenger with LaGrossa, of striking Dougherty during an argument after the collision. Dougherty said he received neck and back injuries in the crash.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I hear everyone talk of being a Christian. Just what does it mean to be a Christian? Can you tell me without using a lot of theological language? —H. G.

ANSWER: Your question reminds me of Nicodemus, who, when told by Christ of the new birth, said: "How can these things be?" I have read hundreds of books about Christianity, and yet there remains an element of mystery which cannot be neatly rationalized. The Bible says, "The carnal mind conceiveth not the things of the Spirit."

The word "Christian" means "Christlike." The question then naturally arises, "How can we earthbound creatures become like Christ?"

It is obvious that a miraculous change must take place. The Bible calls this, "The New Birth." Physical birth is involuntary, but spiritual birth is voluntary. When a person finds his life empty, purposeless, and inadequate, renounces the old life, and embraces the Life which Christ offers, he experiences spiritual birth. His life will transcend this physical existence and take on tributes of Christ. Hatred is replaced by an overpowering love; anxiety is replaced by a serene faith; self-centeredness is supplanted by concern for others and love for God.

To be a Christian is not just an idle dream or empty theory. Millions can say, "I live by the faith of the Son of God who loved me and gave Himself for me."

Damage Suit Filed Over Auto Accident

BOULDER (UPI)— A $95,000 damage suit stemming from an automobile collision in January 1962 was filed in Boulder District Court Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Dougherty filed the suit against Charles P. LaGrossa and Donald D. Webb. The Doughertys said they were involved in a two-car accident with a car driven by LaGrossa, and accused Webb, a passenger with LaGrossa, of striking Dougherty during an argument after the collision. Dougherty said he received neck and back injuries in the crash.

Kennedy Has Tools to Hold '63 Wheat Production Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture department predicted total consumption of feed grains in the 1962-63 marketing year would be around 154 million tons, about the same as in 1961-62.

The disappearance of this amount would leave a carryover into 1963-64 of about 61 million tons, down 11 million tons from the carryover into 1962-63.

The Department said consumption of corn during October-Mar. totaled slightly more han 2.2 billion bushels, about the same as the record quantity used in that period of 1961-62. Total disappearance of the key livestock feed for the marketing year is expected to be around 4 billion bushels, about the same as in 1961-62. This would leave a carryover into 1963-64 of about 1.3 billion bushels, down 340 million bushels from a year earlier.

Feeders have used sorghum grain so far in 1962-63 a little above the 1961-62 rate, and carryover stocks are expected to be reduced to around 625 million bushels. A year earlier the sorghum grain carryover was 661 million bushels. Total consumption of oats and barley in 1962-63 is expected to be a little below that of a year earlier. The carryover may be a little larger than the 124 million bushels in surplus a year earlier.

The Department said feed grain prices have risen about 10 per cent since last fall, replacing generally good demand from livestock feeders and a tightening of "free" supplies of orn and sorghum grain.

The Department said conditions have been more favorable this spring for field preparation and for planting of feed crops than in early 1962. Preparation and planting of feed grains was ahead of normal in much of the Midwest, the Agency said.

Farm Fire Losses Hit All-Time High

Fires cost American farmers $175 million in 1962, an all-time high and seven per cent more than the $163 million loss in 1961.

Farm fires continue to hit about two out of every 100 farms each year. The "burning rate" (per cent of value destroyed) for farm and rural property is about six times that of urban property, according to annual reports of state fire marshalls.

Buildings and their contents accounted for about 85 per cent of losses as reported by 226 farmers' mutual fire insurance companies.

Dwellings and other contents accounted for 42 per cent of the losses, barns and their contents, 27 per cent; and other out buildings, including rural schools and churches, 16 per cent.

Machinery and equipment suffered a six per cent loss. About 90 per cent of livestock losses paid were due to lightning.

SOME STEER—Dwight Barhite, junior contestant, spurs his balky steer to no avail. Wearing the standard crash helmet, Barhite finally got his "critter" to move a little which in the end proved to be too much as the young rider was bucked to the sawdust in Reed's Indoor Arena. Winner of the junior boy's steer riding event was Ronald Ary from Del Norte with a score of 152. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

OVER THE TOP—Steve Wilson, Colorado Springs, tried his best to stay with the twisting steer during the rodeo but was flipped off in short time. Wilson, one of the junior contestants, received much applause for his spectacular "flip" but no score. Girl contestants and junior boys rode steers while senior boys had to tackle big bulls, including a string of tough Scotch Highlanders owned by Gene Reed. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

JOYCE AND "JOSEPHINE"—Joyce Watters, senior girl contestant from Cheraw, wrestles with 5-year old "Josephine" in an attempt to tie her up in record time during the Saturday matinee of the Colorado Junior Championship rodeo at Reed's Ranch. "Josephine" managed to slip away and dash Joyce's hopes for scoring. Winner of the event was Jerry Bond, of Ordway, who tied all 70 pounds of the old goat in 20.8 seconds.

Junior Rodeo Is Proving Grounds For Future Big-Time Circuit Stars

A total of 92 youngsters aboard horses, steers and bulls raced against time last weekend for championship titles in the 8th annual Colorado Junior Rodeo Assn. meet at Reed's Indoor Arena.

With hundreds of spectators cheering them on to victory, the young bronc busters, bull riders, calf ropers and goat tyers performed with skill and precision.

The Junior Rodeo boosters who managed the rodeo, headed by hard for many months to attract top young riders and plan the fast-moving, event-full rodeo which went off without a noticeable hitch.

Adults who love horses and the rodeo game in general are willing to put forth effort for this annual Junior Rodeo for they realize that an estimated one-third of the current professional rodeo roster is made up of former junior champs.

Along with the Inter-Collegiate Rodeo Assn., and the National High School Rodeo Assn., the American Junior Rodeo Assn. is decidedly the tested proving grounds for the future pros who make rodeo a lusty, growing multi-million dollar sport in 37 states and four Canaidan provinces.

Along with rodeo's growth, the competitors have prospered. In 1962, the world champion all-around titlist, Tom Nesmith, won $32,611 in competition and pocketed another $5,800 in donated cash awards.

For new title holders, the Rodeo Cowboy's Assn. guarantees $24,000 in cash, gold and silver belt buckles valued at $275 each and trophy saddles.

The spectators who witnessed the Colorado Junior Championship Rodeo Saturday and Sunday saw daring athletic timing, outstanding livestock and future rodeo champs.

Sixteen-year old Virgil Lee Lawson, named 1963 senior champion, roped a calf in fast 12.8 time and went on to take points in bull riding and bareback riding. If Virgil can win the championship title for the next two years in junior rodeo competition, he will also earn a college scholarship from the association.

Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lawson of Wetmore, has an early start and a good lead toward becoming a top rodeo star.

Rodeo is high action for the contestant and spectator, but behind the scenes is a cast of people who make the event "go."

Working with Thompson were members of the Colorado Junior Rodeo Board of Directors including L. A. McElhinny, vice president who served as aerna director; Bud Shepard, secretary, and Chuck Brenner, treasurer; Gene Reed, stock contractor, Keith Hook, Buddy Babcock, Ray Kranz and George Moody.

Bob Phelps was arena announcer for the two-day rodeo and judges were Ron Phillips, Las Vegas, Nev., and Don Wilkerson, Colorado Springs.

Bruce Van Dyck and Fred Fink were the clowns who proved to be worth more than laughs when it came to distracting the bulls and steers after successfully tossing off a rider. Pick-up men were Jim Ricken and Benny Bar.

Timers were Mary Lou Conde, Virginia Shaver, Helen Williams and Cherie Mitchie and the secretarial staff included Jean Best, Connie Lou French, Carla Flutcher, Chris Touhy, Midge Smartt, Barbara Shephard, Donna Brock, Etta Reed and Agnes Parker.

First aid stations were manned under the direction of Col. Bill Bowers and nurses on duty were Mrs. Eugene B. Lewis, Mrs. Norman Harloff and Mrs. Kenneth G. Rounds. Dr. A. L. Ingerick was the physician on call.

Tho there were lots of bumps and bruises, only one accident required medical attention. Injured was Al Cordingley from Littleton who was released from Penrose Hospital Sunday after treatment. The accident occurred in saddle bronc event when cordingley got caught in his rigging.

The Pikes Peak Rangerettes performed their precision drills between rodeo events and music was provided by an enthusiastic group of 30 volunteers from the Academy Junior High School band directed by Larry Perkins.

Drought Tips

By Forest McWilliams
County Extension Agent

Drouth range grazing can cause calving troubles the following year, according to James Sprague, extension livestock nutrition specialist at Colorado State University.

Sprague says cows may not come in heat the year following a diet of short range feed and attributes three reasons to the situation: lack of phosphorus, lack of vitamin A and lack of energy.

With a phosporus deficiency, cows may show no symptoms other than failure to come into heat. Phosphorus supplement should be fed to cows on dry range in the summer as well as in winter.

Symptoms of phosphorus deficiency that may show in a cowherd are lack of appetite and drop in milk production. Cows may have breeding difficulties without these symptoms, however.

Cows with a Vitamin A deficiency are likely to abort or have weak or dead calves and they are likely to retain the afterbirth.

An early symptom of vitamin A deficiency is night blindness. If cows run into fences or feedbunks in the twilight for no apparent reason they may be suffering from night blindness caused by lack of vitamin A.

If cows have birth problems from lack of vitamin A they are not likely to come into heat until they get green feed or vitamin A supplement. Drouth grass has good energy, but cows do not get enough total feed to supply the energy they need. This keeps them from coming into heat.

Flushing cows following calving and before breeding gives extra energy and helps insure a calf crop the next year.

Any one of these deficiencies may cause breeding and calving troubles but they are likely to occur together on drouth range. This makes the problem even greater than any single deficiency.

Lawn Rejuvenation Tips From the Professionals

(This is another article prepared as a public service by the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association and its contents are specifically applicable to this region.)

How to rejuvenate an old lawn or how to start a new lawn where there has been a lawn at one time are questions often asked by home-owners.

Let's consider that you have an old lawn that has not been properly cared for and yet, there are not too many shade trees growing close by. However, this lawn is spotty and you are not satisfied with it, but the soil is in fairly good shape.

First of all, rake it thoroughly, in two or three different directions, removing all dead grass, leaves, etc. Then re-seed, raking the seed in and applying an average quantity of well-ground organic fertilizer.

Now let's consider that you have an old lawn that has eroded above the sidewalk grade, or you have an old lawn that looks very bad and there are a number of large shade trees close by.

There is only one way to have a decent lawn if these conditions prevail you must remove all soil at least four to six inches below the sidewalk grade and replace it with a good soil mivture composed of three parts of good virgin top soil mixed with one part peat moss and one part cow manure.

This not only removes the soil completely which is lacking in nutrients due to the large shade trees present, but it also removes a number of the surface feeder roots which, if left near the finish grade, will soon destroy the new lawn. The remaining procedure is identical to planting any new lawn.

There are a number of grasses recommended for shady areas, however, it has been the experiences of the Nurserymen's Association that the regular Kentucky Blue Grass and clover mixture is as good as any in the Colorado Springs area.

Your local nurseryman also has available perennial grass mixes other than blue grass mix that are often used in back areas or on steep slopes where it is not desirous to have blue grass, due to the maintenance and the cost of seeding. The seed itself is somewhat less in price than blue grass; however, the big saving is not the seed.

These grass mixes do not require the perfect seed bed that is necessary for blue grass. It may be broadcast and harrowed in, if the area is large enough; otherwise, it must be thoroughly tilled in to a depth of approximately one inch. It may be sown at any time the ground is thawed sufficiently, although the Colorado Nurserymen's Association advises that it is best to sow the seed from March through September.

These perennial grass mixes may be sown on any soil. The condition of the soil may be very poor, but you will still have a nice stand of grass. At maturity some mixtures look very much like blue grass and require little watering and mowing. It is recommended, though, to water often at first in order to get it started as soon as possible.

Just a few points now in the case of an established blue grass lawn. It has already been mentioned that one should try to fertilize at least twice a year. As you know, it takes considerable time to water our lawns here in Colorado Springs. A good deal of the time spent in watering could be eliminated if watered properly: that is, to give the lawn a thorough soaking from one to three time a week, depending on the weather, rather than to give it a light sprinkling every day. The light sprinkling is actually damaging to lawns since it will merely encourage the grass roots to come to the ground; then, if for any reason the grass is not continually watered during dry seasons, the lawn will very quickly kill out. It is much better to encourage the roots to go deep down into the ground, where they will obtain natural moisture. Only by heavy watering at rather infrequent intervals can you encourage this deep-rooted system on the grass plants.

The same general rules apply to trees, shrubs and flowers, as well as to the lawn, according to the Nurserymen's Association.

A good way to water is to let the sprinkler run for several hours in the desired area, which will allow the water to soak gradually into the ground.

In regard to weeds, fortunately we now have the 2-4-D weed killer to eliminate weeds in our lawn. This will not control any obnoxious grass, however; it will only kill the broad-leafed weeds. It must be applied thoroughly and care must be taken to spray it in such a way that any plant materials close by will not be touched. It should not be used until the lawn is one year old.

Wool Contest Set For October In District 8

The 17th annual "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest for District 8 will be held Oct. 26 at Agate. District 8 includes Kit Carson, Cheyenne, Kiowa, Elbert and Lincoln counties.

District winners in both the senior and junior division will receive an all-expense paid trip to the state contest. State winners are sponsored in the national contest.

All 4-H girls are encouraged to enter the contest with garments made of 100 per cent American-loomed wool.

The contest is sponsored by the American Wool Council, the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Assn. and the Colorado Wool Growers. All wool growers in the area support the district contest.

There will be an "adult" contest for girls over 22 years of age and a sub-deb contest for girls between the ages of 13 and 15. These two special divisions are limited to the district level.

The regular junior division is for girls between the ages of 14 and 18 and girls who are between 18 and 22 may enter the senior division.

Snake Pit Curator Accepts New Job

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Denis Groves, curator of the Transvaal snake park near here, has resigned to become a game warden after having been bitten 19 times by poisonous snakes.

Groves said "In 21 years I've been bitten 21 times by snakes and snakes have spat in my face 21 times. That makes neat figuring. I don't want to spoil the figures by pushing my luck. Anyhow, the change will do me good."

What's Up in Four-H

STATE

Delegates to the annual Colorado 4-H Conference on the Colorado State University campus next week will study careers.

Robert Pinches, federal 4-H program leader, Washington, D.C., will give the keynote address June 13. He is in charge of career exploration education for the 50 states.

Following the keynote address, delegates will tour CSU laboratories and classrooms for a further look at studies offered by the university.

Career presentations include "What occupational therapy does on the recovery (space flight) team", "What's going on in foods and nutrition at CSU", Demonstrations on machine shop work, "Air Force Reserve Officer training", and "Space age greenhouse".

Tours will include the National Seed Storage laboratory, wood ultilization laboratory and the veterinary hospital.

About 2,000 persons are expected to attend the conference. In addition to career exploration, those attending will take part in dairy, beef and wool judging, home economics judging, square dance contests, public speaking and one-act play contests.

Official delegates from each county will elect a new slate of officers for the official State 4-H Club, an overall state 4-H organization.

MAIZELAND

At the last meeting of the Maizeland 4-H club, Jim Neidigh gave an illustrated talk on "Bows and Arrows" and one on "Color Schemes" was presented by Jan Neidigh.

Sandra Carpenter presided at the meeting and the roll call question was "How up to date are you on your records".

CLOVERETTES

The last meeting of the season will be held Saturday at Diane Condi's home.

At the meeting held May 25, plans were made for the club picnic which was held May 27 in Thorndale Park. A good time was reported by all in spite of some rain.

ELBERT COUNTY

The following report is from Mrs. Jane L. Esarey, Elbert County Extension Home Agent:

The only way a shortage of sugar could develop would be for consumers to hoard sugar supplies. The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture says supplies are sufficient to meet all requirements for household, institutional and industrial users.

Sugar supplies are somewhat more scarce than last year. Poor production in several parts of the world is the reason. Plus more mouths to feed and more sweet tooths.

Americans are used to stable sugar prices. For many years the price was kept fairly steady b Congress. In 1960 we stoppe buying sugar from Cuba. Since then we have bought in the free world market. Prices fluctuate more and we are feeling the fluctuations now.

Refined cane sugar price tags have gone up recently. Raw sugar prices started up several months ago. Stocking ahead has tended to force prices up further.

Will beet sugar prices go up? Probably, at least a few cents more on the five and ten pound bags. Since wholesale prices have gone up, we can expect some change at retail too.

Coloradoans use 90 percent beet sugar, 10 percent cane. This fact may make us feel the sugar price rise less than the consumers that live east of Pittsburgh and Buffalo.

Colorado beet sugar processors are slow to increase prices, particularly for industrial users. Here's their chance to steal away some of the cane sugar market.

Sugar at the grocery store is only one-fourth of the total used in the U. S. now. Three-fourths of the sugar goes into products made up for consumers. Beverages alone take more sugar than household uses. Baked goods take almost as much. Candy, ice cream, canned foods, jams and jellies take the rest, plus hotels, restaurents and institutions.

Phlox Provides Colorful Beauty To Landscape

A phlox does not revert to a wild kind of flower in two or three years, even though the plant in the garden may turn into a phlox provides magenta colored thing in that time. A red phlox, for example, is a red phlox until it dies.

Some gardeners become discouraged with phlox, but an understanding of the way the flower operates may clear up the problem. The phlox produces a multitude of seed; and even though much of it does not germinate, or is destroyed in the seedling stage, the few volunteers that do survive almost invariably in her it vive almost invariably in herit the qualities of the origial species.

The bloom on the volunteers is poor, but the plant is a stronger grower than the usual garden variety and in a year or two crowds out its more attactive fellows.

It is not easy to just dig up the new growth and forget about it, since each root left in the ground develops a new plant.

The Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association reports that the only effective way to destroy the volunteers is to cut off the tops and as soon as the new growth appears in two or three weeks, sprinkle the plant with weed killer. Another method of destroying the vagrants is to clip the blooms before they produce seeds.

The perennial is easy to get along wth since it thrives in any well drained soil, likes the sun, and responds to lots of water and fertilizer. Cultivation should be shallow because many of the roots grow close to the surface of the soil. A mulch of peat moss or humus is, the more ideal method of cultivation.

The main pest of the phlox is the red spider. His presence can be detected by a yellowing of the leaves in the heat of summer, eve though he can't be seen. Powdered sulfur, applied to the underside of the leaf, is an effective treatment, as are several new dusts and sprays on the market. Malathion has given good results when used early in June and again in five to eight days.

Out of the hundreds of varieties of phlox, a few dozen of the better known kinds will bring all the color desired into a garden. Thor is na old-timer that produces a blossom of deep salmon pink. American beauty is a deep rose pink. Chieftain is a new variety producing a crimson blossom, and the newest is Orange Beauty, a bright coral red. A favorite is the Innocence, which has a waxy white blossom; and for a soft lavender blue, there is the Silverton.

Phlox can be planted or moved either in early spring or in the fall, advises the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association.

Kennedy Has Tools to Hold '63 Wheat Production Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture department predicted total consumption of feed grains in the 1962-63 marketing year would be around 154 million tons, about the same as in 1961-62.

The disappearance of this amount would leave a carryover into 1963-64 of about 61 million tons, down 11 million tons from the carryover into 1962-63.

The Department said consumption of corn during October-Mar. totaled slightly more han 2.2 billion bushels, about the same as the record quantity used in that period of 1961-62. Total disappearance of the key livestock feed for the marketing year is expected to be around 4 billion bushels, about the same as in 1961-62. This would leave a carryover into 1963-64 of about 1.3 billion bushels, down 340 million bushels from a year earlier.

Feeders have used sorghum grain so far in 1962-63 a little above the 1961-62 rate, and carryover stocks are expected to be reduced to around 625 million bushels. A year earlier the sorghum grain carryover was 661 million bushels. Total consumption of oats and barley in 1962-63 is expected to be a little below that of a year earlier. The carryover may be a little larger than the 124 million bushels in surplus a year earlier.

The Department said feed grain prices have risen about 10 per cent since last fall, replacing generally good demand from livestock feeders and a tightening of "free" supplies of orn and sorghum grain.

The Department said conditions have been more favorable this spring for field preparation and for planting of feed crops than in early 1962. Preparation and planting of feed grains was ahead of normal in much of the Midwest, the Agency said.

Farm Fire Losses Hit All-Time High

Fires cost American farmers $175 million in 1962, an all-time high and seven per cent more than the $163 million loss in 1961.

Farm fires continue to hit about two out of every 100 farms each year. The "burning rate" (per cent of value destroyed) for farm and rural property is about six times that of urban property, according to annual reports of state fire marshalls.

Buildings and their contents accounted for about 85 per cent of losses as reported by 226 farmers' mutual fire insurance companies.

Dwellings and other contents accounted for 42 per cent of the losses, barns and their contents, 27 per cent; and other out buildings, including rural schools and churches, 16 per cent.

Machinery and equipment suffered a six per cent loss. About 90 per cent of livestock losses paid were due to lightning.

SOME STEER—Dwight Barhite, junior contestant, spurs his balky steer to no avail. Wearing the standard crash helmet, Barhite finally got his "critter" to move a little which in the end proved to be too much as the young rider was bucked to the sawdust in Reed's Indoor Arena. Winner of the junior boy's steer riding event was Ronald Ary from Del Norte with a score of 152. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

OVER THE TOP—Steve Wilson, Colorado Springs, tried his best to stay with the twisting steer during the rodeo but was flipped off in short time. Wilson, one of the junior contestants, received much applause for his spectacular "flip" but no score. Girl contestants and junior boys rode steers while senior boys had to tackle big bulls, including a string of tough Scotch Highlanders owned by Gene Reed. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

JOYCE AND "JOSEPHINE"—Joyce Watters, senior girl contestant from Cheraw, wrestles with 5-year old "Josephine" in an attempt to tie her up in record time during the Saturday matinee of the Colorado Junior Championship rodeo at Reed's Ranch. "Josephine" managed to slip away and dash Joyce's hopes for scoring. Winner of the event was Jerry Bond, of Ordway, who tied all 70 pounds of the old goat in 20.8 seconds.

Junior Rodeo Is Proving Grounds For Future Big-Time Circuit Stars

A total of 92 youngsters aboard horses, steers and bulls raced against time last weekend for championship titles in the 8th annual Colorado Junior Rodeo Assn. meet at Reed's Indoor Arena.

With hundreds of spectators cheering them on to victory, the young bronc busters, bull riders, calf ropers and goat tyers performed with skill and precision.

The Junior Rodeo boosters who managed the rodeo, headed by hard for many months to attract top young riders and plan the fast-moving, event-full rodeo which went off without a noticeable hitch.

Adults who love horses and the rodeo game in general are willing to put forth effort for this annual Junior Rodeo for they realize that an estimated one-third of the current professional rodeo roster is made up of former junior champs.

Along with the Inter-Collegiate Rodeo Assn., and the National High School Rodeo Assn., the American Junior Rodeo Assn. is decidedly the tested proving grounds for the future pros who make rodeo a lusty, growing multi-million dollar sport in 37 states and four Canaidan provinces.

Along with rodeo's growth, the competitors have prospered. In 1962, the world champion all-around titlist, Tom Nesmith, won $32,611 in competition and pocketed another $5,800 in donated cash awards.

For new title holders, the Rodeo Cowboy's Assn. guarantees $24,000 in cash, gold and silver belt buckles valued at $275 each and trophy saddles.

The spectators who witnessed the Colorado Junior Championship Rodeo Saturday and Sunday saw daring athletic timing, outstanding livestock and future rodeo champs.

Sixteen-year old Virgil Lee Lawson, named 1963 senior champion, roped a calf in fast 12.8 time and went on to take points in bull riding and bareback riding. If Virgil can win the championship title for the next two years in junior rodeo competition, he will also earn a college scholarship from the association.

Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lawson of Wetmore, has an early start and a good lead toward becoming a top rodeo star.

Rodeo is high action for the contestant and spectator, but behind the scenes is a cast of people who make the event "go."

Working with Thompson were members of the Colorado Junior Rodeo Board of Directors including L. A. McElhinny, vice president who served as aerna director; Bud Shepard, secretary, and Chuck Brenner, treasurer; Gene Reed, stock contractor, Keith Hook, Buddy Babcock, Ray Kranz and George Moody.

Bob Phelps was arena announcer for the two-day rodeo and judges were Ron Phillips, Las Vegas, Nev., and Don Wilkerson, Colorado Springs.

Bruce Van Dyck and Fred Fink were the clowns who proved to be worth more than laughs when it came to distracting the bulls and steers after successfully tossing off a rider. Pick-up men were Jim Ricken and Benny Bar.

Timers were Mary Lou Conde, Virginia Shaver, Helen Williams and Cherie Mitchie and the secretarial staff included Jean Best, Connie Lou French, Carla Flutcher, Chris Touhy, Midge Smartt, Barbara Shephard, Donna Brock, Etta Reed and Agnes Parker.

First aid stations were manned under the direction of Col. Bill Bowers and nurses on duty were Mrs. Eugene B. Lewis, Mrs. Norman Harloff and Mrs. Kenneth G. Rounds. Dr. A. L. Ingerick was the physician on call.

Tho there were lots of bumps and bruises, only one accident required medical attention. Injured was Al Cordingley from Littleton who was released from Penrose Hospital Sunday after treatment. The accident occurred in saddle bronc event when cordingley got caught in his rigging.

The Pikes Peak Rangerettes performed their precision drills between rodeo events and music was provided by an enthusiastic group of 30 volunteers from the Academy Junior High School band directed by Larry Perkins.

Drought Tips

By Forest McWilliams
County Extension Agent

Drouth range grazing can cause calving troubles the following year, according to James Sprague, extension livestock nutrition specialist at Colorado State University.

Sprague says cows may not come in heat the year following a diet of short range feed and attributes three reasons to the situation: lack of phosphorus, lack of vitamin A and lack of energy.

With a phosporus deficiency, cows may show no symptoms other than failure to come into heat. Phosphorus supplement should be fed to cows on dry range in the summer as well as in winter.

Symptoms of phosphorus deficiency that may show in a cowherd are lack of appetite and drop in milk production. Cows may have breeding difficulties without these symptoms, however.

Cows with a Vitamin A deficiency are likely to abort or have weak or dead calves and they are likely to retain the afterbirth.

An early symptom of vitamin A deficiency is night blindness. If cows run into fences or feedbunks in the twilight for no apparent reason they may be suffering from night blindness caused by lack of vitamin A.

If cows have birth problems from lack of vitamin A they are not likely to come into heat until they get green feed or vitamin A supplement. Drouth grass has good energy, but cows do not get enough total feed to supply the energy they need. This keeps them from coming into heat.

Flushing cows following calving and before breeding gives extra energy and helps insure a calf crop the next year.

Any one of these deficiencies may cause breeding and calving troubles but they are likely to occur together on drouth range. This makes the problem even greater than any single deficiency.

Lawn Rejuvenation Tips From the Professionals

(This is another article prepared as a public service by the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association and its contents are specifically applicable to this region.)

How to rejuvenate an old lawn or how to start a new lawn where there has been a lawn at one time are questions often asked by homeowners.

Let's consider that you have an old lawn that has not been properly cared for and yet, there are not too many shade trees growing close by. However, this lawn is spotty and you are not satisfied with it, but the soil is in fairly good shape.

First of all, rake it thoroughly, in two or three different directions, removing all dead grass, leaves, etc. Then re-seed, raking the seed in and applying an average quantity of well-ground organic fertilizer.

Now let's consider that you have an old lawn that has eroded above the sidewalk grade, or you have an old lawn that looks very bad and there are a number of large shade trees close by.

There is only one way to have a decent lawn if these conditions prevail you must remove all soil at least four to six inches below the sidewalk grade and replace it with a good soil mivture composed of three parts of good virgin top soil mixed with one part peat moss and one part cow manure.

This not only removes the soil completely which is lacking in nutrients due to the large shade trees present, but it also removes a number of the surface feeder roots which, if left near the finish grade, will soon destroy the new lawn. The remaining procedure is identical to planting any new lawn.

There are a number of grasses recommended for shady areas, however, it has been the experiences of the Nurserymen's Association that the regular Kentucky Blue Grass and clover mixture is as good as any in the Colorado Springs area.

Your local nurseryman also has available perennial grass mixes other than blue grass mix that are often used in back areas or on steep slopes where it is not desirous to have blue grass, due to the maintenance and the cost of seeding. The seed itself is somewhat less in price than blue grass; however, the big saving is not the seed.

These grass mixes do not require the perfect seed bed that is necessary for blue grass. It may be broadcast and harrowed in, if the area is large enough; otherwise, it must be thoroughly tilled in to a depth of approximately one inch. It may be sown at any time the ground is thawed sufficiently, although the Colorado Nurserymen's Association advises that it is best to sow the seed from March through September.

These perennial grass mixes may be sown on any soil. The condition of the soil may be very poor, but you will still have a nice stand of grass. At maturity some mixtures look very much like blue grass and require little watering and mowing. It is recommended, though, to water often at first in order to get it started as soon as possible.

Just a few points now in the case of an established blue grass lawn. It has already been mentioned that one should try to fertilize at least twice a year. As you know, it takes considerable time to water our lawns here in Colorado Springs. A good deal of the time spent in watering could be eliminated if watered properly: that is, to give the lawn a thorough soaking from one to three time a week, depending on the weather, rather than to give it a light sprinkling every day. The light sprinkling is actually damaging to lawns since it will merely encourage the grass roots to come to the ground; then, if for any reason the grass is not continually watered during dry seasons, the lawn will very quickly kill out. It is much better to encourage the roots to go deep down into the ground, where they will obtain natural moisture. Only by heavy watering at rather infrequent intervals can you encourage this deep-rooted system on the grass plants.

The same general rules apply to trees, shrubs and flowers, as well as to the lawn, according to the Nurserymen's Association.

A good way to water is to let the sprinkler run for several hours in the desired area, which will allow the water to soak gradually into the ground.

In regard to weeds, fortunately we now have the 2-4-D weed killer to eliminate weeds in our lawn. This will not control any obnoxious grass, however; it will only kill the broad-leafed weeds. It must be applied thoroughly and care must be taken to spray it in such a way that any plant materials close by will not be touched. It should not be used until the lawn is one year old.

Wool Contest Set For October In District 8

The 17th annual "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest for District 8 will be held Oct. 26 at Agate. District 8 includes Kit Carson, Cheyenne, Kiowa, Elbert and Lincoln counties.

District winners in both the senior and junior division will receive an all-expense paid trip to the state contest. State winners are sponsored in the national contest.

All 4-H girls are encouraged to enter the contest with garments made of 100 per cent American-loomed wool.

The contest is sponsored by the American Wool Council, the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Assn. and the Colorado Wool Growers. All wool growers in the area support the district contest.

There will be an "adult" contest for girls over 22 years of age and a sub-deb contest for girls between the ages of 13 and 15. These two special divisions are limited to the district level.

The regular junior division is for girls between the ages of 14 and 18 and girls who are between 18 and 22 may enter the senior division.

For further information, consult your 4-H leader or your county extension home agent.

Feed Grain Consumption Can Cut Into 1962 Carry-Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration possesses farm program tools it could use to help hold down wheat production next year despite the rejection of its tight wheat control plan.

Administration leaders have predicted that the program's defeat in a grower referendum will bring about an unmanageable increase in wheat production and low prices. But farm groups which opposed the administration proposal disagree with these production and price forecasts.

Measures the department has at hand to help limit production include so-called cross-compliance regulations and broadening of cropland retirement programs under existing legislative authority.

The cross-compliance mechanism could be applied to growers of feed grains — corn, sorghum grain and barley—who also grow wheat. The department could require feed grain producers to comply with the reduced wheat acreage allotments which would have been authorized under the defeated wheat program if the prorucers wish to comply with and get price support and land retirement payments under the feed grain program.

Farm leaders said such cross-compliance could be expected to limit if not prevent increases in wheat acreage in such corn-growing areas as Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Minnesota, as well as in eastern sections of Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas.

The department has authority under farm legislation passed last year as well as under the agricultural conservation program, in effect since the 1930s, to offer payment to farmers who voluntarily retire cropland. The conservation program gets about $250 million a year. The department had planned to spend upward of $350 million on wheat land idled under its rejected wheat program.

Some farm leaders said many wheat producers would jump at the chance of retiring some of their land under a payment program. This would be a better assurance of income from the land than from wheat under conditions which, the administration said, could bring wheat down from the present $2 a bushel level to $1.

The wheat program now in prospect for 1964 itself provides a degree of restraint on grower increases in acreages. The program does not require farmers to comply with acreage allotments set up under the rejected wheat plan. But farm law directs that those who do overplant will be penalized in any future mandatory allotments. Overplanting farmers lose around 5 per cent a year in the historical acreage bases on which allotments are set.

Gymkhana And Trail Ride Planned by Club

The Kit Carson Riding Club will sponsor a 10 a.m. trail ride Sunday to Helen Hunt Falls and a gymkhana scheduled for 7 p.m. at the club grounds.

Guests are welcome to join club members on the trail ride and should meet at the entrance to North Cheyenne Canyon. All participants are asked to bring a sack lunch.

The evening gymkhana will include events for both junior and senior riders.

ROPING INSTRUCTOR—Allan Johnson, of Ellicott, one of the top three ropers listed by the Colorado Cowboy Rodeo Assn., demonstrates the technique he will teach to youngsters enrolled in his second annual Calf Roping School beginning Monday at Reed's Indoor Arena, 6000 Wilson Rd. Gene Reed will furnish the calves and each student must provide his own horse, rope and piggin' string. For further information about registering for classes, call the Reed Ranch, 632-0762. The fast-action photo was taken by Darol Dickinson as Johnson roped his calf in 10.6 seconds to win the jack-pot roping event held recently at Pueblo.

AFA Cadet Totals Perfect Score In Steeplechase

More than 100 hunter and jumper enthusiasts from three states participated in the annual meet held over Memorial Day weekend at Red Rock Ranch near Palmer Lake and sponsored by Col. Hugh Nevins.

Top performers from Wyoming, New Mexico and northern Colorado competed in 11 classes over the ranch's hunter and jumper courses with Cadet Stephen Icardi of the Air Force Academy winning high point honors in the two-day meet.

Icardi rode "Lady" over the 17-jump, two-mile point-to-point course to gain a perfect score and win a thrilling victory over other contenders.

The steeplechase course included obstacles of high banks, water jumps and steep slides.

Coming in second and only one point behind Icardi was Miss Angie Ferris, Littleton, riding "Manitoba Queen," a Canadian heavyweight hunter mare. Miss Sharon Ann Hollis, of Colorado Springs, rode "Prince Robey" to third place honors.

Three Magazines Feature Photos By Guy Burgess

The May issue of U. S. Camera magazine includes a full page color picture of "Eleanor's Pride," a powder blue iris which won the Dykes medal in 1961, photographed by Guy Burgess, 1428 N. Nevada Ave., in the garden of Dr. Phillip Loomis, 1414 Culebra Ave.

The photograph illustrates an article titled "What's in A Flower? Move In Close and Find Out!"

Burgess also has three photos of yellow, blue and pink daisies which accompany "Freshen Your Garden With Daisies" story in the June issue of American Home magazine.

Unchaperoned Graduate Parties Still Reported

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the season of graduation and senior proms, a time in which children become adults overnight and their parents age noticeably.

And school officials?

A Maryland principal, Arnold N. Fleagle of Walkersville High, says June, a very critical month, is "one of those times when principals hold their breath and talk to kids and parents. Twelve years of planning and hope can go down the drain in one night."

Most school officials agree that unchaperoned all-night parties and wild joy rides ending in disastrous crashes are things of the past. A survey by The Associated Press indicates that the schools, with the help of parents, think they have the situation pretty well in hand.

Sometimes proms are banned. Other times they're held days or weeks ahead of graduation to dampen the excessive exuberance that comes with end of school.

Typical of many celebrations are the Omaha senior banquets or proms which break up late enough that authorities feel students have run out of steam. Assistant Superintendent Owen Knutzen says all-night parties are banned and "We'd jump all over parents if we knew about any."

But other parents and school officials have backed off the problem of all-night parties to take a long, thoughtful look and decide, if you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

This means that adults thoroughly chaperone the affairs, enforce rules of conduct such as no readmittance once the youngsters leave—to eliminate occasional forays into parked cars — and no drinking.

How the promenaders dress is up to the individual classes, except that all schools frown upon very low cut gowns. In Denver's parochial schools, among others, the rule is more strict: Girls can't display even bare shouders.

In Prescott, Ark., the P-TA has been successful for 10 years with a banquet, dance, midnight movie and 4 a.m .breakfast and religious service.

Maryland's deputy state superintendent of schools, Dr. David W. Zimmerman says all-night drinking parties used to cause trouble. Now numerous all-night non-drinking parties held under parental supervision have resulted in improved school-community relations.

Some seniors, though, insist there are scads of unchaperoned parties, including jaunts to Washington for drinking and to Baltimore for better restaurants.

After the prom given by the juniors for the seniors ends at 11:30 p.m., the seniors are escorted to another building. There civic leaders and school officials serve the kids dinner prepared by the parents. The young people dance some more, watch a show produced by the parents. Finally breakfast is served and the seniors go to church around 6:30 a.m.

In Dallas, where raditionally the proms are formal school dances held at a downtown hotel, parents arrange an all-night dancqing party at a country club with breakfast later. Many of the young celebrants, however, get so tired by 4:30 a.m., they're taken home to bed without waiting for breakfast.

The Kiwanis Club rents the dance hall for a post-prom party in Laconia, N.H. and in Nashua, N.H., a bank sponsors an all-night rock 'n' roll session after the prom. This practice started several years ago on the initiative of a bank employe whose child was involved in a prom night auto wreck.

Topeka's high schools sponsor post-prom theater parties that end about 2:30 or 3 a.m. After that, parents are informed firmly that the responsibility is all theirs.

In more sophisticated cities activities after the prom sound pretty grownup. In San Francisco senior dances end at 11, but often are followed by late dinner dancing at top hotels. Some private parties go on until dawn.

Most seniors of New York City's 86 high schools hold their proms at a hotel, and from there go on to a night club, then home.

But, no matter where it is, Miami or Pretty Prairie, Kan., parents have the prom happen to them only once per child. For long-suffering school officials it comes every year, and sometimes that seems too often.

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII's death automatically suspended the Ecumenical Council, but most observers believe it will be continued by his successor.

The council, major work of the Pope's 4½-year reign, was aimed at modernizing the Roman Catholic Church and preparing the way for Christian unity.

But the direction of the council and the speed with which it brings about change will depend to a large extent on whether the new Pope's outlook is "liberal" or "conservative."

The very purpose of the Ecumenical Council, also known as the Second Vatican Council, was the liberalization of church doctrine and practices.

The council was part of Pope John's great dream—the unity of the Christian world. He planned it carefully and even intervened directly in the proceedings to insure that the council was preparing for an ultimate reunion of all Christians under the spiritual leadership of the Vatican.

All work on the council's second session, scheduled for September, was halted by the Pope's death, and it will be up to the next pope to decide whether it should continue and when.

ROSE GROWERS!
new health and vigor
can be yours

ARE YOU WAN AND NERVOUS, WORRYING ABOUT YOUR ROSES?... WORN OUT TRYING TO BRING THE BLOOM BACK TO THEIR CHEEKS? ... RUN-DOWN TRYING TO FIGHT OFF INSECTS AND DISEASE? HELP IS HERE AT LAST! ORTHO HAS PUT TOGETHER A ROSE KIT THAT TAKES CARE OF EVERYTHING BUT THE THORNS!

At last you can relax. Instead of struggling with a special spray for this insect and a special dust for that... or trying frantically to find the perfect fertilizer... you reach for one handy rose kit. The ORTHO people have packaged together everything you need to get the blooms you planted for: the ORTHO Rose Duster and a bottle of ORTHO Liquid Rose Food.

Rose Dust controls both insects and disease. And ORTHO Liquid Rose Food is just what the experts ordered to feed roses—a balanced formula in easily-digested liquid form.

EASY DOES IT

The ORTHO people wanted to simplify the time-consuming task of rose care. First they invented Rose Dust. By combining insecticides and fungicides, they did away with the need for doing two jobs: controlling diseases and halting insects. Then they developed the pliable plastic duster. You just aim the Rose Duster and squeeze. You put protection on blooms and leaves—"pouf"... like that! If you "pouf" around the rose bush about every 7 to 10 days during the growing season, you'll probably stop trouble before it ever starts. Rose Dust wards off most bugs and blights that ruin roses. Aphids, thrips, rose weevil, Japanese beetle, powdery mildew, black spot and rust.

ROSE FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Then they set out to make a perfect rose food. They had to find a formula that gave roses all the nutrients they need; a food that also gave a quick feeding for a surge of growth as well as a steady feeding to keep bushes growing strong. The answer: ORTHO Liquid Rose Food, loaded with nitrogen, phosphorous and potash. With a chelating agent added to "unlock" iron and other valuable minerals in the soil and make them available to the roots. They made it liquid so roses could take it in quickly through their leaves as well as through their roots. So ORTHO Liquid Rose Food goes to work fast, then lingers in the soil for lasting feeding. Result: you get bigger blooms and more of them. Longer, stronger stems. Healthier foliage.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration possesses farm program tools it could use to help hold down wheat production next year despite the rejection of its tight wheat control plan.

Administration leaders have predicted that the program's defeat in a grower referendum will bring about an unmanageable increase in wheat production and low prices. But farm groups which opposed the administration proposal disagree with these production and price forecasts.

Measures the department has at hand to help limit production include so-called cross-compliance regulations and broadening of cropland retirement programs under existing legislative authority.

The cross-compliance mechanism could be applied to growers of feed grains — corn, sorghum grain and barley—who also grow wheat. The department could require feed grain producers to comply with the reduced wheat acreage allotments which would have been authorized under the defeated wheat program if the prorucers wish to comply with and get price support and land retirement payments under the feed grain program.

Farm leaders said such cross-compliance could be expected to limit if not prevent increases in wheat acreage in such corn-growing areas as Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Minnesota, as well as in eastern sections of Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas.

The department has authority under farm legislation passed last year as well as under the agricultural conservation program, in effect since the 1930s, to offer payment to farmers who voluntarily retire cropland. The conservation program gets about $250 million a year. The department had planned to spend upward of $350 million on wheat land idled under its rejected wheat program.

Some farm leaders said many wheat producers would jump at the chance of retiring some of their land under a payment program. This would be a better assurance of income from the land than from wheat under conditions which, the administration said, could bring wheat down from the present $2 a bushel level to $1.

The wheat program now in prospect for 1964 itself provides a degree of restraint on grower increases in acreages. The program does not require farmers to comply with acreage allotments set up under the rejected wheat plan. But farm law directs that those who do overplant will be penalized in any future mandatory allotments. Overplanting farmers lose around 5 per cent a year in the historical acreage bases on which allotments are set.

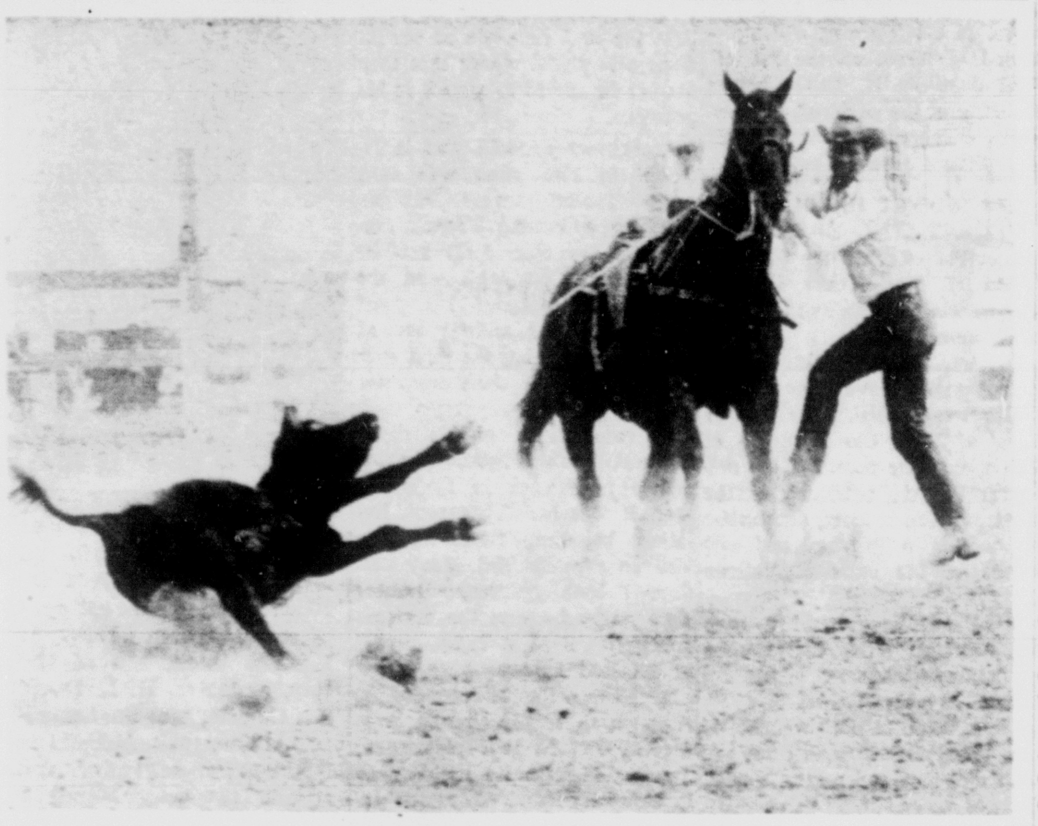
Gymkhana And Trail Ride Planned by Club

The Kit Carson Riding Club will sponsor a 10 a.m. trail ride Sunday to Helen Hunt Falls and a gymkhana scheduled for 7 p.m. at the club grounds.

Guests are welcome to join club members on the trail ride and should meet at the entrance to North Cheyenne Canyon. All participants are asked to bring a sack lunch.

The evening gymkhana will include events for both junior and senior riders.

For further information, call 633-3573.



ROPING INSTRUCTOR—Allan Johnson, of Ellicott, one of the top three ropers listed by the Colorado Cowboy Rodeo Assn., demonstrates the technique he will teach to youngsters enrolled in his second annual Calf Roping School beginning Monday at Reed's Indoor Arena, 6000 Wilson Rd. Gene Reed will furnish the calves and each student must provide his own horse, rope and piggin' string. For further information about registering for classes, call the Reed Ranch, 632-0762. The fast-action photo was taken by Darol Dickinson as Johnson roped his calf in 10.6 seconds to win the jack-pot roping event held recently at Pueblo.

AFA Cadet Totals Perfect Score In Steeplechase

More than 100 hunter and jumper enthusiasts from three states participated in the annual meet held over Memorial Day weekend at Red Rock Ranch near Palmer Lake and sponsored by Col. Hugh Nevins.

Top performers from Wyoming, New Mexico and northern Colorado competed in 11 classes over the ranch's hunter and jumper courses with Cadet Stephen Icardi of the Air Force Academy winning high point honors in the two-day meet.

Icardi rode "Lady" over the 17-jump, two-mile point-to-point course to gain a perfect score and win a thrilling victory over other contenders.

The steeplechase course included obstacles of high banks, water jumps and steep slides.

Coming in second and only one point behind Icardi was Miss Angie Ferris, Littleton, riding "Manitoba Queen," a Canadian heavyweight hunter mare. Miss Sharon Ann Hollis, of Colorado Springs, rode "Prince Robey" to third place honors.

Others scoring in the steeplechase event were Steve Fitzpatrick on "Cherry Bomb"; Cadet Patrick Moore on "Trixie" and Janet Lister on "Royal Peak."

Rose Dust controls both insects and disease. And ORTHO Liquid Rose Food is just what the experts ordered to feed roses—a balanced formula in easily-digested liquid form.

EASY DOES IT

Unchaperoned Graduate Parties Still Reported

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the season of graduation and senior proms, a time in which children become adults overnight and their parents age noticeably.

And school officials?

A Maryland principal, Arnold N. Fleagle of Walkersville High, says June, a very critical month, is "one of those times when principals hold their breath and talk to kids and parents. Twelve years of planning and hope can go down the drain in one night."

Most school officials agree that unchaperoned all-night parties and wild joy rides ending in disastrous crashes are things of the past. A survey by The Associated Press indicates that the schools, with the help of parents, think they have the situation pretty well in hand.

Sometimes proms are banned. Other times they're held days or weeks ahead of graduation to dampen the excessive exuberance that comes with end of school.

Typical of many celebrations are the Omaha senior banquets or proms which break up late enough that authorities feel students have run out of steam. Assistant Superintendent Owen Knutzen says all-night parties are banned and "We'd jump all over parents if we knew about any."

But other parents and school officials have backed off the problem of all-night parties to take a long, thoughtful look and decide, if you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

This means that adults thoroughly chaperone the affairs, enforce rules of conduct such as no readmittance once the youngsters leave—to eliminate occasional forays into parked cars — and no drinking.

How the promenaders dress is up to the individual classes, except that all schools frown upon very low cut gowns. In Denver's parochial schools, among others, the rule is more strict: Girls can't display even bare shouders.

In Prescott, Ark., the P-TA has been successful for 10 years with a banquet, dance, midnight movie and 4 a.m .breakfast and religious service.

Maryland's deputy state superintendent of schools, Dr. David W. Zimmerman says all-night drinking parties used to cause trouble. Now numerous all-night non-drinking parties held under parental supervision have resulted in improved school-community relations.

Some seniors, though, insist there are scads of unchaperoned parties, including jaunts to Washington for drinking and to Baltimore for better restaurants.

The parents' promenade in Barberton, Ohio, is typical of parent-sponsored affairs designed to lure youngsters away from hazardous celebrations.

After the prom given by the juniors for the seniors ends at 11:30 p.m., the seniors are escorted to another building. There civic leaders and school officials serve the kids dinner prepared by the parents. The young people dance some more, watch a show produced by the parents. Finally breakfast is served and the seniors go to church around 6:30 a.m.

In Dallas, where raditionally the proms are formal school dances held at a downtown hotel, parents arrange an all-night dancing party at a country club with breakfast later. Many of the young celebrants, however, get so tired by 4:30 a.m., they're taken home to bed without waiting for breakfast.

The Kiwanis Club rents the dance hall for a post-prom party in Laconia, N.H. and in Nashua, N.H., a bank sponsors an all-night rock 'n' roll session after the prom. This practice started several years ago on the initiative of a bank employe whose child was involved in a prom night auto wreck.

Topeka's high schools sponsor post-prom theater parties that end about 2:30 or 3 a.m. After that, parents are informed firmly that the responsibility is all theirs.

In more sophisticated cities activities after the prom sound pretty grownup. In San Francisco senior dances end at 11, but often are followed by late dinner dancing at top hotels. Some private parties go on until dawn.

Most seniors of New York City's 86 high schools hold their proms at a hotel, and from there go on to a night club, then home.

But, no matter where it is, Miami or Pretty Prairie, Kan., parents have the prom happen to them only once per child. For long-suffering school officials it comes every year, and sometimes that seems too often.

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII's death automatically suspended the Ecumenical Council, but most observers believe it will be continued by his successor.

The council, major work of the Pope's 4½-year reign, was aimed at modernizing the Roman Catholic Church and preparing the way for Christian unity.

But the direction of the council and the speed with which it brings about change will depend to a large extent on whether the new Pope's outlook is "liberal" or "conservative."

The very purpose of the Ecumenical Council, also known as the Second Vatican Council, was the liberalization of church doctrine and practices.

The council was part of Pope John's great dream—the unity of the Christian world. He planned it carefully and even intervened directly in the proceedings to insure that the council was preparing for an ultimate reunion of all Christians under the spiritual leadership of the Vatican.

All work on the council's second session, scheduled for September, was halted by the Pope's death, and it will be up to the next pope to decide whether it should continue and when.

ZIP Code Digits Announced by Local Postmaster

The first three digits of Colorado Springs' new ZIP Code were announced today by Postmaster R. H. Wardwell, as this city moved another step toward the kick-off of the National Coding plan July 1.

"Colorado Springs will use the prefix 809 as the first three numerals in all correspondence," Wardwell said. Local postal zone numbers, added to this prefix, will give you the full five-digit ZIP Code for your delivery area.

As an example of how the local postal zone fits into the ZIP Code, Wardwell said, "If you live at 1503 W. Cheyenne Rd, your postal zone number is 06. Thus, Your ZIP Code would be 80906, and this five-digit number should be added to all addresses, immediately after the city and state — between the two words as was formerly done with the zone number alone."

Wardwell stressed that zip code goes into effect nationally as of July 1, and urged that all residents of Colorado Springs learn the ZIP Code now for their respective delivery areas, and use the code in their return address on all correspondence. In answering mail, he aid ZIP Codes taken from return addresses on incoming mail should be used.

"The ZIP Code is literally the last word in mail addressing," Wardwell said. "It should follow the city and state in addresses. ZIP Code replaces the zone number, so there is no need to use the postal number, except as the last two digits of the ZIP Code."

He said that when the national ZIP Code plan is fully operational, it will provide the United States with the most modern system of mail distribution and dispatch ever devised.

Pope John Was Liked For Personal Qualities

EDITOR'S NOTE — Bennet M. Bolton has been an AP Vatican correspondent for the past two years. In the following article, — second of three, on the life of Pope John XXIII, Bolton brings out some of the personal qualities which endeared the 261st pontiff to Catholics around the world.

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In a matter of weeks the beehive crown of the Roman Catholic Church will be placed on the head of a new Pope.

The world's half billion Roman Catholics will have a new spiritual ruler possessing the title of vicar of Jesus Christ, bishop of Rome, supreme pontiff of the universal Church, patriarch of the West, primate of Italy, archbishop of the Roman Province and sovereign of the state of Vatican City.

What qualities should a man bring to this office that Roman Catholics consider the bridge between heaven and earth?

Pope John XXIII brought to the papacy the experiences of both diplomat and pastor, gained from 28 years abroad as an apostolic legate and five years in the important see of patriarch of Venice.

He also brought personal qualities of unusual kindness, a profound sense of charity and an ability to penetrate quickly to the heart of a matter.

The north Italian farm family from which he came was very much aware, when he celebrated his first mass in August 1904, that Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli was now Father Roncalli.

From that hour on, his parents and his nine brothers and sisters insisted on using only the formal Italian "voi" (you) whenever they addressed him in person instead of the personal "tu."

The newly ordained priest was sent in 1904 to Bergamo, near his beloved birthplace of Sotto il Monte, as secretary to a remarkable bishop.

Father Roncalli's 10 years with Bishop Giacomo Radini-Tedeschi of Bergamo, while simultaneously serving as a professor at the Diocesan seminary, did much to form the independent cast of mind that marked his papal reign.

Bishop Radini-Tedeschi was a man ahead of his times. He drew upon himself the wrath of conservative Italian industrialists by all-out support of a Bergamo factory workers' strike in days when labor organizing was considered akin to anarchy.

The bishop once said he relied on Father Roncalli for his judiciousness and good sense. Father Roncalli remained his attentive aide until World War I came in Europe.

The future Pope, who had already volunteered for a year's infantry service while a seminarian, received in 1915 one of the first calls in the Bergamo area. He served first as a medical corps sergeant, then as a chaplain lieutenant in military hospitals. He saw no front-line service.

Pope Benedict XV called Father Roncalli to Rome in 1921 to reorganize the Italian Society for the Propagation of the Faith, a nationwide mission-supporting activity that reached down to parish level. Father Roncalli wrote a new constitution for the society. He was made a monsignor.

Four years later Msgr. Roncalli became a titular bishop. That same year, 1925, Pope Pius XI sent him as a Vatican diplomat to Sofia, Bulgaria. The job went so well that he was raised in five years from apostolic visitor in Bulgaria to apostolic delegate there.

Bishop Roncalli's experiences in the East planted the seeds of his love for people of all nations and creeds and his overriding concern for Christian unity, later manifested by his Ecumenical Council.

In 1935 he was made a titular archbishop and became apostolic delegate to Turkey and Greece. The Vatican diplomat, serving in predominantly non-Catholic lands, sought constantly to put visitors at ease.

Not a habitual smoker, he would light the first cigarette at official dinners to signal others that they needn't be afraid to smoke in his presence.

Archbishop Roncalli was in Istanbul in 1940 when war once again spread across Europe. Greeting a visiting French prelate the day after Italy entered the war at Germany's side, the archbishop embraced his guest and said: "Our nations are at war, but we feel more than ever brothers and we shall work for peace."

In recognitition of his diplomatic skill he was appointed papal nuncio to France in December 1944. It was a delicate post. Relations between France and the Vatican were strained. Many wartime French resistance leaders were angry because the previous nuncio had lived in Vichy, capital of defeated France.

Archbishop Roncalli mended the situation so swiftly that in three months France sent philosopher Jacques Maritain to the Vatican to resume normal diplomatic relations.

During his time in Bulgaria, he began renting for his annual vacation a villa in an area where he had played as a child in Sotto il Monte.

In boyhood and manhood he would often climb above Villa Scotti and its formal gardens. He enjoyed the isolation of an old tower there.

Baroness Scotti gave him the villa as a present when he became Pope. The Pope in turn gave it to a Bergamo order of nuns. A representation of the villa's tower appears in his papal coat of arms.

Pope John was said to have recalled that northern tower and its memories while walking in the Vatican gardens one spring day in 1959. He stopped and stared for a long while at a 9th century tower down the walk, one of three watchtowers built to guard against the Saracens.

The Pope had the tower modernized and an air-conditioned apartment built at its top. It became one of his favorite retreats.

Archbishop Roncalli's days in France came to an end in January, 1953, when Pope Pius XII made him a cardinal and three days later named him patriarch of Venice. It was his first assignment inside Italy in 38 years.

During his long years away from the Vatican Angelo Roncalli found time to read extensively from the writings of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, the Vatican secretary of state who became Pope Pius XII in 1939.

Those writings and discourses, applying Roman Catholic teaching to problems across the range of modern politics and sociology, were absorbed by a man who later, as Pope, would shape them with his own individual outlook into concrete actions.

President Vincent Auriol of France gave Angelo Roncalli his red cardinal's biretta, following old custom on Jan. 12, 1953. Three months later Auriol conferred on the departing cardinal the award of commander of the French Legion of Honor.

The people of Venice grew to love their patriarch during his five years there. He visited every parish in his jurisdiction, built 30 new parishes, ordered a new seminary and expanded countless projects and programs.

Once he became Pope he retained that common touch. His interest seemed always in the lowly, even though his days were spent meeting the mighty.

Msgr. Capovilla related one such episode that especially moved him:

"The two did not know that the father of all Christians had interested himself in them, and he spoke with those of us near him about love blessed by God."

Drugstores Resent OAP Billing Method

have not been released and no prosecution initiated. Meanwhile all the drugstores and nursing homes in the state feel that they are laboring under a cloud of public supicion because of the sins of a few.

If the state won't prosecute, they say, at least the names should be given to the Colorado State Nursing Home Association and the Colorado Pharmacal Association, which are perfectly capable of policing their own members.

The more suspicious even feel that the Welfare Department would like to capitalize on the public mistrust that has been engendered in order to justify stringent new regulations.

In apparent retaliation, the Pharmacal Association announced one week after publication of the fraud charges that it was terminating its $750 per month contract to audit the drug billings for the medical care program.

Moreover, some drugstores have ceased to do business with the state and more may follow suit.

This may turn out to be all right with the welfare board. Guy R. Justis, director of the department, has advanced the possibility of contracting with Denver General Hospital, Colorado General Hospital and the State Hospital in Pueblo to become the sole drug dispensers for all nursing homes in the Denver Metropolitan and Pueblo areas. "Because of their large pharmacal departments," he says, "these hospitals are able to purchase drugs at a cheaper cost than such drugs can be secured thru retail outlets."

Presumably, if this method worked, it could be expanded so that hospitals in other large Colorado cities would also supply local nursing home needs.

Meanwhile, the state is going ahead with the new billing and auditing procedures.

The old method was simplicity itself. The drugstore filled the doctor's prescription and sent the medicine to the patient care of the nursing home and the bill to the county (which was later reimbursed by the state). The county paid the pharmacist the bluebook cost of the medicine plus $1.40 for handling charges.

Stump has proposed that the drugstores now send one copy of the prescription back to the physician to sign, which when returned would be kept on file. A second copy would go to the nursing home and a third to the County Welfare Department. Such a system, says Stump, would facilitate cross-checking by auditors who want to verify the billing forms against the patients' charts.

It would also mean, says Ronald Wreath, president of the Pikes Peak Pharmacal Association, more postage costs to be incurred by the drugstores, not to mention the expense of the extra time involved in filling out the extra forms. The $1.40 would now hardly cover the handling costs, Wreath says.

The new billing procedures mean that the drugstores won't get their money for 60 to 90 days after they fill each prescription, Wreath continued. According to banking figures there is a loss of one-half to one per cent for every 30 days you have to wait for your money.

Nor will refills be allowed. The new regulations would require that a whole new prescription be made out for approximately every 30 days' supply.

The state will approve only drug prescriptions that are on a certain list, said Wreath. In one instance this meant that 60 cents worth of a medicine that was not on the list had to be replaced by two other medicines with a total value of $4.50 — the state footing the bill, of course.

Neither the nursing homes nor the drugstores approve of taking their possible welfare losses out on their private patients or customers. Most would get out of the welfare trade before requiring others in effect to subsidize welfare losses.

Possible solutions to the problems facing the drugstores and the nursing homes will be discussed Thursday.

Modern Kitchen Best Sales Point

NEW YORK (UPI) — When builders ask the ladies what they think is the biggest advantage for them in moving into a new home, the most frequent answer is: the pleasure of being able to work in a sparkling, modern kitchen.

Margaret Spader, home service consultant for the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, says proof of this can be found in the ready sale of homes equipped with new built-in, slide-in or free-standing gas ranges that lend themselves to more efficient kitchen layout, are easier to clean, and boast the kinds of automation that are missing in older cooking equipment.

ZIP Code Digits Announced by Local Postmaster

The first three digits of Colorado Springs' new ZIP Code were announced today by Postmaster R. H. Wardwell, as this city moved another step toward the kick-off of the National Coding plan July 1.

"Colorado Springs will use the prefix 809 as the first three numerals in all correspondence," Wardwell said. Local postal zone numbers, added to this prefix, will give you the full five-digit ZIP Code for your delivery area.

As an example of how the local postal zone fits into the ZIP Code, Wardwell said, "If you live at 1503 W. Cheyenne Rd, your postal zone number is 06. Thus, Your ZIP Code would be 80906, and this five-digit number should be added to all addresses, immediately after the city and state — between the two words as was formerly done with the zone number alone."

Wardwell stressed that zip code goes into effect nationally as of July 1, and urged that all residents of Colorado Springs learn the ZIP Code now for their respective delivery areas, and use the code in their return address on all correspondence. In answering mail, he aid ZIP Codes taken from return addresses on incoming mail should be used.

"The ZIP Code is literally the last word in mail addressing," Wardwell said. "It should follow the city and state in addresses. ZIP Code replaces the zone number, so there is no need to use the postal number, except as the last two digits of the ZIP Code."

He said that when the national ZIP Code plan is fully operational, it will provide the United States with the most modern system of mail distribution and dispatch ever devised.

Pope John Was Liked For Personal Qualities

EDITOR'S NOTE — Bennet M. Bolton has been an AP Vatican correspondent for the past two years. In the following article, — second of three, on the life of Pope John XXIII, Bolton brings out some of the personal qualities which endeared the 261st pontiff to Catholics around the world.

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In a matter of weeks the beehive crown of the Roman Catholic Church will be placed on the head of a new Pope.

The world's half billion Roman Catholics will have a new spiritual ruler possessing the title of vicar of Jesus Christ, bishop of Rome, supreme pontiff of the universal Church, patriarch of the West, primate of Italy, archbishop of the Roman Province and sovereign of the state of Vatican City.

What qualities should a man bring to this office that Roman Catholics consider the bridge between heaven and earth?

Pope John XXIII brought to the papacy the experiences of both diplomat and pastor, gained from 28 years abroad as an apostolic legate and five years in the important see of patriarch of Venice.

He also brought personal qualities of unusual kindness, a profound sense of charity and an ability to penetrate quickly to the heart of a matter.

The north Italian farm family from which he came was very much aware, when he celebrated his first mass in August 1904, that Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli was now Father Roncalli.

From that hour on, his parents and his nine brothers and sisters insisted on using only the formal Italian "voi" (you) whenever they addressed him in person instead of the personal "tu."

The newly ordained priest was sent in 1904 to Bergamo, near his beloved birthplace of Sotto il Monte, as secretary to a remarkable bishop.

Father Roncalli's 10 years with Bishop Giacomo Radini-Tedeschi of Bergamo, while simultaneously serving as a professor at the Diocesan seminary, did much to form the independent cast of mind that marked his papal reign.

Bishop Radini-Tedeschi was a man ahead of his times. He drew upon himself the wrath of conservative Italian industrialists by all-out support of a Bergamo factory workers' strike in days when labor organizing was considered akin to anarchy.

The bishop once said he relied on Father Roncalli for his judiciousness and good sense. Father Roncalli remained his attentive aide until World War I came in Europe.

The future Pope, who had already volunteered for a year's infantry service while a seminarian, received in 1915 one of the first calls in the Bergamo area. He served first as a medical corps sergeant, then as a chaplain lieutenant in military hospitals. He saw no front-line service.

He left the army in 1918. Reassigned to the Bergamo diocese, he opened the first "students' house" in Italy to aid public school children.

Pope Benedict XV called Father Roncalli to Rome in 1921 to reorganize the Italian Society for the Propagation of the Faith, a nationwide mission-supporting activity that reached down to parish level. Father Roncalli wrote a new constitution for the society. He was made a monsignor.

Four years later Msgr. Roncalli became a titular bishop. That same year, 1925, Pope Pius XI sent him as a Vatican diplomat to Sofia, Bulgaria. The job went so well that he was raised in five years from apostolic visitor in Bulgaria to apostolic delegate there.

Bishop Roncalli's experiences in the East planted the seeds of his love for people of all nations and creeds and his overriding concern for Christian unity, later manifested by his Ecumenical Council.

In 1935 he was made a titular archbishop and became apostolic delegate to Turkey and Greece. The Vatican diplomat, serving in predominantly non-Catholic lands, sought constantly to put visitors at ease.

Not a habitual smoker, he would light the first cigarette at official dinners to signal others that they needn't be afraid to smoke in his presence.

Archbishop Roncalli was in Istanbul in 1940 when war once again spread across Europe. Greeting a visiting French prelate the day after Italy entered the war at Germany's side, the archbishop embraced his guest and said: "Our nations are at war, but we feel more than ever brothers and we shall work for peace."

In recognitition of his diplomatic skill he was appointed papal nuncio to France in December 1944. It was a delicate post. Relations between France and the Vatican were strained. Many wartime French resistance leaders were angry because the previous nuncio had lived in Vichy, capital of defeated France.

Archbishop Roncalli mended the situation so swiftly that in three months France sent philosopher Jacques Maritain to the Vatican to resume normal diplomatic relations.

During his time in Bulgaria, he began renting for his annual vacation a villa in an area where he had played as a child in Sotto il Monte.

In boyhood and manhood he would often climb above Villa Scotti and its formal gardens. He enjoyed the isolation of an old tower there.

Baroness Scotti gave him the villa as a present when he became Pope. The Pope in turn gave it to a Bergamo order of nuns. A representation of the villa's tower appears in his papal coat of arms.

Pope John was said to have recalled that northern tower and its memories while walking in the Vatican gardens one spring day in 1959. He stopped and stared for a long while at a 9th century tower down the walk, one of three watchtowers built to guard against the Saracens.

The Pope had the tower modernized and an air-conditioned apartment built at its top. It became one of his favorite retreats.

Archbishop Roncalli's days in France came to an end in January, 1953, when Pope Pius XII made him a cardinal and three days later named him patriarch of Venice. It was his first assignment inside Italy in 38 years.

During his long years away from the Vatican Angelo Roncalli found time to read extensively from the writings of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, the Vatican secretary of state who became Pope Pius XII in 1939.

Those writings and discourses, applying Roman Catholic teaching to problems across the range of modern politics and sociology, were absorbed by a man who later, as Pope, would shape them with his own individual outlook into concrete actions.

President Vincent Auriol of France gave Angelo Roncalli his red cardinal's biretta, following old custom on Jan. 12, 1953. Three months later Auriol conferred on the departing cardinal the award of commander of the French Legion of Honor.

The people of Venice grew to love their patriarch during his five years there. He visited every parish in his jurisdiction, built 30 new parishes, ordered a new seminary and expanded countless projects and programs.

Once he became Pope he retained that common touch. His interest seemed always in the lowly, even though his days were spent meeting the mighty.

Msgr. Capovilla related one such episode that especially moved him:

"An engaged or married couple climbed the steps to the basilica together. The Pope saw them from his window, prayed for them, blessed them.

"The two did not know that the father of all Christians had interested himself in them, and he spoke with those of us near him about love blessed by God."

Drugstores Resent OAP Billing Method

have not been released and no prosecution initiated. Meanwhile all the drugstores and nursing homes in the state feel that they are laboring under a cloud of public supicion because of the sins of a few.

If the state won't prosecute, they say, at least the names should be given to the Colorado State Nursing Home Association and the Colorado Pharmacal Association, which are perfectly capable of policing their own members.

The more suspicious even feel that the Welfare Department would like to capitalize on the public mistrust that has been engendered in order to justify stringent new regulations.

In apparent retaliation, the Pharmacal Association announced one week after publication of the fraud charges that it was terminating its $750 per month contract to audit the drug billings for the medical care program.

Moreover, some drugstores have ceased to do business with the state and more may follow suit.

This may turn out to be all right with the welfare board. Guy R. Justis, director of the department, has advanced the possibility of contracting with Denver General Hospital, Colorado General Hospital and the State Hospital in Pueblo to become the sole drug dispensers for all nursing homes in the Denver Metropolitan and Pueblo areas. "Because of their large pharmacal departments," he says, "these hospitals are able to purchase drugs at a cheaper cost than such drugs can be secured thru retail outlets."

Presumably, if this method worked, it could be expanded so that hospitals in other large Colorado cities would also supply local nursing home needs.

Meanwhile, the state is going ahead with the new billing and auditing procedures.

The old method was simplicity itself. The drugstore filled the doctor's prescription and sent the medicine to the patient care of the nursing home and the bill to the county (which was later reimbursed by the state). The county paid the pharmacist the bluebook cost of the medicine plus $1.40 for handling charges.

Stump has proposed that the drugstores now send one copy of the prescription back to the physician to sign, which when returned would be kept on file. A second copy would go to the nursing home and a third to the County Welfare Department. Such a system, says Stump, would facilitate cross-checking by auditors who want to verify the billing forms against the patients' charts.

It would also mean, says Ronald Wreath, president of the Pikes Peak Pharmacal Association, more postage costs to be incurred by the drugstores, not to mention the expense of the extra time involved in filling out the extra forms. The $1.40 would now hardly cover the handling costs, Wreath says.

The new billing procedures mean that the drugstores won't get their money for 60 to 90 days after they fill each prescription, Wreath continued. According to banking figures there is a loss of one-half to one per cent for every 30 days you have to wait for your money.

Nor will refills be allowed. The new regulations would require that a whole new prescription be made out for approximately every 30 days' supply.

The state will approve only drug prescriptions that are on a certain list, said Wreath. In one instance this meant that 60 cents worth of a medicine that was not on the list had to be replaced by two other medicines with a total value of $4.50 — the state footing the bill, of course.

Neither the nursing homes nor the drugstores approve of taking their possible welfare losses out on their private patients or customers. Most would get out of the welfare trade before requiring others in effect to subsidize welfare losses.

Possible solutions to the problems facing the drugstores and the nursing homes will be discussed Thursday.

Modern Kitchen Best Sales Point

NEW YORK (UPI) — When builders ask the ladies what they think is the biggest advantage for them in moving into a new home, the most frequent answer is: the pleasure of being able to work in a sparkling, modern kitchen.

Margaret Spader, home service consultant for the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, says proof of this can be found in the ready sale of homes equipped with new built-in, slide-in or free-standing gas ranges that lend themselves to more efficient kitchen layout, are easier to clean, and boast the kinds of automation that are missing in older cooking equipment.

FALSE TEETH
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Expanded Electric Power Is Proposed

DENVER (AP) — Chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission called on the electric power industry today to expand its research greatly.

Swidler told the Edison Electric Institute that research "is too small and the allocation of research effort is too haphazard."

He proposed that the FPC take the first step by calling together representatives of all segments of the industry, public as well as private, to decide where technological advancements are most needed.

Much needs to be done in nonnuclear research, Swidler said.

"Some of these opportunities are in the technology which will be required in periods yet too remote to warrant large expenditures by manufacturers," he said.

FALSE TEETH
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Expanded Electric Power Is Proposed

DENVER (AP) — Chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission called on the electric power industry today to expand its research greatly.

Swidler told the Edison Electric Institute that research "is too small and the allocation of research effort is too haphazard."

He proposed that the FPC take the first step by calling together representatives of all segments of the industry, public as well as private, to decide where technological advancements are most needed.

Much needs to be done in nonnuclear research, Swidler said.

"Some of these opportunities are in the technology which will be required in periods yet too remote to warrant large expenditures by manufacturers," he said.
